IRISHMEN FLEE BRITAIN'S DRIVE ON TERRORISM

Rush Home to Beat Deportation Act.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—A record-breaking exodus of Irishmen for their homeland was under way tonight, soon after a bill permitting summary deportation of Irish Republican army suspects became law with the royal assent.

Sir Samuel Hoare.

Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, in charge of enforcing the law, acted swiftly to put it into effect, signing orders expelling eight Irishmen from Britain barely half an hour after King George had approved it. Later in the evening he was reported to have signed eleven more deportation orders.

This furious activity to rid the country of Irish terrorists was Britain's answer to the many outrages perpetrated over a period of several months. Particularly it was inspired by the bombings in two London railroad stations on Wednesday. One person was killed and twenty hurt in these two blasts.

Feverish Activity at Station.

Unprecedented scenes, even for a Friday night when there always is a large number of passengers going to Ireland, occurred at the Euston railroad depot in London tonight. Bookings for the Irish Mail were so large that the train had to be run in three sections. Every section was crowded and on the platform men and women fought frantically to get near the train to say their farewells.

Many women became hysterical. Scotland Yard detectives scrutinized all passengers, but apparently they made no attempt to detain any of the suspects seeking to escape deportation under the new law, which bans them from again entering the country.

Immediately after the bill had been rushed through all stages of the house of lords by 2:13 o'clock this afternoon and given royal assent, Scotland Yard, notified by telephone, launched a huge drive to round up prospective deportees. Police carried out raids all over London and a number of suspects were brought in for questioning.

Hold Conference of Officers.

The swift action coincided with a Scotland Yard conference between the home secretary, Sir Philip Game, commissioner of police in London, and the chief provincial constables to discuss practical steps to enforce the new law.

The first Irishman to be expelled officially, it was indicated tonight, will be the "man with the slouched hat" whom police are seeking in connection with this week's station bombings. Altogether, thirty reports on suspects were submitted to the home secretary today.

Cancel Police Leaves.

Fearing reprisals against passing of the anti-terrorist bill, Scotland Yard took elaborate precautions tonight. All police leaves were canceled and every available officer was on duty to attempt to prevent further bombings.

Both houses of parliament were ordered closed to visitors tomorrow. Police guards were reinforced and all bridges, public buildings, power stations, and railroad stations were to be specially watched.

Reports were current tonight that Sean Russell, Irish Republican army leader who recently was in America, has arrived in London. Scotland Yard started an intensive search for him.

1940 Auto License Plates Will Be Cream and Brown

Springfield, Ill., July 28 (AP).—Illinois' 1940 auto license plates will have cream colored numbers on a coffee-brown background, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes said today. They will be manufactured by the National Colortype company of Bellevue, Ky.

COMPLETE CASE IN U. S. DRIVE TO DEPORT BRIDGES

Alleged Red's Fight Opens Next Week.

San Francisco, Cal., July 28 [Special.]—The government completed tonight its presentation of evidence in an effort to deport Harry Bridges, Australian born C. I. O. leader, on the ground that he is a communist and that the communist party advocates overthrow of the government by violence.

James M. Landis.

The defense expects to open its case next Wednesday before Examiner James M. Landis on Angel Island. There is a possibility, however, that the hearing may convene Monday or Tuesday and that one more government witness may testify.

Most of the government's testimony has been concentrated on proving that Bridges is a communist, which constitutes the crux of its case. The prosecution contention that the party to which he allegedly belongs would forcibly destroy the present form of government, was not regarded difficult to prove.

Communist Links Told.

A long list of government witnesses testified regarding Bridges' association with communists and that he had a wide reputation as a member of that party. A summary of important testimony on that phase—the first part of the government's case—follows:

Maj. Laurence Milner, former undercover agent for the Oregon National Guard, testified that he had accompanied Bridges to communist party meeting, that Bridges paid communist party dues in his presence, and that Bridges was an able member of the party.

John L. Leach, a former organizer for the communist party testified Bridges was elected to the communist committee at a convention in New York in June, 1936, and was known as Comrade Bridges.

Aaron Sapiro, labor attorney, swore Bridges told him: "I am running the maritime unions on the Pacific coast and they are taking orders from the communist party." Earl Browder, national communist party leader, told him, Sapiro said: "Although Bridges supports the party with jobs and money, he is one of the hardest members we have to handle."

Red Boast Quoted.

William H. Howard, former member of a maritime union, testified Bridges is the high muck-a-muck of the communists on the west coast and told him: "I'm a communist and damned proud of it."

Eugene Dietrich, organizer for the A. F. of L. International Longshoremen's association, said Bridges' wife told him: "I have Harry's communist book and I'm going to show everybody on the waterfront what his real purposes are."

James W. Engstrom, former president of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, testified Bridges indicated that if he supported the communist party line in his campaign for M. F. P. president, Bridges would support him. There was no doubt in his mind that Bridges has been a communist since 1934, said Engstrom.

John Ryan Davis, former business agent of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, swore Bridges attended communist party caucuses with him and gave him instructions in behalf of the communist party.

Supports Second Phase.

Davis, who holds a congressional medal for heroism at sea, also gave testimony to support the second party of the government's case—that the communist party advocates overthrow of the government by force.

After becoming a member of the communist party in 1935, Davis said, he was told by Walter Stack, a communist organizer, that the party had members at the Sand Point air base, in the Boeing aircraft factory, at the Bremerton, Wash., navy yards, and in construction crews on big dams being built in the northwest.

"These communists were supposed

Note to Police: The Governor Has No Beard

Elimelech Lerner has been hitch-hiking for three years. Between hitches and hikes he stops off in cities where he does some preaching.

Map of hitch-hiker's progress.

Elimelech is 64 years old and his long, gray beard gives him a patriarchal appearance. Yesterday afternoon he stood on Sheridan road in Highland Park near the Cook county line and scanned the highway, looking for a kindly motorist. A squad car from the Highland Park police department drew up. Several officers alighted and looked him over.

"He doesn't look like a governor to me," said one of the policemen. "That beard is a beaut," said another. "Will you kindly climb in?" the third policeman said. And Elimelech did.

Elimelech Rides in Style.

The police car was driven slowly north through the suburb. As Elimelech relaxed gratefully the Lake county sheriff's office at Waukegan was broadcasting by police radio the news of the car's progress.

At Highwood, north of Highland Park, another squad car was waiting.

And that's the way Elimelech traveled—through Highwood, Lake Forest, Lake Bluff, North Chicago, Waukegan, and Zion, being solemnly transferred to a different police car at the borders of each town. The police of Kenosha, Wis., were waiting at the Wisconsin state line, salaamed to the visitor, and took him to Racine.

Governor Solves Mystery.

Gov. Henry Horner, who arrived Thursday to spend two months in Highland Park, was notified of Elimelech's triumphal tour, and one of his secretaries issued a statement. That cleared up the mystery. "To the best of my knowledge," the secretary said, "the governor hasn't raised a beard."

It seems that the Highland Park police had received a telephone message that the governor was planning to tour the county. No one knew who had telephoned. And the Highland Park station notified the other towns in Lake county, and Kenosha, too, that the governor was coming. So each town did its part.

Elimelech hit the road north of Racine last night. He, too, issued a statement. He said:

GERMAN MOVIE BOMB BLOWS HOLE IN SIDE OF A NAZI WARSHIP

SWINEMUENDE, Germany, July 28 (AP).—A bomb exploded for theatrical effect during the filming of a historical story tore a hole in the 2,000 ton German warship Reiher yesterday in the Baltic sea, imperiling Emil Jannings and a group of other Nazi actors.

Units of the German navy were cooperating with a Jannings company in producing a film recounting the story of the Koenigin Luise, famed German ship which ran a blockade to mine the mouth of the Thames river in August, 1914.

The bomb exploded next to the Reiher, which represents the Koenigin Luise in the film. The blast tore a hole in the ship's side under the water line and it heeled over at a sharp angle. Jannings and Werner Krauss, two of Germany's top flight actors, and the rest of the company were removed by lifeboats from other ships and the Reiher was towed to a dock for repairs.

EX-CONGRESSMAN SIMPSON BURNED IN WEED BLAZE

Former Congressman James Simpson, Jr. of the 10th district, was burned severely yesterday when flames flared over him as he was burning gasoline saturated weeds on his estate near the Mill Creek Hunt club, two miles east of Millburn, in Lake county. He was taken to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan, burned on the face, back, and both arms. Simpson said one of his employés, Henry Geyer, was helping him burn the weeds, mainly to get rid of thistles. Geyer thought the weeds had been sprayed with kerosene and he tossed a lighted match near where Simpson was standing. The gasoline soaked weeds burst into flame, igniting Simpson's clothes. He put out the fire by rolling on the ground.

Briton Assails 'Paid Bores' as Propagandists

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—American newspapers publish more news about Britain than British papers do, Brendan Bracken, member of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's own Conservative party, told the house of commons today in an attack on government propaganda agencies.

Bracken made his statement in opposing Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare's request for approval to spend $1,300,000 to carry on propaganda for the remainder of the fiscal year.

Bracken, who is managing director of the Economist and editor of the Banker, both financial publications, said it was wasteful to spend the taxpayers' money on foreign propaganda.

Strikes at "Subsidized Bores."

He told the house of commons that lecturers sent out by the British council, which is part of the new foreign publicity department, were "subsidized bores who had lost us a good deal of friendship in America."

"As for making foreigners understand British politics, we often find it difficult to understand them ourselves," he said.

Bracken asserted that the many foreign correspondents in London were eager to cable news abroad, but found it difficult to get anything from official sources.

Goebbels Helps Us, He Says.

Bracken declared that the best possible British press agents are Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister; Julius Streicher, German publisher and Jew baiter, and Virginio Gayda, Italian publicist. He said that instead of setting up a propaganda bureau here, it would be better to spend the money getting the speeches of these men circulated throughout the world.

R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, said the work of the foreign publicity department did not apply to America. He implied that America already was tucked away in the British government's hip pocket.

"Americans have a thirst for information and are ready and anxious to receive as much information from this country as possible," he said. "The position of America has been pronounced by expert opinion as satisfactory." He added that he hoped this state of affairs would continue.

Hunt Pressed for Kill-Crazy Chief of Gang

New York, July 28 [Special].—Assassins belonging to the notorious Lepke-Gurrah racketeer gang in New York have been waging a war of extermination against its members and former members who are witnesses or potential witnesses in District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's racket prosecutions.

This was disclosed today by Dewey in announcing redoubled efforts to capture Louis Buchalter, alias Lepke, whose gunmen, the prosecutor said, are responsible for the gang assassinations which are imperiling Dewey's racket investigations.

Dewey said further that police bodyguards would be provided for at least 100 members and former members of the gangster organization that Lepke and Jacob [Gurrah] Shapiro headed in the heydey of their racketeering operations in the fur and garment industries and other business fields. The Lepke-Gurrah gang at one time had more than 250 members.

Fugitive for Two Years.

Shapiro is now serving a two year term in federal prison on a charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust laws. Lepke jumped bail two years ago, while under racket indictments, and has been a fugitive since.

The intensive drive to capture Lepke came as an aftermath to the "mistaken identity" murder last Tuesday of Irving Penn, a mild mannered executive of a music publishing firm. Dewey said Penn apparently was mistaken by Lepke gunmen for Philip Orlovsky, a witness against the Lepke-Gurrah gang.

Orlovsky, now under police guard, twice has been questioned by Dewey's assistants but has refused to talk. Dewey described Orlovsky as "one of the toughest men in New York" and remarked that if he would talk, the underworld would be cracked wide open.

Federal Agents Aiding.

Dewey also revealed today that for several months the federal bureau of investigation, the federal narcotics bureau, city police, and his own detectives have been coöperating in a nation-wide effort to apprehend Lepke.

Twenty-five agents under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI; an equal number of city officers under the command of Dewey and Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, and six federal narcotics bureau agents have been assigned exclusively to the case, Dewey said.

Dewey asserted he will ask the board of estimates to increase the city's reward for Lepke's capture, dead or alive, from $5,000 to $25,000. He said he expects the federal government to increase its $5,000 reward similarly, making a total of $50,000.

Dewey Reviews Case.

The district attorney hurried back from a vacation in Maine after the murder of Penn, which exposed Lepke's war to death against his former associates. After consulting with assistants, Dewey made his announcements at a press conference.

Dewey reviewed the Lepke-Gurrah investigation. He said he believed one reason Shapiro surrendered about a year ago and began serving his federal sentence was because he wanted to escape being murdered by his former partner, Lepke.

"For almost two years now," said Dewey, "Buchalter [Lepke] and Shapiro, as well as nineteen others, have been under indictments procured

SENATE SHEARS 850 MILLIONS MORE FROM ACT

Roosevelt Foes Win in Hot Debate.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The senate tonight lopped another 850 million dollars from President Roosevelt's huge spending-lending bill. Originally authorizing disbursements of 3 billion 200 million dollars, the bill stood at 1 billion 640 million dollars when the senate recessed without final disposition of the measure at 11:30 o'clock tonight. This was a reduction of 50 per cent.

By a vote of 42 to 38 the senate adopted an amendment by Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] eliminating the section making available 500 million dollars for post roads, bridges, and other transportation facilities.

The Byrd amendment had been rejected, 40 to 38, on a previous vote but the senate today adopted, by a vote of 42 to 39, a motion by Senator Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.] to reconsider the previous vote. After the Van Nuys motion had been adopted, Senator Byrd's amendment prevailed.

Called Significant Victory.

Senator Byrd called it the most significant victory of the senate economy forces, consisting of conservative Democrats and Republicans, since the beginning of the New Deal. Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, sponsor of the bill, had made concession after concession in order to defeat the Byrd amendment originally. Overnight the administration exerted all the pressure at its command in an effort to prevent reconsideration.

Twenty-three Democrats, eighteen Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite, Shipstead of Minnesota, voted to eliminate the half billion dollar roads and bridges section. Voting against elimination were thirty-five Democrats, one Farmer-Laborite, Lundeen of Minnesota, and two radicals—Norris of Nebraska and La Follette of Wisconsin.

Some time after the adoption of Byrd's amendment, the senate adopted by a vote of 45 to 32 an amendment by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] eliminating the section making available 350 million dollars for the purchase of equipment for lease to the railroads.

These major administration reverses left the ultimate fate of the bill doubtful in the senate. Opposition leaders said there was a good chance of killing the whole scheme by a motion to send it back to committee.

House Caucus Fails.

Meanwhile, developments in the house of representatives indicated an even greater chance that the bill would meet defeat in that body. The spending-lending bill has not been reported by the house banking and currency committee and its companion measure, the 800 million dollar Wagner housing measure, has not been acted upon by the house itself.

A Democratic caucus forced by New Dealers in the house in an effort to bind the party to support both the spending-lending and the housing measures resulted in failure tonight.

As a caucus, the Democrats took no action which would bind the membership, but adopted instead a resolution pledging "continued support of and devotion to the great social and economic program" of President Roosevelt. The section of the resolution specifically referring to the spending-lending and housing bills was stricken by an overwhelming voice vote.

189 Democrats Attend.

The leadership made no effort to bind the party by caucus vote because it was apparent, members asserted, that the required two-thirds majority could not have been obtained. Only 189 of the 258 Democratic members attended. The opposition leaders count upon at least 160 Republican votes in the house, and if as many as 40 Democrats join them there will be no spending-lending program.

The spending-lending bill's chance of approval by the house was further diminished when the senate adopted a rider by Senator James E. Murray [D., Mont.] virtually repealing the provision of the 1939 relief appropriation act requiring the lay-off on Sept. 1 of all WPA workers who have been on the rolls for eighteen months. This provision, it is estimated, will affect about 650,000 WPA workers frequently called career men.

The house leaders had served notice that if the senate adopted any rider amending the relief act there would be no spending-lending bill. Although the house might defeat such an amendment, the leaders in that body say they are not willing to have the senate amendment go to conference.

WPA Wage Amendment Dies.

The senate rejected an amendment by Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] to restore the prevailing [union] hourly rates of pay for WPA workers. The relief act, which resulted in a series of WPA strikes, requires WPA workers to work 130 hours a month for their security wage.

During tonight's debate Senator Barkley vigorously defended both the railroad equipment and the roads and bridges sections of the spend-lend bill.

In the sharp debate on the rail provision Barkley said that existing railroad equipment is sadly in need of replacement; that the new provision providing for leasing equipment to the roads was essential to economy in railroad operation and would be helpful to national defense.

The galleries roared with laughter as Barkley and Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] stood toe to toe in the center aisle and shouted at each other about testimony of Jesse H. Jones, former RFC head, regarding railroad loans.

Tobey said Jones' testimony that he would "be ashamed" to estimate RFC losses on business loans had been changed in the official record of committee hearings. The two senators swung arms and roared at each other until Senator La Follette halted this with his presiding officer's gavel.

When quiet finally was restored Barkley insisted that Jones merely had edited "a casual remark" even as "senators do."

Silver Rider Taken Out.

By a vote of 41 to 38, the senate tonight eliminated a rider by Senator John G. Townsend [R., Del.] to terminate the New Deal's foreign silver purchase program, which has cost the taxpayers close to a billion dollars. The senate had adopted the Townsend proposal as an amendment to the bill extending the President's extraordinary monetary powers, but it was thrown out in conference with the house of representatives.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull opposed repeal of the foreign silver buying program on the ground that it would injure American export trade. Senator Barkley said it would mean a loss of more than 100 million dollars a year in exports to Mexico, which produces more than 81 million ounces of silver a year and sells it to the United States.

WARNS MIDDLE CLASS OF PERIL FROM SPENDERS

South Bend, Ind., July 28 [Special].—The middle class American eventually will be wiped out if the federal spending program is continued, Samuel B. Pettengill, former Democratic representative from Indiana, declared tonight.

In an address broadcast over the Mutual radio network, Pettengill charged that Mr. Roosevelt had repudiated his campaign promise that "this debt is not going to be paid by taking away the hard won savings of the present generation.

"Federal spending already has seriously impaired the return on the middle class American's savings and has made his old age less secure," the speaker said.

"Savings accounts that formerly paid 4 per cent interest are now paying only 1½ per cent. This is a loss to the thrifty American of over 60 per cent. The same thing is happening to insurance. Rates are going up and protection is going down."

BANK WINS SUIT OVER ROOSEVELT INSURANCE CASE

Boston, Mass., July 28.—(AP)—A suit which charged the National Shawmut bank of Boston had given an $850,000 insurance policy to the firm of James Roosevelt, son of the President, after another man had done the work, was decided today in the favor of the bank.

Judge Harold P. Williams of the Suffolk superior court here ruled against Arthur D. Cronin of Boston, who sought $31,750, plus interest, on the ground that the bank employed him to work out the insurance policy.

A court auditor, after five months of study, recommended this decision against Cronin late last year. His finding included a statement that the "close personal friendship of James Roosevelt and a vice-president of the bank was involved in the lucrative policy going to Roosevelts firm.

LEWIS' ASSAULT ON GARNER STIRS IRE IN CONGRESS

House Applauds Attack on C. I. O. Chieftain.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The uproar in congress over the attack on Vice President John N. Garner by John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. continued unabated today.

The house applauded the reading of an open letter written to Mr. Garner from former Congressman John J. O'Connor of New York, chief victim of the 1938 Democratic purge. In the letter President Roosevelt was criticized for not freeing the Democratic party of its "$500,000 mortgage holder." The reference was to the political contributions of organizations controled by Lewis.

In testifying before the house labor committee yesterday Lewis characterized the Vice President as a "labor baiting, whisky drinking, poker playing, evil old man."

Says Lewis Lays Down Law.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] obtained the unanimous consent of the house that the letter by former Congressman O'Connor be read by the clerk to the members.

O'Connor wrote to Mr. Garner that Lewis was still the "white-haired boy" at the White House, even though his private remarks about the President were even more intemperate than those he uttered about the Vice President. In return, Mr. Roosevelt's remarks about Lewis are unprintable, O'Connor asserted, but Lewis still continues to "lay down the law."

"Lewis was made a big shot by the President and the administration," O'Connor wrote. "That has been poven many times. You will recall when he took possession of the office of the speaker of the house. Likewise, you will recall when he stood in the lobby, just inside the house, and defeated an innocent resolution to investigate the cause of sitdown strikes.

Calls C. I. O. Chief Bluffer.

"All he has ever had are eyebrows and bluster. Leaving out the eyebrows, which no barber has ever been permitted to touch, the bluster is his only claim to fame. It's a big bluff, but he has been getting away with it for years, especially with some leaders of the house and some senators whom he has buffaloed.

"If a 10 year old boy took a swing at him he'd run to one of the chauffeurs of his expensive cars and retire to his $100,000 colonial mansion in Alexandria, Va."

Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference, declined any comment on Lewis' attack on the Vice President. The President said he had made no comment when he himself was attacked by Lewis.

Recalls Tirade in 1937.

The President apparently was recalling the occasion in 1937 when Lewis became angry at the administration for its failure to indorse sitdown strikes. At that time the C. I. O. chief declared that the President had supped at labor's table, that labor had been responsible for his election to the presidency, and that Mr. Roosevelt was expected to come across.

The belief among legislators that Lewis had given Garner a boost for the Democratic nomination for the presidency in 1940 was spreading today. A number indorsed the prediction of Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] that the verbal assault was worth "millions of votes" for the Texan.

Amendment Bills Pushed.

Lewis also was believed to have injured the administration's campaign to block action at this session on amendments to the wage-hour law. It was in opposition to these amendments that Lewis appeared yesterday before the house labor committee.

The house rules committee promptly decided to send to the floor for action next week three bills to change the law, permitting the members to take their pick or reject all three.

President Roosevelt interpreted the sending of the three different amendatory bills to the floor as a hopeful step toward adjournment.

ANTI-LYNCH BILL FORCED OUT FOR HOUSE DECISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—House leaders were dismayed for a time today when the controversial anti-lynching bill was discharged from the judiciary committee by the petition of 218 members, a majority. The leaders were relieved, however, when a hasty consultation of the complicated house rules disclosed that the bill cannot be brought to the floor for a vote before Aug. 14.

The anti-lynching bill provides for extension of the federal government jurisdiction to enable it to punish acts of lynch mob violence.

Congress is expected to adjourn before Aug. 14 and consideration of the measure is thus expected to be delayed until early in the next session. If the present session is protracted to that date, however, the anti-lynching measure, which arouses great bitterness between northern and southern members, could constitute a formidable obstacle to adjournment.

The house passed an anti-lynching bill at the last session but it died under the threat of a senate filibuster in the closing days of the session.

STATE APPROVES UNDERPASS AT 63D AND ARCHER

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday approved plans for construction of a $400,000 underpass at Archer avenue and 63d street in Argo. The underpass will eliminate the present grade crossing at that point over the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal railroad.

The plan also calls for widening from 18 to 42 feet the bridge over the Chicago, Peoria and Western railroad tracks, which run parallel to the B. & O. C. T. about 500 feet to the west.

The commission yesterday ordered the four large railroads that operate in Moline, Rock Island, East Moline, and Carbon Cliff to submit within thirty days plans for improving thirty-nine railroad crossings in the cities.

PRESIDENT SAYS HE'S PERPLEXED OVER HATCH BILL

Discusses Measure Aimed at Politics.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—President Roosevelt today revealed that he has grave doubts of the constitutionality of the Hatch bill which is designed to prohibit political activity on the part of federal job holders.

The President declared that he is absolutely in favor of the objectives of the bill, which is awaiting his signature, but is concerned over its specific effects. He is giving many phases of the measure most careful consideration, he added.

Upon a reading of the bill, Mr. Roosevelt said, there are as many different opinions as there are readers. The crux of the matter seems to be: Just what can people do legitimately under the bill, and the constitutionality of the measure is tied up with this point, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt had cautioned reporters not to speculate one way or another or to draw from his statements any direct inferences as to what he will do.

The President was asked whether he had heard reports that some persons believed the bill would strengthen state political machines while working toward dissolution of the big federal organizations. He replied that the bill has not been considered from the political angle at all.

Problem for President.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not yet received an opinion on the bill from Attorney General Murphy. It was reported, however, that the attorney general had placed on the President's desk Wednesday an opinion holding the bill constitutional and urging the President to sign it.

Murphy visited the White House after the President's press conference and acknowledged that he had given an informal opinion on the bill. He said that he did not consider the provisions of the bill any more far reaching than the law which now bans political activity by civil service employés.

To disinterested observers, the bill seemed to have the President on the spot. If he signs it he will destroy the New Deal political machine of office holders and federal easy money recipients. If he vetoes the measure he will expose himself to charges that he saved the political machine to perpetuate himself and his programs.

Supporters Answer President.

The President's concern over the constitutionality of the Hatch bill brought the retort from its supporters on Capitol Hill that Mr. Roosevelt never had a flicker of doubt over the legality of New Deal measures held unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

Mr. Roosevelt took the Hatch bill and related documents with him late in the afternoon when he embarked on a fishing cruise off the Virginia capes.

GRAND CANYON TRAIN WRECKED; 57 ARE INJURED

Cross marks scene of wreck.

Two locomotives and four coaches of the train, carrying 190 passengers from the canyon, were derailed last night six miles south of here. Among the injured were five residents of Chicago and its suburbs. They are Miss Carolyn Station, 48, of 428 South Taylor street, Oak Park; George E. Knight, 62, of 309 North Oak avenue, Oak Park; Miss Ethel Stephenson, 34, of 5416 Kamerling avenue, Chicago; Adolph Boden, 47, colored chef, of Chicago, and Robert J. Smith, 34, colored Pullman porter, of Chicago. All were able to leave the hospitals where they were treated.

Among those still in a hospital are Alisa White, 28, of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Mrs. Minnie Hofemeister, 70, of Milwaukee.

The derailment was blamed on defective track. Repairs will require six days. Forty busses are transporting tourists to Williams.

PARIS, July 28.—The discovery of an Israelite city of the second to thirteenth centuries in Palestine near Nazareth was announced today by the Academy of Inscriptions. Among the finds was a system of catacombs containing 400 tombs with inscriptions in Greek and Hebrew. The foundation of a vast synagogue which is believed to have been destroyed by fire in the fourth century also was excavated.

SEEK TO UPSET EVANSTON PARK SECRET ACTION

Aldermen Charge Trickery in Forming District.

Petitions were circulated last night in the fourth and eighth wards of Evanston seeking the dissolution of the Ridgeville park district, which was created secretly and elected its five commissioners in the basement of one of their homes. The existence of the district, which comprises the two wards in the southwestern section of the suburb, was not generally known until Thursday.

The petitions were prepared by Ald. Robert E. James of the fourth ward, who is mayor pro tem of Evanston in the absence of Mayor Henry Penfield. James and other city officials were not informed of plans for the new district until it had been established.

Secret Action Assailed.

"The people behind this say they need parks and playgrounds in the area," said James. "But there are such recreation centers there, one of the largest being the Boltwood playfield at Main street and Dodge avenue. My controversy with them is over the methods they used.

"If all the residents of the two wards had been notified of the plan and of the election for commissioners and had participated in the election, everything would be all right. But there were only a handpicked few who knew, and they took the precaution of keeping it from the taxpayers who will have to dig down and foot the bill for the district if it continues."

"I am opposed to the trickery, fraud, and conspiracy that seems to have been practiced in this affair," said Ald. Frank L. Campbell Jr., of the 8th ward. He and James explained that when they have 100 or more signatures on their petitions they will present them to County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and have a date set for a vote in both wards on the question of whether the district should be abolished.

119 Cast Votes.

The election of commissioners was held Wednesday in the basement of the home of Thomas J. O'Malley at 123 Custer avenue in the suburb. There were 119 persons voting and those elected were O'Malley, a retired building contractor; John F. Labahn, 114 Ridge avenue, an apartment building owner; Eugene F. Fitzgerald, 1122 Main street, a heating contractor; Gilbert Buhmann, 1045 Maple avenue, a real estate operator, and Stephen F. Doyle, 910 Main street, owner of a dry cleaning shop. The election had been authorized July 1 by Judge Albert Isley of Newton, sitting in Cook county court, on a petition signed by 122 residents of the two wards.

The commissioners were in secret meeting last night. They have not announced definite plans, beyond stating that the area needs parks and playgrounds. Assessed valuations of property in the two wards would permit the district to raise $10,500 a year by taxes and to float a $175,000 bond issue.

"But if the commissioners try to do that," said Albert W. Craven Jr., Evanston corporation counsel, "a taxpayer could file suit for an injunction to prevent it."

to take control of those places by violence or other means in case of a war or revolution," Davis said.

Theodore Stark, a former communist organizer in the state of Washington, testified communist propaganda was sent to the army and navy in an effort to win the armed forces to help them in the revolution. He said the tactics used were similar to those which led up to the 1917 revolution in Russia.

Policeman Also Testifies.

Merriel P. Bacon, a Portland, Ore., policeman who joined the communist party as a spy in 1930, testified communists on the Pacific coast approved of robbery to replenish their funds. He introduced and identified many communist pamphlets and books.

"These publications teach that the ruling class will not give up without a struggle, and that there must be armed conflict," he asserted. "Here's a book that says you have to use a rifle and fight in the streets."

Bacon quoted Paul Cline, a communist leader, as having said: "We want new members, but they must understand it is hard to be a communist. They must understand that the revolution will be fought with bullets."

SUPERHIGHWAYS PROBLEM IN ICE AND SNOW BARED

Chicago Experts Study Designs at New York.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—Chicago and Cook county engineers, in their study of superhighway designs here, were told of snow and ice problems which may influence the location and the type of structures to be incorporated in the system planned for Chicago.

Morgan Barradale, assistant to the general manager of the port of New York authority, told the Chicagoans that the trestle type of superhighway is subject to rapid formations of ice, while the depressed or entrenched type is subject to snow blockades. The port authority owns and operates two tunnels under and one bridge over the Hudson river.

Roads Must Be Kept Open.

"These are important considerations in designing for Chicago," said Duncan Campbell, chief engineer for the Cook county highway department. "Our superhighways must be in service 365 days a year."

Le Roy H. Cather, consulting engineer for the city of Chicago, and Harry W. Lochner, engineer of design for the Cook county highway department, are here with Mr. Campbell.

"In New York," said Mr. Barradale, "we don't have nearly so much snow as you do in Chicago but we do have lots of ice. On the trestle structures ice forms quickly when the temperature drops because the pavement is not warmed by contact with the earth."

A depressed highway, exposed to drifting snow, has less exposure to ice formation on the express pavements, but calls for trestles for the cross streets. The ice danger is transferred to these cross streets.

Embankment Roads Praised.

An elevated highway built on an embankment enjoys the warming influence of contact with earth and is fairly well swept of snow by winds. Its trestles over cross streets are short, with heat radiating from massive abutments.

The embankment type of elevated has been considered most suited for construction abutting railroad embankments. This location has a further advantage, according to the engineers, in that it does not disturb the continuity of the local street pattern interrupted by the railroad embankment.

"For a safe all-year-round highway," said Mr. Lochner, "the embankment type shows advantages in combating winter weather. For the entire superhighway system, however, we'll probably have to employ all three types of design to meet special conditions at different locations."

DISCUSS CHEAP PARKING.

A demand for more parking facilities at lower cost in the central business district, to follow completion of Chicago's superhighway system, was anticipated in discussions here yesterday. The question rose at a luncheon meeting in the Palmer House called by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

Leslie J. Sorenson, Chicago traffic engineer, said parking accommodations were a governmental responsibility. He added:

"The haphazard development of privately operated lots cannot continue because a parking fee adequate to return a profit on high value realty is too costly for popular usage."

HORNER TO GET SECRET REPORT ON RELIEF NEEDS

Neil H. Jacoby, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, said yesterday he will call on Gov. Horner at the governor's convenience to discuss the Illinois relief situation. Jacoby will carry with him a confidential relief report prepared by the commission.

The IERC issued a ruling yesterday that the needs of 7,500 Work Projects adminstration strikers who were discharged by WPA must be reinvestigated before they can be recertified as eligible for WPA jobs. The commission was informed by Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, that Washington had ruled the strikers who want to get back on WPA must take their turn with other needy persons.

Miner announced that the discharge of WPA workers who have been on the rolls for eighteen months or longer was started yesterday. About 45,000 relief workers will be affected in Illinois before Sept. 1 by this provision of the new WPA law, he said.

Court Throws Out Plea to Halt WPA Discharges

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday dismissed a petition seeking to restrain WPA authorities from enforcing a new law calling for thirty day layoffs, without pay, of all WPA employés under the age of 45 years who have been on the pay roll for eighteen months or more. The judge ruled he had no jurisdiction in the case, which was brought by a WPA employé.

It said that Lokay was tired of it all and intended going on an extended fling. When Mrs. Lokay said that was the last she had heard from him, Judge Walter J. La Buy granted her a divorce.

ACTRESS ADMITS FAILURE TO PAY $45 HOTEL BILL

Arlynne Sherman.

The order was issued today by Municipal Judge Arthur S. Guerin before whom the actress was arraigned. She was arrested yesterday at her Hollywood home. Her bail was set at $500.

Miss Sherman admitted she owed the money, but said she thought her father, famous producer of western thrillers, would pay the bill for which she said she obligated herself last March during a visit to the Soboba Hot Springs in the desert.

In the last few weeks Miss Sherman has been in and out of the toils of the law. She is already free on $1,500 appeal bond for trafic citations. She had previously been ordered to serve a suspended sentence of six months for trafic violations because she violated her probation in refusing to submit to a psychiatric examination, court records show.

"In fact," he said, "it's something they absolutely can hardly do without."

EXTEND DEADLINE ON SUBWAY WORK; ECONOMIES SEEN

Extensions of time for completing Chicago's subways were granted yesterday by the Public Works administration.

The deadline for finishing the State street tunnel will be extended 180 days; 120 additional days will be allowed for the Dearborn street tunnel. The PWA's $18,000,000 subway grant made last fall specified that the two subways must be substantially completed by July 1, 1940.

Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and traction, said that economies can be effected because of the time extensions. Less equipment will be needed to meet the deadline and fewer shafts will be sunk, he said.

INVOKE SALVAGED AAA LAW AGAINST MELON DEALERS

Suit May Be Test Case of Wallace's Powers.

A law salvaged from the ruins of the outlawed Agricultural Adjustment act was invoked yesterday against a Chicago produce house by the federal government.

The action was in the form of a petition filed in the district court clerk's office against R. H. Dietz & Co., 35 South Water Market, which specializes in the handling of watermelons. The petition charges the company has failed to make weekly reports of its dealings in melons and has failed to pay $1 per carload assessment toward the upkeep of a watermelon control committee.

Suit Drawn in Washington.

The suit was prepared in Washington, D. C. It was brought to Chicago by John S. L. Yost, special assistant attorney general, and G. Osmond Hyde, a senior attorney for the department of agriculture. It was filed in the name of District Attorney William J. Campbell. The case will be heard by Judge Charles E. Woodward.

The petition demands that the Dietz company be compelled to obey orders issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace concerning watermelon distribution; that it be restrained, by injunction, from violating those orders, and that it pay back an estimated $1,600 allegedly owing on carload assessments.

Salvaged From Own Act.

The law under which the action was started is regulation 8, of the Agriculture Marketing Agreement act of 1937. Regulation 8 covers watermelon control. It is an amended form of a watermelon control section included in the old Agricultural Adjustment act, which was killed by the United States Supreme court in January, 1936.

Under this section a committee of twelve men, living in Georgia, Florida and North and South Carolina—the watermelon belt — determines what quantities and what qualities of melon shall be shipped. The effect is to level prices and prevent losses to growers. The cost of the committee's operations is $18,500 a year. This is paid by distributors at the rate of $1 a carload.

Recommendations of the committee are effective insofar as they are ordered by the secretary of agriculture. The present watermelon laws or regulations have been in existence since April 1, 1937.

Charge Marketing Upset.

According to the petition against the Dietz company, the company has refused to abide by Secretary Wallace's orders both as to paying the carload assessments and as to filing weekly statements of watermelon receipts and shipments. This, it is asserted, tends to give the company an advantage over other concerns obeying the regulations, and may further incite other companies to commit similar violations, "thereby thwarting national policy" in regard to the orderly trafic in watermelons.

Robert H. Dietz, president of the company, said last night that he had expected the suit would be filed and that he intended to fight it. It probably will be in the nature of a test case, he said. Mr. Dietz said he believed the action pertained to past watermelon seasons, and not the present. He admitted he had not been paying the $1 carload assessments and that he had not filed weekly reports.

Refuses to Submit.

"I don't admit I owe that money," he said. "In fact, I don't owe it. I'm not a party to the regulations, and I do not submit to the control of the watermelon control committee."

The Dietz company is a partnership. The other owners are Sol Berman, 6656 Glenwood avenue, and Alfred Propper, 4926 North Springfield avenue. Mr. Dietz lives at 7430 Sheridan road.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.
Should the United States go to war with Japan?

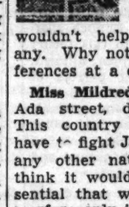
Where Answered.
In the loop.

The Answers.

Miss Rose Crunican, 4149 Jackson boulevard, school teacher. — Absolutely not! There's certainly no need for war in connection with the present trade treaty difficulties. If there were provocation on the part of the Japanese war might be justified. On the whole, however, war is a useless thing and doesn't serve to solve any controversies or disputes.

Peter J. Streicher, 6317 North Paulina street, bookkeeper.—I'm against all war, especially any which would send thousands of young men to fight on foreign soil. Like any good American, I would be the first, however, to fight for my country if Japan invaded the Pacific coast. But as things stand now there's little need for this country fighting with Japan. We needn't become involved in any troubles in the Orient.

Mrs. James Baylis, 1148 East 43d street, housewife.—Any dispute we may now have with Japan can be settled by peaceful means instead of resorting to armed warfare. I wouldn't want to see our youth killed off by the thousands in another war. A war wouldn't help the world situation any. Why not try to settle our differences at a conference table?



Miss Mildred Johnson, 9040 South Ada street, dictaphone operator.—This country doesn't have to fight Japan or any other nation. I think it would be essential that we wage warfare only if Japan directly invaded our shores. Nothing ever is gained by war, anyway. I think better results can be obtained by peaceful means than by bloodshed.

John Rekosh, 4223 South Wells street, real estate broker.—I'm an ex-soldier, so I certainly know what I'm talking about when I say we don't want to fight Japan. We're not afraid of her, but there's no use starting trouble. We should offer our citizens in China and Japan all the diplomatic and military protection short of war. Only if this country were in danger of invasion by the Japs or any other country would I consider it necessary to fight.

THREE AFFIDAVITS SENT TO M'CAHEY IN HEFFERAN ROW

Wrangle on School Exam Referred to Board.

The controversy between Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a veteran member of the school board, and William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, who accused her of impropriety and unethical conduct in school affairs, was referred yesterday to the board of education.

Johnson conferred with Mrs. Hefferan during the day and then sent a letter to President James B. McCahey. It contained the affidavits of three school officials concerning Mrs. Hefferan's appearance last Tuesday at an oral entrance examination in the Chicago Teachers' college.

On Wednesday Johnson accused Mrs. Hefferan of violating custom by attending the examination and of asking for a list of candidates taking the examination. Such conduct, he said, might be interpreted as interference.

Exoneration Is Denied.

Miss Nellie Ryan, a district superintendent, and one of the board of examiners who supplied Johnson with an affidavit on which his charges were based, attended yesterday's meeting. After it was over Mrs. Hefferan declared she had been exonerated by Johnson.

The superintendent later denied that he had apologized for or exonerated Mrs. Hefferan in his letter to McCahey.

Mrs. Hefferan maintained that her attendance at the examination was accidental and occurred while on an inspection tour of summer classes.

Affidavit Cites Objection.

"Upon my requesting Miss Ryan for her copy of the list of candidates for Mrs. Hefferan," said an affidavit of Edvin Brye, an assistant to the college president, "Mrs. Hefferan raised no objection to receiving the same; neither did she make any comment when Miss Ryan definitly objected to giving me the list of candidates for Mrs. Hefferan."

Miss Ryan's affidavit said that Mrs. Hefferan was only two feet away when Brye's request for a copy of the list was refused, and that she made no comment.

The third affidavit was by Douglas F. Van Bramer, a district superintendant. It quoted Mrs. Hefferan as saying she never before had visited the oral examination.

Twins Born to Mother, 21, by a Caesarian Operation

Twin babies were delivered to Mrs. Helen Wolszon, 21 years old, through a Cæsarian operation in County hospital last night. The twins are a girl, weighing 7 pounds 1 ounce, and a boy, weighing 5 pounds 4 ounces. Mrs. Wolszon lives at 6528 Ellis avenue. Her husband, George, is 21.

OFF TO ASIA.

A day's developments in Washington and official comment help to give a clearer view of Mr. Hull's note to Japan ending the trade treaty six months from now. Congress has postponed consideration of the new neutrality law until the next session. It did so in spite of the demands of the White House and the state department that the administration be given authority to act effectually in an impending crisis in world affairs. At the memorable White House conference the senators who were called in told Mr. Roosevelt that he couldn't have his law. It was apparent to them that he intended to use the resources of the United States against Germany and Italy and risk a war if he didn't succeed in pacifying them.

The White House disappointment in this failure amounted to chagrin. Mr. Roosevelt tried to make it appear that a great peace movement had been stopped by the wilfulness of the senators and that the immediate consequence in this country was the collapse of a nice little business boom, which was a strange distortion of the facts. The legislation Mr. Roosevelt wanted was intended to enable him to deal with Hitler and Mussolini by the threat of embargoes against one side and the promise of supplies to the other. Now it can be seen that as soon as Mr. Roosevelt was turned away from the German-Italian front he threw himself in another direction. Instead of crossing the Atlantic he crossed the Pacific.

It is conceded in Washington that Japan has been put upon six months' notice. It will have until congress meets again in January a probationary period in which it can display a better regard for world opinion and pay more attention to its obligations under treaties and to the rights of other peoples. The warning is that if its conduct and its policies have not materially changed the United States will consider reprisals. To make this apparent, Mr. Morgenthau of the treasury has entered the scene by announcing that he is studying the Japanese imports of subsidized goods and the purchase of Japanese gold and silver.

The second day turn of events plainly reveals that the transaction is not a part of Mr. Hull's treaty revision policy, but is a diplomatic stroke intended to influence Japan's campaign in China. The report from London is that Mr. Chamberlain's government now feels that it can take a firmer tone in its dealing with the Japanese military, although it does not intend to follow Mr. Hull's lead. All Mr. Chamberlain has promised to date is that the British authorities in China will not interfere with the efforts of the Japanese military forces to protect themselves and preserve order.

The new developments all give credibility to the supposition that Mr. Roosevelt again is seeking a diversion abroad. He did not get it in Europe and he immediately seeks it in Asia. He was unable to give the warnings he desired to Berlin and Rome and, seeking another channel of activity, addresses himself to Tokio. The trade treaty gave him the opportunity and Mr. Hull's unexpected action could be and was made dramatic.

The Japanese foreign office remarks that in the ordinary course of procedure there would have been preliminary discussions of the step to be taken. The note was mild in composition, but it was delivered like a projectile and was intended to have explosive effects.

A British foreign office statement says that the British government is not considering the termination of its trade treaty. Mr. Chamberlain is in trouble with Japan. We are threatening Japan with the loss of our markets. We are threatening American trade with loss of Japanese markets. Mr. Chamberlain does not threaten either Japanese or English merchants. We do. The British prime minister must welcome the diversion.

Once before this year in a tense moment Mr. Roosevelt created a diversion. He changed the fleet arrangements and suddenly sent the warships back into the Pacific.

THE SCOTLAND YARD MYTH.

The series of outrages in England, attributed to Irish republican terrorists, is distressing to Americans who had been taught to believe that Scotland Yard always gets its man and gets him in a hurry, with all the supporting evidence required to gain a conviction. It seems that Scotland Yard isn't infallible even in a relatively easy case such as this series of crimes presents. Obviously the bombings are not the work of one man but of a group of conspirators, some of whom, to be sure, have been convicted. A really capable detective force would have had its undercover men within the outlaw organization and have had the whole conspiracy scotched within a few weeks. For some reason the Yard hasn't been able to do this. Instead, it has asked and been granted additional powers, including the right to deport suspects summarily.

Maybe with the bill of rights repealed Scotland Yard will end the terror, but what will then remain of the belief that the British police, unarmed and accepting all the handicaps imposed by the bill of rights, can outwit all the enemies of society? Not much. When in future we read those imposing words, "Remember that anything you say may be used against you" we shall wonder whether British policemen still use them.

SOME REFLECTIONS ON THE BUS COMPANY.

The first meeting for negotiation of the comprehensive local transportation franchise took place between the street car and "L" companies' negotiators and a city council committee about May 19, if we remember rightly. On that occasion an alderman arose as the group was gathering, scanned the room carefully, and demanded, "Where is the bus company?". A few minutes later one of his tardy colleagues hurtled into the room, stopped in mid-career, and before he had hung up his hat asked, "Where is the bus company?"

Recently the council committee made public a report on valuations of the three local transportation systems. As to the street car and "L" properties, arguments were presented to show why their value should be less than the cost of the properties less depreciation. As for the bus company the high earnings of the system were emphasized and the report said: "This would tend to support an argument for more than $8,000,000 of value as compared with only $5,000,000 for depreciated cost of physical property."

Departing from the main thread of our discussion for the moment, we mention a few of the reasons for the bus company's high earnings. It charges a ten cent fare. It offers no owl service, which always operates at a loss. It picks its spots, and has abandoned a number of routes when they proved unprofitable. It pays compensation to the park district but none to the city, although it picks up a majority, probably, of its homebound passengers on city streets, as opposed to park boulevards. Its labor is organized in an independent union, and while its hourly pay scales may be high, amalgamation of that union with the A. F. of L. would undoubtedly increase total labor costs, particularly so if it did away with one-man operation of large buses.

These are all factors that should be taken into account if a purchase of the bus company is to be based on earning power, because many of these advantages would disappear if the bus lines were incorporated in a unified local transportation system. But we still have not come upon a reason why the aldermen should be so anxious to confer with the bus company, and why their appraisal should deem its properties so valuable.

The reason may lie in the fact that when the unified company takes over the street car and "L" properties, no cash will change hands. There will be a transfer of securities only, supervised by the federal court. But if the bus company is acquired, it will be paid for with nice, luscious, big, round, solid dollars.

Is it too utterly impractical to suggest to the more commercially minded members of the city council that they continue to string along on driveway permits, renting trucks to the city, and political insurance, and try for once in the history of this city to give Chicago a traction settlement based on its merits? One without a payoff?

A NOT SO FIERCE LION.

There does not seem to be much cause for excitement in John L. Lewis' attack on Vice President Garner. Mr. Lewis' roars, which his admirers believe shake the earth, usually do well to rattle the shutters.

Mr. Lewis has been pretty thoroughly deflated since he set up his headquarters in the office of the speaker and affected to instruct congress how to vote. His purge in the 1938 elections fell even flatter than that attempted by President Roosevelt in the primaries. Its only effect in Vice President Garner's state was to accomplish the defeat of the C. I. O.'s ebullient gladiator, Maury Maverick, while in Pennsylvania the C. I. O.'s political hide was nailed to the barn door beside that of the Guffey-Earle plunderbund.

Mr. Lewis is still an active promoter of civil disorder, and his communist lieutenants have not abandoned their revolutionary hopes. But his pretensions to political power are by now disproved. That is one reason why he yells so loud.

The only evil effect that can conceivably flow from his outburst is that by his opposition he may have encouraged the passage of some dubious legislation. While the wages and hours act is of doubtful merit, it is plain that whatever value it possesses will not be enhanced by widespread exemptions in favor of the southern employers whose labor practices did most to make plausible the argumen ts for the original act.

Speculations that Mr. Lewis may have been the spokesman of the President in his attack on the Vice President will hardly hold water. THE TRIBUNE has charged frequently that Mr. Lewis bought the President of the United States with a half million dollar campaign contribution and received the National Labor Relations board and other favors in payment of the debt. But there is no evidence that President Roosevelt controls Mr. Lewis.

Editorial of the Day

ON THE BRINK.

BY JAMES TRUSLOW ADAMS.
[Author of "Epic of America."]

The defeat of the spending-lending bill, the billions it would add to the public debt, are of vast importance to all Americans. In six years, besides reducing the gold value of the dollar by about 40 per cent, we have attempted to prime the pump by adding about 25 billion dollars to our debt without solving the unemployment problem or restoring prosperity.

To continue longer on this spending-lending road is, I believe, to ruin the government's credit beyond repair and to bring on us all the intolerable suffering of heavy inflation, as happened in France, Germany, and elsewhere.

I am not an economic royalist nor a politician, but a hard working private citizen of modest means, with only one house and some savings in securities, savings bank accounts, and life insurance, which I am struggling to preserve. From study and long experience, I am convinced that our savings will be almost totally lost if we do not stop this debauch of national spending; that small people like myself financially, men and women who have savings and insurance, will eventually be ruined.

Members of congress at this critical moment are under terrific pressure not only from the administration but from groups back home, who, while they demand economy in general, also press for money for local projects. Congress should hear at once from all those who realize that George Washington was right when he said that for the payment of debt there must be revenue, and that to have revenue there must be taxes, and that while cherishing of sound public credit is the duty of congress, public opinion must cooperate in guiding congress to a sound course.

FLIRTING WITH ASTRONOMY.

This column was prepared to make its own observations of the planet Mars in the shining hours of its opposition last Thursday night. We had a nice, quiet vacant lot, overgrown with ragweed, Bouncing Betty, and butter and egg plants, and a pair of field glasses [Deraisme, Militaire], generally used for spotting the numbers of football players on dark and muddy November afternoons. We hoped that we might do something for astronomy, in a small way, without resorting to the impudence of bouncing a radio beam off some unsuspecting Martian's head. But the sky was hazy and overcast and Mars burned dimly through the murk; so we gave it up for another fifteen years and went home to our books.

We learned a lot about Mars by not looking at it. For example, it has two dwarf moons, named Deimos and Phobos, after the horses that drew the chariot of the war god. One of them buzzes across the Martian firmament from west to east, twice every night. That must be fun for Orson Welles' friends up there.

The canals of Mars, alleged to be evidence of human intelligence and vast engineering skill, have divided astronomers into two schools of thought, one saying "Yes" and the other "No." Schiaparelli, their discoverer, kept an open mind on the question, and was careful to point out that these markings might be of geologic—"areologic" is the more exact word—rather than human origin. He wrote so well on this point that we cannot refrain from quoting him:

"The intervention of intelligent beings might explain the geometrical appearance, but it is not at all necessary for such a purpose. The geometry of nature is manifested in many other facts. The perfect spheroids of the heavenly bodies and the rings of Saturn were not constructed in a turning lathe, and not with compasses has Iris described within the clouds her beautiful and regular arch" [the rainbow].

ATTICA, IND., SPEAKS.

Mischance and guilt alone have borne me fame!
After a human storm's tempestuous wrack,
One moment of Cain's blighting breath, my name
In living fire leaped round the world and back.
The long and dusty years have seen my street
Trodden by poet, lover, clown and saint,
By men too proud and strong to know defeat;
No pen has made the world with these acquaint!
Bravely above the Wabash to a star,
While motives range from silly to sublime
And laughter flavors crust or caviare.
Ah, World who slakes your thirst with printer's ink,
On things of good report I bid you think.

Hammering Away at Fort Dearborn.

The next time you visit the reproduction of Fort Dearborn, if you'll take your bearings, you'll find that the Old Whistler Item [July 26] isn't at 31st street and the lake front. No, it's half a mile or more north of that spot. Several important publishers of guide books should also note this fact. Traveler.

[Yes, but you have to use the turn-off driveway at 31st street to reach it; hence the apparent inaccuracy of the guide books. The location of Fort Dearborn, hemmed away from the public by a high speed motor thoroughfare, is one of the reasons why it has been neglected by sightseers.]

It's a small woild. I approve your condemnation of left-handed envelopes, and Oscar L. Holmgren gives them his O. K. [July 26]. Now, Mr. Holmgren sold me my automobile insurance some years ago. It's one of those policies that runs on and on as long as you pay the premium, but Mr. Holmgren had better see the light or I'll sell my jillopy and buy a pair of roller skates. W. Dee.

Poetry at the Monkey House.

The Eugene Field memorial in Lincoln park, a charming piece of sculpture, deserves a more appropriate environment. Originally it was well situated, but the placing of the monkey house close by has changed the scene. Hordes of people, monkey bound, now pass it in ribald curiosity, and finger it irreverently. The mood of childhood fantasy and romance has disappeared.

APOLOGY FOR GARDENERS.

"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground."
And gave him the fruits of the earth,
On condition he'd toil, with his hands in the soil,
To tend them and bring them to birth.
We have strayed out and far from the source of our flesh,
In our scramble for thrills and for things.
Our hands may be clean, but our spirits are lean
And our souls have forgotten their wings.
So we turn back again to the loam whence we sprang,
Where red lilies are blooming in crowds,
While we seek after God in the trees and the sod
And feed our starved hearts on bright clouds.

The Bridge That Lost Its Water.

A strange sight in this city of contradictions is the old bridge that spans nothing and rests on dry land. You will find it on Western avenue near the Blue Island-26th street intersection.

This structure once spanned the "Checagou Portage"—the arm of the south branch that joined the Chicago river with the Des Plaines river near the present site of Forest View. Long ago the south branch was filled in, west of its confluence with the sanitary canal, yet strangely enough every available current map of Chicago marks this stream as still trailing westward to the Des Plaines. The old Western avenue bridge stands on dry land as its symbol. W. T. Pitcher.

Overheard in a street car:

"Yes, he is a fine fellow, but, of course, he has idiosyncrasies."

"Too bad, I thought he looked kinda pale."

PRECAUTIONS FOR THE "POLIO" SEASON.

THIS season, if the malady runs true to form, we are likely to encounter local epidemics of infantile paralysis [poliomyelitis] in some parts of the country—let us hope but in a few. Its presence in any community is terrifying, largely because we know so little about the causative virus and its method of spread.

I recall vividly as a young physician the satisfaction with which every one hailed the announcement made by an eminent authority that the stable fly scattered the poison. All we needed to do was to screen our houses and protect our children from the bites of this insect. But we were doomed to disappointment. Despite the greatest precautions and the banishment of the supposed carrier, cases continued to occur.

Recently some suggestions have been made as to methods of communication which should be of common knowledge. For example, a type of encephalitis which affects horses and which can be transmitted to human beings has been traced with reasonable accuracy to a virus inoculated by mosquitoes. This gives emphasis to our eradication campaigns directed against all winged or crawling blood suckers. Among other possible transporters certain birds have been suggested, especially English sparrows. Some color is lent to this theory because psitticosis, a serious ailment, may be conveyed by sick parrots or parrakeets. Rats and gophers also have been thought of. In fact, one epidemic of polio followed a flood in which ground squirrels, chipmunks, and all rodents were driven to high ground and into homes hitherto uninfested.

We cannot, however, put our finger upon the exact form of life which is responsible. Nevertheless, we can defend ourselves against insect bites of all sorts, or treat them promptly by washing the surface thoroughly with soap and water and applying spirits of camphor or dilute ammonia. From the first of August on, it will do no harm to exercise special care in this respect. Curiously enough, the disease usually vanishes after the first heavy frost although sporadic instances will be discovered at any time of the year just as we may find house flies within our dwellings in the middle of winter.

The onset usually is sudden, but many cases will simulate a severe cold or a digestive disturbance in which the temperature is not high—rarely over 103 degrees Fahrenheit. The pulse and the breathing, however, will be more rapid than the fever appears to warant. Pain may be complained of in the head or neck. If the symptoms persist, and particularly if there is infantile paralysis in the neighborhood, a specimen of spinal fluid may be withdrawn, whereupon the diagnosis is clear. This places the family doctor in the best possible position to administer treatment.

Serum from a patient who has pulled through is our chief reliance inasmuch as no specific against the infection so far has been discovered. It is assumed that the blood of one who has survived the disease will contain neutralizing elements which will destroy the infection. This material may be given directly into a vein or into the spinal canal. While we do not have absolute proof that sulfanilamide is helpful, its use has been suggested by a number of authorities.

Signs of paralysis may not come on for several days and when they become manifest we cannot be sure that complete restoration will not take place. A tot who is unable to move a leg for some time may regain full function without the slightest impairment. It is always wise to secure the counsel and advice of a competent orthopedic surgeon before treatment of affected muscles is begun.

We must regard childhood illnesses—even colds or digestive upsets—as deserving of our best attention. Put the little one to bed and keep him there for two or three days. There is adequate reason to believe that victims of the disorder who are given bed rest early stand the best chance of recovery. Much depends, however, upon the virulence of the attack.

FIRM BINDER NEEDED.

Mrs. W. Z. writes: I have stopped nursing my baby for over a week. I wear a band, but my breasts feel heavy.

1. Will pumping the milk out cause formation of still more?

2. How long will it take for the milk to evaporate, and what can I do?

REPLY.

1. Yes, but the occasional use of the pump may be necessary to prevent "caking."

2. As a rule we do not speak of this as "evaporated milk." Seriously, the best procedure includes wearing a firm binder about the breasts, cutting down on the amount of fluids, and if necessary a saline laxative to aid elimination. Under this plan the secretion should cease within a week or ten days.

BUTTERMILK.

Mrs. A. writes: Is buttermilk all right for a diabetic patient?

REPLY.

Yes, it may be substituted for sweet milk. The protein and carbohydrate are the same in both. Churned buttermilk contains one-fourth as much fat, but cultured buttermilk, made by adding certain lactic acid bacilli to whole milk, would be identical.

Test Your Facts

Below each of the following questions are listed three answers. Make your choice, turn to page 20 in the Want Ad section for the correct answers, and mark your score:

1. How far is it from rail to rail on a standard gauge railroad?
[a] 6 feet 2¼ inches; [b] 4 feet 8½ inches; [c] 5 feet 6 inches.

2. Who jumped to fame with his poem, "The Man with the Hoe"?
[a] Robert Frost; [b] Henry Thoreau; [c] Edwin Markham.

3. Where is the Longchamp race course?
[a] Paris; [b] London; [c] New York.

4. What four states in the United States are known officially as commonwealths?
[a] Kentucky, New York, Texas, Georgia; [b] Massachusetts, Illinois, Vermont, Texas; [c] Massachusetts, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Virginia.

FINDS US A GRABBING NATION.

Chicago, July 26.—For goodness sake, why the rush to the south pole? Hasn't the United States enough territory and natural resources without staking out claims on the polar ice caps? We could at least let the have-not nations have those.

We accuse Britain and France of being greedy in building up world empires, but we are just as greedy as anybody. We haven't built up a world empire for the very good reason that by the time we became strong enough to enter the grabbing competition everything had already been grabbed.

Not that we haven't tried to better ourselves. We tried to annex Canada but the British beat us to it. We acquired Texas and Louisiana by deals that had very questionable angles and some bloodshed. We took the Philippines, which Japan needed. The reason we haven't more is not because of Utopian goodness but merely because of lack of opportunity.

But now there are no more worlds to conquer, so the astronomers are polishing up their telescopes and training them on Mars, no doubt with malice aforethought.

CHARLES MORDEN.

QUIET, PLEASE!

Chicago, July 24.—Like thousands of others, I go to the moving picture theaters for real enjoyment of sight and sound—but surely not the sound of crushing cellophane, crunching peanut brittle and peanuts, or gum cracking, which offenses are tolerated all too patiently, as the average person dislikes making himelf or herself conspicuous by speaking to an offender of those noises, or complaining to an usher.

Why don't all the picture theaters flash on the screen several times during the afternoon and evening programs an appeal to the audience to maintain quiet? They used to do so and I am sure it was helpful. J. N.

TAXPAYER WANTS THE NAMES.

Chicago, July 28.—The names of all married couples who both hold appointive or civil service positions in the city, county, state, sanitary district, park district, board of education, relief agency, and WPA ought to be published.

The taxpayers, the people who have to really work for a living, would then know some of the persons whose greed in hogging political jobs is doing much to block recovery. CITIZEN.

ADMINISTRATOR OF ESTATE.

Chicago, July 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—In a case where a brother or sister is made administrator of an estate left by their father or mother, and there are other brothers and sisters who share equally, [1] what are the responsibilities and duties of the administrator toward the rest of the family?

2. Can the other brothers and sisters demand a periodical statement and accounting from the administrator?

3. I am speaking of course of a case where no bond is furnished or required.

4. Does this same law apply in the state of Pennsylvania? G. A. P.

1. Roughly, to prepare an inventory, pay debts and taxes, prepare a final account, and distribute the estate.

2. No. His only obligation is to account to the court.

3. In general, a bond is required of an administrator. It is not clear whether your suggestion of no bond means that you are talking about an executor.

4. It would be substantially the same.

NECESSITY FOR PROBATE.

Chicago, July 27 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. Is it necessary to have a will probated, and if so for what reason?

2. Can a clause be inserted in a will to prevent the filing of claims against same by persons not mentioned in the will? C. M.

1. The presence or absence of a will has no important bearing on the necessity for probate. If there is real estate, then probate will be necessary in order to procure a readily salable title. If personal property is in the possession of third parties, they may insist on probate before giving it up.

2. Clauses against contest are common, but of course the testator has no power to bar his creditors from collecting from his estate.

SEES A STREET CAR "FREEZE OUT."

Chicago, July 23.—Why not give the street car companies an 8 cent fare? They should have it to better their service; the service they give now at 7 cents is vastly superior to the service of the buses at 10 cents. While you get crowded on the street car, you are still more crowded on the bus. While you wait a long time for a street car, you wait just as long or longer for a bus. While the street car throws a little sand blast into the car sometimes when brakes are put on, the bus gives hot, sticky, gaseous fumes, bumps, jolts, and swerves, with bruises thrown in, more than equaling the inconveniences of the street car.

A car conductor will call many streets, and a bus driver seldom calls any. Why should buses be thrust on the public? They are inadequate now. What would they be with fewer street cars used and a few more buses accommodating fewer people, crowding all over the streets? No improvement. This lessening of car service evidently is part of the program of "freeze out"; to get rid of them and their service, to discharge employés of the street car companies, incidentally ruining street car bond or stock holders, and to throw the riders of street cars on the hazard of more inadequate transportation. O. L. TALBOT.

THAT THIRTY DAY LAYOFF.

Chicago, July 25.—What most men on WPA don't realize yet is that there won't be a thirty day layoff. That is only an excuse to get us off for good. The relief agencies will find plenty of excuses to keep us from getting back on again.

What sort of human beings have we in Washington to put $55 a month men on the streets again to suffer, and with children and old people grieving their hearts out, so all the nice easy chair jobs, mostly unnecessary, and held by nonrelief men, can be continued without a cut in pay? C. H.

THE VOICE ON THE LOUD SPEAKER.

Chicago, July 26.—I read your report on Lily Pons' concert. Am wondering if the loud speakers ruined her voice as it has the voices of others.

We heard Edith Mason. All regretted they had not remained at home and listened over the radio because of the bad effects of the loud speaker. Hope you can help. MRS. GEORGE F. BAXTER.

WANTS TO BE A FLYER.

Chicago, July 26.—Recently there appeared in THE TRIBUNE an article under the heading "Boys Should Fly." It was with great interest I read this article. Where and how should a boy learn aeronautics without funds?

I have a son who will graduate in February from a technical high school where he has studied aviation. Since he was 10 he has lived, dreamed, and read about nothing but aviation and he has spent many hours designing and building models to amuse himself. Being a widow working to send this son through high school I would like to know how a poor boy will ever have a chance in the aviation world today without funds to enable him to further his one ambition. Surely there are hundreds of other boys in the same situation. Much is being done for the college student yet I have failed to read where anything is done for the less fortunate.

CURRENTLY POPULAR WORDS.

Chicago, July 26.—Recently Mrs. S. C. wrote: "My 3 year old boy is allergic to cow's milk." I object to the expression "allergic to." Allergic and its derivative seem to be the most abused words in the American language. Allergic is an adjective which can be properly used only in describing the human whose cells have been hypersensitive to certain substances. No substance is allergic other than human tissue. No person is allergic to any substance. The person who is allergic is hypersensitive to allergens which come from allergenic substances.

Swell is another abused word. It means nothing more or less than to increase in size. J. W. HOLLAND.

KEEP "FORT DEARBORN."

Chicago, July 27.—I protest against the project of tearing down the Fort Dearborn replica. The excuse given by the park board that it is too expensive to maintain is rather weak. After developing a large parking space and inducing people to picnic there, it seems quite in order, too, that comfort and shelter be provided. Plumbing fixtures are in the building now, and lights, too. If expense is the excuse, why are nine lifeguards on duty at 31st street beach? They were there last Saturday watching about 100 people. F. FRIENDS OF SLAIN GIRL TELL STORY OF MELON KILLING

State Seeks Death for Quick Trigger Clerk.

The state yesterday presented its ase against Athon Papas, fruit stand erk and watchman charged with the atermelon slaying last May 30 of iss Muriel Ruth Campbell, 1228 aple avenue, Berwyn. A jury quali- ed to inflict the death penalty was hosen before Judge John Sbarbaro Criminal court Thursday.

Two of the party of young people ho were with Miss Campbell were e principal state witnesses. They re Helen Freilich, 16 years old, 5522 ackson boulevard, and Harry Feig- baum, 18, of 5547 Congress street.

Tells Story of Tragedy.

Miss Freilich testified that the arty had been in Hillside, where the oys went swimming, and on their turn they stopped at the fruit stand 5624 North avenue.

Miss Freilich said she tossed a wa- rmelon at Muriel. Muriel dropped and it cracked. Then she tossed back to Miss Freilich, who also ropped it. A clerk, Chris Neforas, 57 West 71st street, demanded to now if they were stealing the elon. She continued:

"We denied we were stealing the elon. Mr. Feigenbaum then joined and said he would take care of y damage. Papas then came from e rear of the store with drawn n. Harry Feigenbaum told him to t the weapon away. He and Papas ruggled and I left the store. Harry d Muriel followed and started to n. Then I heard shots and Muriel ll."

Describes Fight with Clerk.

Feigenbaum testified he was ex- aining to Neforas, the clerk, that e girls were only joking over the atermelon when Papas grabbed him d tore his sweater.

Papas pushed him into a potato n, Feigenbaum said, and fired a ot into the floor. Feigenbaum said threw potatoes at the watchman deflect his aim, then grabbed uriel and had started to run when e girl was shot.

Neforas, the clerk, testified he called pas and told him some one was ying to steal the melon.

He said he saw the struggle and w Feigenbaum hit Papas in the e and head with potatoes.

The defense opening statement indi- ted that it will be shown that pas was in a strained mental condi- n at the time of the shooting as e result of a head injury in 1921.

RINTS ON AUTO SOUGHT AS CLEW IN GORE KILLING

Benton, Ill., July 28 [Special].— ate investigators shifted their op- ations to southern Missouri today the search for clews to the iden- y of the gunman who shot and led Mrs. George W. Gore Sr., wife a wealthy Benton surgeon, on e sleeping porch of her home last nday.

A finger print expert from the state partment of investigation and iden- cation went to Charleston, Mo., to otograph any prints that may be a car found abandoned there.

Authorities have said the automo- e was purchased at Cairo, Ill., and ndoned at Charleston, Mo., by orge W. Gore Jr., stepson of the in woman. He is at liberty under d on a charge of murder in her ath and was permitted by State's torney Rea Jones to return to his me in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Sheriff's deputies were sent to Cape rardeau last night to ask Gore s e, Katheryn, 26 years old, to re- n here and submit to further ques- ning. She refused, however, and nois authorities were powerless to move her from Missouri.

A Winner

John Elliott Thompson, 15 months, was a winner in the second division of baby parade.

A dusky Daniel Boone on a scooter, three diminutive editions of Joe Louis, an Uncle Sam, a Miss America and an assortment of comic strip characters paraded in the baby show sponsored by the Chicago Association of Negro Clubs yesterday. More than 200 floats and buggies made up the parade, which passed the reviewing stand at 48th street and South Park way. Grand prize was awarded to Edmund Jones, 6 years old, of 4558 Prairie avenue, one of the Joe Louises in satin trunks and red boxing gloves.

Among the judges were former Congressman Oscar De Priest, A. Lincoln Wisler of the Chicago Urban league, and Rev. Joseph Evans of the Metropolitan Community church, J. Wesley Jones, choral director, and the Rev. J. C. Cobb of the First Church of Deliverance.

New York, July 28 [Special].—J. Richard [Dixie] Davis, disbarred attorney and former "kid mouthpiece" for the notorious Dutch Schultz gang, was "free" today at an undisclosed hideout, guarded by three detectives from District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office.

Davis had served 126 days of a year sentence in the policy case. The rest of the time was accounted for by time in jail waiting to testify and by allowance for good behavior.

The man who turned state's evidence to help Dewey convict former Tammany Leader James J. Hines of being political protector for the lucrative Schultz policy racket in the New York City area was released from Bronx prison shortly after 1 a. m., today. Hines, former principal Manhattan patronage dispenser for the Roosevelt administration because he was a "before Chicago" Roosevelt supporter in 1932, is at liberty on bail appealing his conviction.

500 C. I. O. PICKETS BATTLE POLICE; UNION GIVES IN

Detroit, July 29 [Saturday].—(AP)—Pickets of the C. I. O. branch of the United Automobile Workers scuffled with police yesterday and prevented the General Motors corporation from moving tools and dies from the Frederick Colman & Sons, Inc., plant here.

Early today, however, the dies were removed after the union had changed its position. One hundred fifty police stood guard and there was no disorder when the dies were hauled away.

The unionists, whose strike of skilled workers has affected 12 General Motors plants and made 7,000 workers idle, prevented a corporation truck from backing into the Colman plant yesterday to receive dies intended for the Buick auto plants.

About 100 patrolmen were pushed around by a picket line estimated to number 500.

by my office. Gurrah has since surrendered and is serving a two year federal sentence for violation of the anti-trust laws. Lepke is still a fugitive in a federal case and on the two indictments pending in this office. One of these charges is domination of the bakery racket and the other is domination of the garment racket.

Murders are Listed.

"Three of Lepke's lieutenants are under indictment for the murder of William Snyder, a leader of a bakery trucking union, on Sept. 13, 1934. This case will go on trial in October.

"In connection with this case and the bakery racket generally, Max Rubin was shot and wounded in Bronx county on Oct. 1, 1937, at a time when Max Silverman, a defendant in both cases, was being returned as a fugitive from California. Rubin survived.

"Since that time there has been a series of assassinations. On Jan. 28, 1939, Isidor Friedman, alias Danny Fields, a gangster, was murdered, together with Louis Cohen, the man who killed Kid Dropper. Fields was a member of the Lepke mob.

"On March 23, 1939, Joseph Miller was shot and wounded in Bronx county. He survived. On April 25, 1939, Abraham Friedman, alias Whitey Friedman, was murdered in Brooklyn. Friedman was formerly a member of the Kid Dropper mob and later with Lepke and Gurrah.

Union Officials Slain.

"On May 25, 1939, Morris Diamond, who was employed as office manager in the headquarters of local 138, a teamsters union in the bakery racket, was murdered in Brooklyn.

"In addition, Leon Scharf and Hyman Yuran, gangsters, have also disappeared. Both were formerly associated with Lepke and Gurrah.

"In my judgment, the community is faced with an organized effort to eliminate all former gangster associates of Lepke and Gurrah."

Lepke and Shapiro were labeled two of the most notorious criminals in the country by the United States department of justice in December, 1937, when both were fugitives under a federal indictment for violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

The criminal record of the two men dates back to 1915. Starting as minor hoodlums they rose in underworld prominence to be known as boss racketeers of New York City. They sandbagged legitimate business for millions of dollars.

Arrested Many Times.

The justice department said they were known as New York contact for the Barker-Karpis gang, kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, and for Verne Miller and his gang. The Lepke-Gurrah combine also was believed to have been interested in operation of slot machines and dog tracks through the country. Their main sources of revenue, however, was New York City racketeering.

Lepke, who is 42 years old, went to prison for one and one-half years in 1918 on a New York larceny conviction. He returned to Sing Sing prison in 1920 for two and one-half years for attempted burglary in New York City.

From his release on parole in 1922 until arrested Nov. 21, 1933, on anti-trust violation charges, he was arrested on eleven other occasions for such offenses as assault, robbery, homicide, and burglary. In each instance, however, charges were dismissed. His alias of Lepke is said to be a corruption of the Jewish equivalent of his first name, Louis.

GUNMEN BIND 3; STEAL CIGARETS WORTH $3,500

Three gunmen invaded the warehouse of the Co-Ordinated Transport, Inc., 1141 Polk street, early today, tied up the foreman and two employes, and stole 85 cases of cigarets valued at more than $3,500.

The robbers surprised William Jones, 1926 Ohio street, the foreman, and two helpers, John Dutton and James Johnson, the latter colored, and bound their hands and feet with adhesive tape.

Then they loaded the cigaret cases into a small truck belonging to the transport company and escaped. A fourth man trailed in a sedan. Jones managed to loosen his adhesive bonds with his teeth in 45 minutes, freed Dutton and Johnson, and called police.

2 Women Admit Robbery Charge; Put on Probation

Two young women who pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery were placed on probation yesterday by Judge John Sbarbaro in Criminal court. They are Mrs. Grace Greenwald, 20 years old, 4626 North St. Louis avenue, and Miss Bessie Fastre, 19, of 2674 Madison street. They confessed participating with several men in a series of robberies.

Bandit Binds 'L' Cashier to Railing Outside Cage

An armed bandit robbed Henry Seeger, cashier at the Wellington avenue station of the elevated lines, of $5 early yesterday, then bound Seeger to a railing outside his cashier's cage. Seeger, who lives at 1738 Roscoe street, freed himself in about ten minutes and called police.

TELLS OF MILLION PAID TO SETTLE BIG TOBACCO SUIT

Stockholders' Action Deal Explained.

New York, July 28 [Special].—The American Tobacco company paid Richard Reid Rogers $263,000 in 1933 when he dropped a $10,000,000 stockholders' suit against the company, it was testified today in federal court.

This revelation was made by Paul M. Hahn, a vice president of the company, in testifying in his own defense against disbarment proceedings brought by the government.

The disbarment action is based on the charge that shortly after Hahn and a co-defendant, Louis S. Levy, had negotiated a $250,000 loan by Lord & Thomas, advertising agents for the tobacco company, to former Federal Judge Martin T. Manton's partner, the late James J. Sullivan, Manton wrote an opinion favorable to the company in the stockholders' suit.

Manton is free on bail pending appeal from his conviction as a seller of justice.

Firm Pays Fee and Income Tax.

United States Attorney John T. Cahill brought out from Hahn that the Manton opinion was reversed by the Supreme court and that Rogers later began a new action in New Jersey.

The new action was pending, Hahn testified, when, on Aug. 2, 1933, the company's board arranged a settlement.

Hahn swore that the company spent almost $1,000,000 in settlement of the stockholders' unit. He explained that not only was $263,000 paid to Rogers and an additional $262,601 put in escrow to cover his income taxes, but that $70,000 was paid to counsel for another litigant, and that $320,000 was allocated to the firm of Chadbourne, Stanchfield & Levy, counsel for the tobacco company in the suit.

Bonus Plan Revised.

For its part, the company agreed to revise a cash bonus plan and to scrap entirely a stock allotment plan which had been in operation for the benefit of its executives and had been contested in the stockholders' action.

Hahn insisted that the rearrangement of stock and bonus allotments saved the stockholders many millions of dollars.

Cahill also drew from Hahn the admission that whereas he had been hired in 1931 as assistant to George Washington Hill, president of the tobacco company, at $50,000 a year, he was promoted a week after the Manton opinion was handed down to a vice presidency of the firm.

Harry Foster, who has only one leg, with Deputy Jack Cwick in Safety court yesterday.

Joseph Reyes, 1538 Ardmore avenue, was sentenced to serve ten days in the Bridewell by Judge Eugene L. McGarry in Safety court yesterday for reckless driving. On June 25 his auto struck and injured a woman when he drove too close to the curb at Webster and Hoyne avenues. An inspection showed Reyes' car had brakes on only one wheel.

Charges of leaving the scene of an accident and of driving while intoxicated against Harry C. Foster, 63 years old, a one legged factory representative from Pottsville, Pa., were continued until Sept. 8. The delay was given to determine the seriousness of injuries to Harold West, 19 years old, 1406 Harrison street, who was struck by Foster's car in front of 1722 Monroe street on Thursday. West is an ice cream vendor.

TOWNSEND CUTS LABOR VIOLENCE TERMS TO A DAY

Indianapolis, Ind., July 28 [Special].—Gov. M. Clifford Townsend today commuted to one day the six month prison terms to which two Indianapolis men were sentenced for labor violence in 1937.

The governor acted after the Indiana Supreme court upheld the convictions in Criminal court here of George Smith and Frank Meade. While officials of Barbers union, No. 247, they were sentenced for stoning a nonunion barber shop. The charge was malicious trespass. Smith and Meade appealed to the Supreme court. Its ruling requires them to pay fines of $98 each.

Attachés in the governor's office said Townsend acted on the recommendation of the state clemency commission.

DEFENDANT HELD IN JAIL; ASSAULT TRIAL IN DOUBT

James Carroll, a Forest View tavern keeper, is scheduled to go to trial Wednesday before Justice of the Peace Henry Pendl of Willow Springs on a charge of assault and battery. His appearance was doubtful last night, however, because he is in the county jail on another charge.

James Carroll.

Warants for him and James Reposh, the one man police department of Forest View, were obtained Tuesday by Bernard Brooks, 5433 South 73d avenue, Summit, after Brooks alleged they had beaten him. Reposh surrendered Wednesday and was released on $1,000 bond pending trial.

Carroll is in jail for failing to pay $2,165 which he had collected while a part time salesman for the Columbia Fuel company, 4940 Bloomingdale avenue.

FEDERAL JUDGE ISSUES WRIT FOR KIDNAP SLAYER

Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday issued a writ of habeas corpus directing the warden of the McAlester, Okla., penitentiary to produce Oliver Lawrence Dressler, alias Jack C. Russell, for trial for murder here. Dressler is charged with kidnaping and murdering Billy Scott Hamilton of Arkansas City, Kas., after his flight from the prison.

PUSH WIDE HUNT FOR ST. CHARLES FUGITIVE NO. 49

Authorities of four northern Illinois counties were watching yesterday for Robert Griffin, 19 years old, who on Thursday became the forty-ninth inmate of the St. Charles School for Boys to escape this year.

Griffin made his getaway on the shores of Crystal lake in McHenry county, twenty-five miles north of the school, where he and twenty-six other inmates had been taken on a swimming party. This was a feature of a day off outing—a reward granted inmates of school cottages from which there have been no runaways in six months.

William T. Harmon, superintendent, declined to name the offense for which Griffin was sent to the school, nor would he name the fugitive's home town, except to say it is downstate. Griffin was received at St. Charles in April, 1937.

CHARACTER IN BUSINESS

By CALEB

MANY firms famous for long public service and dependability carry the names of their founders. In many others are continuously apparent the influence and basic methods of certain men who established them. In short, the personality of the organization itself derives its pattern, as it were, from the manner of individual who pioneered its beginnings.

Emerson very specifically stated this important shaping fact in a business's success. "An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man," was his way of emphasizing that business possesses character directly in proportion as its promoters possessed it, and as its perpetuators possess it still.

Where character, then, differs from reputation, is that it is forever personal. Reputation is a popular composite picture of a business — not always accurate — built up from many sources: continued publicity, casual hearsay, warm praise and bitter condemnation alike. Character, however, reflects the business's true self . . . in time, consistently exercised in practice, it can conform reputation closely to its own likeness.

With these simple, but vitally significant distinctions, no one was more familiar than the founder of our own business. And the impress of his personality persists today in two elementary attitudes towards success, that more than any other explain Field's longevity. One was his private recognition of, and emphasis on, character as an inviolable commercial asset; the other, his rigorous selection of associates on that same basis. Success for any and all business, he knew, rests solely on a square deal for the customer. Hence, his frequently quoted counsel carries, today, the weight it had when written:

"To every young man I would say, seek at the start to cultivate the acquaintance only of those whose contact and influence will kindle high purposes; as I regard the building up of a sterling character one of the fundamental principles of true success."

The fact that these words were handed to Caleb by an employe of more than fifty years' service with us—who carries them in a well-worn wallet for frequent reference—illustrates as aptly as need be the enduring power which character can distribute from bottom to top of any business.

AGITATOR, ONCE LEWIS FOE, NOW ON HIS PAY ROLL

Powers Hapgood Sent to Aid C. I. O. in Chicago.

John L. Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, is sending his most important aids into Chicago and the middle west to forward his drive for domination of the packing industry. These men are bending their efforts toward bringing Armour & Co. into line. The Packinghouse Workers Organizing committee, C. I. O. affiliate, has threatened a strike in all the company plants unless its officials sign an exclusive, nation-wide contract.

Powers Hapgood.

Two of the imported organizers are John C. Lewis, miner and former president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, and Powers Hapgood, a practicing socialist agitator who was once designated by the C. I. O. head as "a communist trying to capture the United Mine Workers and transform a splendid union into a communist organization."

Lewis on Coal Commission.

Don Harris, national director of the PWOC, said that the Lewis from Iowa would be in charge of organizing all packing plants outside Chicago. He is a resident of Des Moines and has had no previous contact with the packing business. He was one of the members of the national bituminous coal commission, a price fixing body which was abolished in June. His salary as a member of the commission was $10,000 a year.

Hapgood, a Harvard graduate who ran for governor in Indiana on the Socialist ticket in 1932, has frequently been in trouble with authorities in strike burdened cities. He has been arrested in Lewiston, Me.; Boston, Mass.; Camden, N. J.; Terre Haute, Ind.; Council Bluffs, Ia., and Pittston, Pa. Charges ranged from disorderly conduct to inciting to riot.

He has been an apologist for the Russian soviets. In 1927 he championed the cause of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, anarchists who were executed in Massachusetts for murder. He was sentenced in Boston to six months' imprisonment for starting a riot.

Once Bitter Foe of Lewis.

In 1928 he was a bitter enemy of John L. Lewis and headed an insurgent faction in the United Mine Workers. Lewis referred to the group as "fakirs, repudiated leaders, traitors to labor, opportunists and purveyors of falsehood." Hapgood formerly was an organizer for the United Shoe Workers, also a C. I. O. affiliate.

Hapgood came to Chicago on Monday. He was engaged in conferences with the PWOC leaders until yesterday, when he returned to Washington. All that the leaders would say was that he was here as a field representative of Lewis.

Efforts to bring the union and Armour & Co. into negotiations, and thus avert the possibility of a strike, were continued yesterday by John L. Conner, conciliator for the department of labor. He conferred with Armour officials.

"It is too early to announce any progress," said Conner, "but we are hopeful."

The company has taken the position that it would be illegal to deal with the PWOC for all plants unless the procedure was authorized by the National Labor Relations board.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Putting the Blast on Them

MAYO FUNERAL TOMORROW; HIS CLINIC TO LIVE ON

Assured by Board and Foundation.

Rochester, Minn., July 28 [Special].—Continuation of the famous Mayo medical clinic in its present form and under its present management was assured tonight as funeral arrangements were made for the last of its founders, Dr. William J. Mayo, who died early today.

Dr. William J. Mayo. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

An announcement from the clinic stated that the famous medical center will continue to be administered by the board of seven governors who have guided it since Dr. William J. Mayo and his equally famous brother, the late Dr. Charles H. Mayo, retired.

The board of directing physicians was established about ten years ago. The two Mayos were its leading directors for years, but they retired about five years ago and then served only in an advisory capacity.

The board is now composed of the following staff physicians: Drs. Waltman Walters and David C. Balfour, sons-in-law of Dr. Will Mayo, and Drs. M. S. Henderson, A. R. Barnes, F. C. Mann, D. M. Berkman, and R. D. Mussey.

Foundation Established.

The uninterrupted functioning of the Mayo clinic is due also to establishment of a perpetual medical foundation. The Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research, an affiliate of the University of Minnesota, was established in 1915. The Mayo brothers gave $1,500,000 to found the project and added $500,000 to the fund in 1935.

In 1919 the brothers formed the Mayo Properties association to hold all property and funds of the Mayo clinic and to insure the perpetuity of its work. The association, which owns all physical properties of the clinic, is controled by the board of governors.

There is but one Mayo left to carry the family name. He is Dr. Charles' son, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, a surgeon on the clinic staff, who was 41 years old today, when his uncle died. Dr. Charles' other son, Dr. Joseph G. Mayo, was killed in an automobile accident in 1936. The other children are daughters.

The Mayo tradition is being carried on, however, through the husbands of Dr. Will Mayo's two daughters. Dr. Walters, husband of Phoebe, is a director of the clinic, and Dr. Balfour, husband of Carrie, is the director of the Mayo Foundation.

Rites at Old Home.

Persons from all walks of life paid tribute today to Dr. Will, as he was affectionately known to thousands, and prepared to attend his funeral services at 4 p. m. Sunday.

The rites will be held at the Foundation House, the doctor's home for twenty years, until he gave it to the foundation last September to be used as a center for medical study. The body will lie in state there from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Sunday.

The pallbearers will be surgeons in the clinic. Members of the consulting staff of the clinic, of the University of Minnesota board of regents, of which Dr. Will was a member, and of the faculty of the University of Minnesota medical school will be honorary pallbearers. Burial will be in the Mayo family lot in Oakwood cemetery.

Dr. Will died in his sleep early today of a subacute perforating ulcer, an abdominal ailment he had specialized in treating. He was 78 and had grieved almost constantly since the death of his brother, Dr. Charles, in Chicago on May 26.

3 AMERICANS DIE TESTING MILITARY PLANE IN ENGLAND

LIVERPOOL, July 28 (AP).—Three American airmen fell to a flaming death today when a Lockheed-Hudson bomber, aloft on a test flight prior to delivery to the Royal Air Force, lost a wing in midair and plunged to earth on the bank of the river Dee.

Flames quickly enveloped the wreckage in which were trapped Pilot Frank W. Anderline, 42 years old, of Seattle, Wash.; Mechanic Fred Taylor, 35 years old, of Burbank, Cal., and Inspector John C. Hagadorn, 27, of Long Beach, Cal.

OBITUARIES

Beryl Mercer.

Santa Monica, Cal., July 28 (AP).—Beryl Mercer, 57 years old, noted character actress of stage and screen, died at a hospital today. Born in Seville, Spain, in 1882, she went on the stage in child rôles in London's Drury Lane, and later played in New York. She entered motion pictures in 1929.

Miss Mercer was active in New York theater guild productions. She appeared on the New York stage in "Outward Bound," and in the movie version in 1931. Her other pictures included "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Cavalcade," "Magnificent Obsession," "Jane Eyre," "The Little Minister," and "Berkeley Square.'

Theodore H. Barbear.

Theodore H. Barbear, for nineteen years an employé of THE TRIBUNE auditing department, died yesterday in his home at 2842 East 80th street. He was 57 years old. Mr. Barbear was born in St. Louis, Mo., and was a resident of Chicago for twenty-five years. Surviving are his widow, Katherine, and a sister, Mrs. Amelia Brockmeyer of St. Louis. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 1506 East 67th street. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

Hugh A. Parks.

Funeral services for Hugh A. Parks, chief clerk in the transportation office of the Rock Island lines here, will be conducted at 4:30 p. m. today in the chapel at Emerald avenue and 79th street. Mr. Parks died yesterday in his home at 7832 South Peoria street. He was 64 years old. A railroad man since 1891, Mr. Parks had been associated with the Rock Island Lines since 1902. He leaves his widow, Clara, and two sons, James W. and Robert S. Parks.

DUKE HEIR IS 21; A MILLIONAIRE DEEPLY IN LOVE

New York, July 28 (AP).—Anthony Drexel Duke became 21 years old today and the master of income from tobacco millions.

First he planned a birthday party for tomorrow night at the Southampton residence of his mother, Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson, and in September he and pretty Alice Noel Rutgers will be married.

His father, Angier Buchanan Duke, who died in 1923, left in trust for him about $2,000,000. The sum represented a one-quarter share of the estate, and since that time is reputed to have been increased to more than $5,000,000.

His allowance was determined by a board of trustees, which once decided he needed $80 a day to maintain his social standing on the Princeton campus.

BAPTISTS DEBATE DEMOCRACY AS CHRISTIAN HOPE

Atlanta, Ga., July 28 (AP).—A British churchman's appeal for Christians to make safe the religious foundations of a true democracy brought prompt dissent today from Italian and German speaking messengers [delegates] to the sixth Baptist World congress.

"I cannot for conscience's sake make the fate of Christianity dependent upon that of democracy or any other political system," Dr. W. A. Muller, German-born Philadelphian, declared in replying to an address by the Rev. M. E. Aubrey of London.

Aubrey, former moderator of the Federal Council of the Free Church of England, described totalitarianism as a foe of free religion, predicted its collapse because tyrannies do not last, and said liberty will rise again in Germany, Russia, and Italy.

Dr. Muller argued that since all political systems are temporal and ultimately break down, he felt that to bind up Christianity with any political system would imply that it, too, could fail.

The Rev. Enrico Paschetto, Baptist pastor from Turin, Italy, said that if it were not for the Fascist state there would be no Baptist churches today in Italy, adding, "Our only opposition comes from the Catholic church."

7,000 NATIONAL GUARDS OFF FOR SUMMER CAMP

Nearly 7,000 men from Chicago and downstate boarded trains last night for Camp Grant, Rockford, for the annual encampment of the Illinois National Guard. The encampment will begin this morning and will end Aug. 12. One Chicago regiment, the 202d coast artillery, an anti-aircraft division, will be in training at Camp Logan, near Zion, for firing practice over Lake Michigan during the two weeks.

The encampment's big day will be Sunday, Aug. 6, when Governor's day is celebrated. Although Gov. Horner will not be present, United States Senators James M. Slattery and Scott W. Lucas will speak.

Chicago units which entrained for Camp Grant at midnight yesterday were the 66th infantry brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, and the following outfits: The 108th combat engineers, commanded by Col. Karl E. Hobart; the 108th medical regiment, commanded by Col. James L. McKinley; the 108th quartermaster regiment, commanded by Col. Harold E. Moore, and the 33d division special troops, headed by Maj. Engelbert J. Schmitz. Included in the latter is the 33d tank company from Maywood.

ARCHITECT ROILS DEFENDERS OF FORT DEARBORN

Representatives of organizations which are protesting the park board's plan to raze the replica of Fort Dearborn, in Burnham park, gasped in indignation yesterday when Harry A. Musham spoke his mind on the subject. Musham, an architect of 741 Rush street, was the only person at a board hearing not in sympathy with the fight to save the fort as a symbol of the pioneer spirit.

Musham said the replica faces the wrong direction, block houses are on the wrong corners and incorrectly built, the loopholes are wrongly made, the buildings are too low, and there are no root cellars, no wells, and no covered way to the water. Other persons jumped to their feet in anger as Musham finished, but he didn't wait to listen, and left the room.

The board took under advisement the possibility of changing its decision to raze the structure, and said it would study the matter.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Observation Post

Hollywood, Cal., July 28.—Lunched with Michael Shathin, who, for the last twenty years has sold and distributed Hollywood motion pictures in Japan, China, and the Philippines. . . . At present he is assigned to Tokio as general manager for Warner Brothers.

While we were lunching Shathin indicated the wall paper design . . . "Chrysanthemum," he said. . . . "Reminds me of one of the most unusual encounters we ever had with the minister of the interior's office, which is in charge of movie censorship. We had received a print of a Laurel and Hardy comedy, and it had been passed by the censors for exhibition.

"Two days after the theater had started running the picture there was a sharp demand to deliver the print to the censor's office. It developed that in one of the scenes appeared a chocolate birthday cake. Somebody in the audience had counted the candles and there were sixteen. The sixteen-petaled chrysanthemum is part of the imperial crest and cannot be used in any form. So the censors cut all scenes in which the birthday cake appeared and returned the picture to us."

No reference to the emperor of Japan or his family, no comedy portrayal of royalty and no picture showing disrespect for authority is permitted by the Japanese censors. . . . Shathin, the night previous, had seen the preview of "Each Dawn I Die," in which convicts revolt and stage a prison strike.

"That sort of picture is no good for our market," he explained. . . . "I wouldn't even take the trouble to show it to the censors because it would be hopeless." . . . Kissing on the screen is frowned upon. . . . If a picture shows the hero and heroine engaging in a kiss that runs ten feet of film it is cut in half.

The Japanese believe that there are emotions which should not be displayed publicly. . . . A triangle situation in which the wife falls in love with another man is taboo. . . . If, however, the husband has an affair with the second woman that is all right.

Sacrifice is one quality in a picture that assures its success in the 1,600 movie theaters that cover Japan. About 150 of this total show American pictures. . . . "The reason that Bette Davis is such a favorite with Japanese audiences is that she always sacrifices herself for her husband or her family or the man she loves," Shathin pointed out. . . . "Any picture which features that theme is certain to be a big hit with our audiences because sacrifice is almost part and parcel of the national religion."

"Charlie Chaplin, as the brave little underdog, is another tremendous favorite. Audiences in the orient invariably love slapstick comedy because it appeals to their sense of the ridiculous. Yet what we find is that a Tokio audience enjoys the same type of pictures that are hits in New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, London, or Paris. 'Tarzan' is terrific.

"The old saw about 'east is east and west is west' is not completely true. Emotionally, audiences in Japan and their western counterparts react identically. With this one exception: An audience in Tokio, no matter how thrilled or pleased, rarely applauds. They are more repressed. Even newsreel shots of Japanese victories in China are not applauded."

For a time Shathin and his aids dubbed in Japanese voices in American made pictures, so that the characters talked Japanese. . . . "To our amazement we received thousands of requests from our patrons to discontinue the practice," related the Warner general manager. . . . "The protestants explained to our theater managers that they would much rather sit through a picture with English dialog than hear a Gable or a Myrna Loy speaking in flawless Japanese. It spoiled the illusion for them.

"So now, in the right hand corner of the screen we flash subtitles in Japanese script. Often the audience, through the subtitle, gets the point of a joke more quickly than Americans who have to wait for the character to speak the comedy line."

Shathin tells me that the big air cooled theaters in the principal cities of Japan compare favorably with the best theaters in America. . . . There is a difference, however, that is most apparent to visitors from other lands. . . . Japanese architects, taking into account the physical fact that their countrymen are smaller than most nationals, design theaters with smaller seats and less leg room. . . . A movie fan weighing 165 pounds finds himself all scrooged up in a Tokio movie house.

At the current rate of exchange an American picture that scores solidly in Japan will gross about $60,000. . . . Under the present arrangement this money must remain in the country. . . . Under the previous arrangement the moneys were deposited in escrow in the Yokohama specie bank at San Francisco, held for three years and then turned over to the Hollywood studios. . . . Since the war with China the money has been kept in Japan.

While the rest of the world complains bitterly about double features the Japanese market essentially is predicated on double features. . . . A drama and a comedy, or a drama and an action picture are paired on one bill, and this with shorts and newsreel clips add up to a show that runs about four hours.

The board of health, or the equivalent, insists on intermissions to break up the four hour rigor. . . . These intermissions are demanded by law to safeguard the health of the movie fans.

Twenty years of the orient has convinced Shathin that people are pretty much the same under the skin, regardless of the color of it. . . . In a darkened theater, when a glamor girl and a hero are reaching the big love scene, all movie fans can be measured by the same emotional yardstick.

Shirley Temple, in Japan, is as well beloved as she is regarded here. . . . Romance, slapstick comedy, renunciation—they register as forcibly the world over . . . even in the country theaters of Japan, where you sit on the floor. . . . On cold days the manager gives each movie fan a small stove and a blanket to keep him warm. . . . charges them 2 cents to check their wooden shoes.

Many in City Answer Call of the Open West

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHILE the big cities of North America drowse lazily in the summer doldrums, their populations in hiding from the heat, the gay and swingy capitals of our South American neighbors are at the height of winter's social whirl. So reads a publicity release from a steamship company, eager to attract tourists.

Another release paints a cool picture of a "luxurious eleven day cruise to romantic, breeze swept Nova Scotia and Newfoundland." A third, in a more restrained manner, states that a nautical atmosphere again characterizes social life in Bermuda as visiting French warships anchor in Grassy bay.

Prospective summer tourists whose paths are not set year after year undoubtedly would respond to these gentle prods, but not your true, dyed-in-the-wool western rancher or camper. Talk of a swingy capital, or a romantic, breeze swept coast, rolls right off his back as soon as it is covered with a faded denim shirt and shaded with a ten gallon hat.

Downstream Al or Slim has caught a trout, and its frying fragrance is more heady than the most lush tropic verdure. Here's how trout is fried at a camp in the Yosemite. Have melted butter hot in a frying pan. Squeeze lemon juice into the butter. Dip trout lightly in flour, remembering that too much flour on a wet trout makes a paste. Turn in pan until golden brown. Serve with lemon quarters.

Dudes Rough It, but in Comfort.

Hungry dudes and cowboys can put away a 1 inch steak apiece if it is painted with oil and vinegar sauce and broiled on a grid over an open oak wood or charcoal fire. But the steaks must be broiled only over the coals, and not the flames.

Eating out of doors is one of the greatest pleasures of the hundreds of city folk who go west to "rough it" in comfort every summer. Brooks and Phelps Kelley Jr. and Benney and Monty Young, the Phelps Kelleys' and the B. Botsford Youngs' sons are learning the fundamentals of ranching life at various camps in mountains and prairie.

The William B. Goltras and her cousin, Miss Melita Uihlein Seipp, of Middleburg, Va., have been enjoying ranch life at their uncle's, Edgar J. Uihlein's ranch, near Laramie, Wyo. The Goltras and Miss Seipp are expected in Chicago tomorrow, and Miss Seipp, who made her debut in Chicago last Christmas, will spend a week or so here, renewing friendships. She will stay with the Goltras.

The charms of the great northwest are attracting a young French newspaper man, Jacques Schoeller of the Paris Soir, who has spent this week in Chicago, and who has been entertained quietly by the Charles S. Deweys. M. Schoeller is heading for Alaska, and then will continue around the world.

Other Chicagoans Leave for West.

Mrs. Hughston Shockey and her young son; her cousin, George Ennis, and Miss Moyra Browne left yesterday for Wyola, Wyo., to visit Mr. Ennis' sister, Miss Margaret Ennis, who runs a ranch there. Miss Browne, whose home is in England, has been visiting the Leander McCormicks in Chicago for several months. She will rejoin the McCormicks and their daughter, Miss Marie Blanche De Brotonne McCormick, in Santa Fe next week, and then the four will go to Hollywood for two months.

The T. Philip Swifts, who have visited a Montana ranch for seven summers, this year have gone to Feather River, Cal., for three weeks of fishing and riding. After a visit to the San Francisco fair, they will return to Lake Forest on Aug. 15, a day after Mrs. Swift's sister, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, and her family leave for Jackson Hole, Wyo. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings and their children will be away until after Labor day.

Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky and her daughter, Ann Boswell, are leaving next Tuesday for the A Bar A ranch at Encampment, Wyo.

Mrs. Wayne C. Taylor and her debutante daughter, Miss Rose Taylor, are leaving on Aug. 7 for Jasper Park, where they will spend a month. Mr. Taylor is at Lake Tahoe in California.

Mrs. Clarence B. Mitchell also is having a short vacation at Lake Tahoe. Mr. Mitchell and his brother, William H. Mitchell, are on a fishing trip in the north.

Mrs. Gwendoline Ffoulke Smith Dewey and her children, Albert B. Dewey III. and Chauncey, will spend three weeks or so at the Silver City, N. M., ranch of her sister, Mrs. Hugh Hodges. Then they will return to Washington, D. C., by way of Lake Forest, where they will arrive about Aug. 25 to visit the Philip B. Mahers.

Mrs. Maher just has returned from a trip west during which she saw the San Francisco fair.

Club Dance Tonight for New Members.

The Barrington Hills Country club has so many new members this summer that it has planned a dinner-dance especially for them tonight. The Robert Whites, the Luther H. Barbers, the John W. Thompsons, the Benjamin B. Felixes, the James Campbells, the Frederick Hodgdons, and the Herbert J. Kents are some of those who will be welcomed by older members and introduced by Sheldon White, president of the club.

The Harold B. Smiths are taking advantage of the club party to reunite a group that enjoyed a holiday in Sun Valley last winter.

A dilapidated old farm house, fifteen minutes from Kenilworth, will be the destination tonight of half a hundred friends of the Junior Arthur H. Witziebens who are giving a "haunted farmhouse dance." The guests have been asked to wear old clothes and to bring along boxes for chairs if they wish to sit down.

Feet Benefit from Exercise to Limber Them

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It's a very good thing that summer takes off our shoes. Our feet may look smart enough in those tricky little pumps clattering down the boulevard. We can hide the pain of a corn or a bunion with a smile, but the flaring sunlight of the beach exposes all our pedal blemishes.

That corn doesn't enhance the pretty open-toed beach sandal. It is really very unsightly. You will feel like burying your foot in the sand quickly when any one passes. But here is a better remedy—and quite a simple one. Soak your feet in hot water which contains a handful of epsom salts. Then go to your manicure box and take out cuticle remover. One application—or if it is a deep corn, several—will enable you to lift out the corn easily.

But the summer showing of bare feet should also inspire you to do some preventive work, some exercises that will help. A dancer is seldom troubled with corn, bunions, or arch aches, even if she wears bad shoes. The muscles of her feet are strong enough to take a lot of punishment. The exercises she does promote healing circulation.

When you are on the beach, barefooted, or even at home in your room, try a few exercises such as these:

1. Walk on the outer borders of your feet, doubling your toes under.

2. Curl your toes under until your foot is as much like a fist as possible. Then spread the toes out as far as possible and hold for a few seconds. This helps the metatarsal bones.

3. Try picking up small objects with your toes. Good for the arches.

4. For your ankles, sit down on a chair or the dock, cross your legs and point your toe down. Then bend it upward as far as you can.

Ravinia Tastes the Lush Days of Opera Again

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Never since the old opera days at Ravinia have four stars twinkled in a single evening from the stage of the little pavilion in the woods. Last night the glamorous pre-depression years were recalled forcibly to mind as the 1939 gala concert brought to Ravinia four guest singers and a guest conductor.

The singers were Grete Stueckgold and Susanne Fisher, sopranos; Suzanne Sten, mezzo-soprano, and Eyvind Laholm, tenor. The first and last named have sung in Chicago before. Miss Sten and Miss Fisher are new. The former comes from central Europe, the latter from New York's Metropolitan opera. In general charge of the proceedings was Artur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland orchestra and guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for this final fortnight of the Ravinia festival.

All of these names drew an audience of 4,200 to Ravinia, an audience which would have been much larger if the weather outlook for the evening had been more encouraging. The rain never came, but the concert was held among autumn-like winds.

The music consisted entirely of excerpts from Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" and Wagner's "Tannhäuser" and "Lohengrin." Miss Sten sang the music of Octavian in the first named work, giving it passion and fervor and effectiveness. In the Sten appearance and the Sten voice quality alike is a dark seriousness which won the audience immediately.

Miss Fisher, singing Sophie's music, succeeded in capturing the eager, girlish quality of the rôle and projecting it effectively from the stage. Her voice is clear and well focused, drawing a great emotional potency from the nearness of its occasional approach to shrillness but always staying safely just this side of that undesirable quality.

In the "Rosenkavalier" excerpts Miss Stueckgold sang the Princess' music. Earlier in the evening she took part in the third act duo from "Lohengrin," handling in moving fashion the rue laden phrases toward the close and throwing her whole bright personality into the vehement music which precedes them.

All of Mr. Laholm's assignments fell in the first half of the concert. In Tannhäuser's story of the fruitless journey to Rome, in the duo with Miss Stueckgold from the first scene of "Lohengrin's" third act, and in the Narrative from the scene which follows, he revealed himself to the Ravinia audience as a resonant, characterful singer with a great deal of reserve power and a fair color variety.

His general manner of delivery contrasts beautifully with the choking type of delivery which was once thought to constitute good German singing. There were in evidence a few overly operatic musical mannerisms which may be ascribed to the singer's efforts to try to project the full dramatic content of the music despite the handicaps inherent in the concert platform as against the operatic stage.

Sally to Announce 100 Party Winners in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

I know that the boys and girls who wrote for invitations to our movie party have been anxious to learn if they won. The suspense will end just as soon as you get your SUNDAY TRIBUNE tomorrow.

Fifty boys and fifty girls who have been selected as my guests at our Aug. 3 party will find their names listed in my column tomorrow. Each child will receive an invitation to come to the United Artists' theater to see Mickey Rooney's popular new film, "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever."

Even if you didn't win this week I know you'll be delighted with news of our party for Aug. 10.

Swedish National Society to Hold Picnic Tomorrow

Members of fifty-four Swedish organizations affiliated with the Swedish National society will take part in that organization's 26th annual picnic tomorrow at Linne woods in Morton Grove. E. Einar Anderson, editor of a Swedish newspaper, and Maynard Krueger, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, will be speakers.

The Stage

When John Barrymore's farce comedy, "My Dear Children," enters its thirteenth week at the Selwyn theater Monday it will surpass last season's long run record for a commercially produced play. The record previously was held by Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God," which continued for twelve weeks. Only the WPA version of "The Mikado" enjoyed a longer run. To celebrate this record breaking success, the management of "My Dear Children" will present autographed photographs of Mr. Barrymore to the women attending Monday evening's performance.

Hollywood Conditioning.

When Madeleine Carroll arrived in town with 3½ year old Caroline Lee, who appears with her in Are Husbands Necessary, the p. a. hit upon the hot weather gag of having Miss Carroll buy the child an ice cream cone. Caroline dutifully posed, and as soon as she was released by the photographers she put the ice cream cone back upon the counter.

"Aren't you going to eat it?" she was asked.

"No," lisped the infant. "It's just props, anyhow."

Brought to mind the old story of the woman whose husband called in a series of psychoanalysts because his wife kept complaining she heard lions and tigers roaring. After the psychoanalysts had been unable to help her he finally called in the family doctor for consultation.

"You say she complains she hears lions and tigers roaring?" he asked.

"Yes, that's her outstanding complex," answered the husband.

The family doctor walked to the window.

Note to Letter Writers.

All right, sharpshooters, that reference to the author of the Three Little Fishes as Saxie Rohmer instead of Saxie Dowell was corrected in the final edition. Mental aberration on the part of your columnist. Hope the author of the Fu Manchu stories doesn't throw us into the itty bitty poo.

Good Morning!

"The Gracie Allen Murder Case" is for those who take theirs strictly screwball.

It smells like a satire, but it's too nuts to be satire. It COULD be melodrama—if it weren't too daffy to be melodrama. What it IS is a whoops-my-dear hybrid, displaying a wild combination of mystery, romance, ten, twent'thirt mel'o', the Mack Sennett influence and—Gracie Allen.

Enough said?

Enough said.

See you tomorrow.

WEDDINGS

Miss Paula Kathryn Cosby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Cosby of Dallas, Tex., became the bride of William Edward Berchtold yesterday in the Church of the Transfiguration in New York City. Miss Joyce Regina Bodenheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Bodenheimer of 5466 Hyde Park boulevard, will become the bride of Arthur F. Kohn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kohn of 1162 East 54th place, at 7:30 this evening at the Windermere East hotel.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There is a place in the average woman's beauty program for skin stimulants. Skin needs cleansing, lubricating, and a certain amount of toning up. But skin stimulants, by their very nature, are rather "peppery" and you must know what your skin can take—and follow the directions that accompany such a preparation with great care.

A new one on the market has made a great hit with us. It makes the skin glow. Use it when your skin seems particularly sallow and tired looking and you'll see an immediate difference. Your complexion has, at least temporarily, a wide-awake radiance that's flattering and youthful.

This stimulant is in lotion form, delicately pink tinted, with an emulsified oil base. Don't use too much. Half a teaspoonful is sufficient. Pour this sparing amount in the palm of your hand, spread it against the palm of the other, and then smooth it, with both hands, over the face and throat. Do it lightly. NO massage. And DON'T use it near your eyes. No stimulating preparation should ever be used close to the eyes.

There is an immediate effect. Your skin will tingle like anything, especially if it's inclined to be thin. The coarser skin won't feel it so much. This will subside in a minute in any case and does no harm. The lotion is removed with tissues and you can proceed with your makeup—which will be quite successful, incidentally.

This, like all preparations of this nature, must be used on a perfectly clean skin, so be sure you cleanse first. It is NOT to be used on skin that has any eruptions.

The results are worth any effort involved. It's a particularly useful little preparation for the tired business girl who doesn't want to look tired!

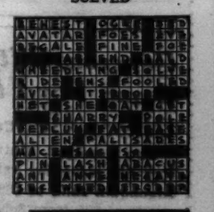
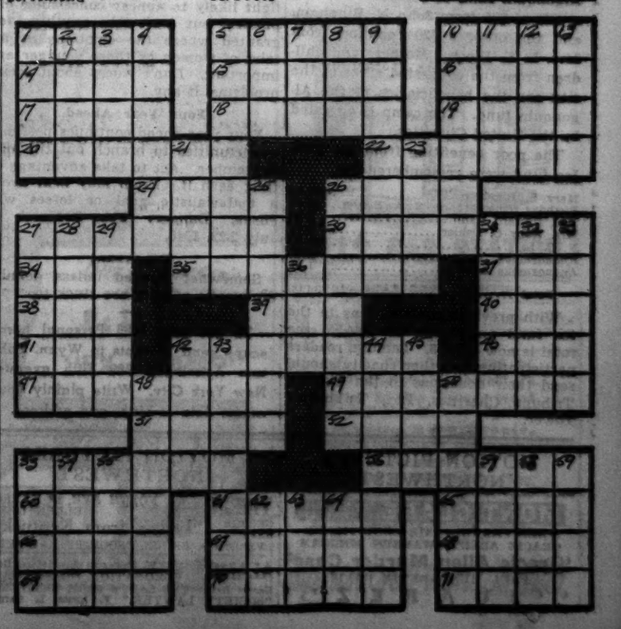
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Gruenwald, in a café in Vienna hear a radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian Taylor, has been staying in Franz's home, studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leave his wife, Gisela, and son Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a pro-Nazi woman surgeon, in love with Franz, warns him to send the American girl home. Von Plasy is taken off to jail to die from shock. In order to take Gisela's money out of the country to deliver to her friend, Herr Wiedermann, in Riga, Marian invests it in rare stamps. Herr Speyer, the stamp merchant, guesses her purpose, but is sympathetic and asks her to deliver a picture to a friend of his in Riga, a Mme. Sayonara Lonska. Franz loses his job. When Leopoldine secures one for him he accepts it for the sake of his dependents. In Riga Marian learns Herr Wiedermann is in love with Gisela and wants to arrange for her and Johann to come there. Mme. Lonska, she discovers, is a spy and that the picture from Herr Speyer was a message in code. Marian returns to Vienna. Gisela goes to Riga. She and Herr Wiedermann are married and he adopts Johann. Franz spurns Leopoldine's offer to be his mistress. Next day Franz is seized by the Gestapo. Leopoldine's brother, Karl, a Storm Trooper, intrigued by Marian's beauty, offers to help locate Franz, though she doubts his sincerity. He falls madly in love with her, though she tells him she can love no one but Franz. Marian sees Herr Speyer, who advises her to see Wilhelm Boehm, a head Nazi official, who would know Franz's whereabouts, but he turns her down. Marian appeals to and gains an audience with Boehm's wife. She gets no help but hears Frau Boehm mention Sayonara's name over the phone.

INSTALMENT XLII.

BRAVING DANGER.

Frau Boehm pulled a frayed tasselled bellrope by the door and the blond boy came up the stairs to conduct Marian out again. Her nerves were still quivering with excitement. Surely there could not be two women called Sayonara. She said to the boy on the way down—"do you by any chance collect foreign stamps?"

He looked at her surprised. "Yes, gnadiges fraulein, I do."

"I was asking because I have some in my pocketbook. I have a friend in Latvia. Boys usually collect them."

He was disappointed. "That's too bad. I get the Latvian stamps here. The gnadige frau gives them to me from her correspondence."

Marian felt actually faint. Did two and two make four or didn't it?

Figuring things out at the round table in the yellow living room, Marian realized that she had more than two and two to be going on with. Herr Otto Speyer was quite definitly a secret agent in the pay of Russia. He had sent her to Brigade-Fuehrer Boehm because it was that gentleman's business to know everything that was going on in Vienna. Why? Because he too was a secret agent.

Herr Speyer had warned her not to divulge the source of the suggestion that she should appeal to Boehm for help. Why? Because if Herr Boehm knew she came from Herr Speyer he would suspect that she knew of his underground activities and her life would therefore be in danger.

Sayonara boasted that hers was perhaps the only name of its kind in the world. Too much of course to count on. If one person had an odd idea, another person could get it.

But if Herr Speyer was linked with the Boehms, and he was linked with a Sayonara and they were linked with one, and both had correspondence with Latvia, it was not too optimistic to conclude that they were one and the same person.

Another point which no one logically would add to the sum, and which no one human would leave out, was that Marion would never have thought of going to Frau Boehm and hitting upon this useful piece of knowledge if she had not stopped in the Kapuzinerkirche and prayed for help when she had literally come to her wit's end. It was an answer to prayer, and because of that the conviction that a weapon had been put into her hand must be right.

She was beginning to see with dazzling clarity how it could serve her, but she must not make the mistake of underrating Herr Boehm's ruthlessness one inch. He had too much to lose by being sentimentally merciful. She got up from the table and leaned from the window watching the dusk flow across the ring from the shadowed Heldenplatz. She lit a cigaret with steady fingers. The smoke rose very slowly on the motionless air. She felt calm and assured although the most difficult half hour of her life lay right ahead of her and she was aware of it.

The plan crystalized with the help of the thick silence of the summer night. Her problem was not to gain another audience with the versatile Brigade-Fuehrer Boehm. That would be difficult, but possible. The thing was, having uncovered herself as having uncovered him, to get safely out of the Lachenberg palace again. The scheme she devised seemed foolproof to her. "And I must really do it," she decided, "and not depend on bluff—in case I disappear in spite of it—or in case after all I would not have the nerve to carry through the bluff."

The deep concentration had stimulated her into such keen wakefulness that going to bed would merely irritate her. She wrote the letters on which her safety and success would depend in the early hours of the morning.

She presented herself at the Lachenberg palace for the third time that night. Apart from her natural feeling that there was no time to be lost, impulse and impatience were part of her nature and difficulty was a spur to action. She didn't like unpleasant things hanging over her. From childhood onwards she had been trained to do her difficult tasks first. She went ahead precipitately without even being tempted to procrastinate. It was not till she saw the now familiar facade of the palace with the trooper in the doorway that she realized fully the nature of the experience she was now up against. She, a reckless desperate girl of twenty-one, was about to pit her puny wits against an experienced secret agent, and if looks were anything to go by, one of the most ruthless men in Vienna.

She had liked Sayonara, and her profession had not decreased her regard. The woman was a patriot. Boehm was not. He was a traitor to the ideology he professed openly, actuated by his love of money.

She had a very peculiar feeling as she walked reluctantly the last few yards along the Keilgasse. It was not exactly a dwindling of her courage so much as a consciousness that she was drawing on every ounce of courage she had. A sensation of strain—of contraction of her lungs as if now and again she must miss a breath.

She recognized the trooper who had been on duty at her first visit, and he recognized her. He challenged her without a repetition of that first rather offhand respect. Now she was officially an importunate interloper, her distinguished personality notwithstanding.

"I think the Herr Brigade-Fuehrer will wish to see me again when he knows why I am here. Will you please tell him I have a message for him from a friend in Latvia?"

The trooper was unimpressed. "He is entertaining friends to dinner. He cannot be disturbed tonight."

Further argument was useless. This pretty girl was not welcome. He had seen her practically thrown out. Marian realized that entreaties would be so much waste of breath. She walked to the old tavern at the corner and called the Brigade-Fuehrer on the telephone. A suave male voice requested her to leave a message or her telephone number, as the Herr Brigade-Fuehrer was now occupied. Marian felt that it would be a serious shock for her nervous system to have to postpone this interview—she would have a flat reaction and have to screw herself up again to this point of determination.

"I have pressing and unexpected news to communicate," she said. "Please tell the Herr Brigade-Fuehrer that I have urgent news for him from Latvia. I will wait while you speak to him and bring me an answer."

Her hands were cold and damp and her scalp tingled while she waited in the stuffy telephone box. He might come back and say that Herr Boehm wanted to know what on earth she was talking about.

The voice bounced on her ear and made her jump. "Will the fraulein kindly come at once. The guard on duty will be instructed to admit her."

This time she was conducted to an office in the basement with a door like a strong room and apparently no window. It was walled with green metal filing cabinets reaching from floor to ceiling. There was an office table covered with worn green baize, two swivel chairs, a few pieces of drugget on the damply oozing stone floor. It was lit crudely by one violently bright unshaded bulb hanging from a huge foundation crossbeam. I am here because the upper rooms are full of guests, she reminded herself, not because any one wants to keep me here. Nevertheless the lack of a window and the stout steel door were disturbingly sinister. If they chose to detain her, she might as well try to get out of a fort.

Generous Gifts Boost Camp Fund to $692; Others Aid Ice Charity

Two generous contributions totalling $45 yesterday raised the Camp Algonquin fund to $692.22. One was a gift of $25 from John N. Bingham, and the other a $20 donation from Mrs. L. E. Bloch. Mothers and children from the congested areas of the city are the beneficiaries of the Algonquin fund. The camp is operated by the United Charities.

Mary S. Bingham	$25.00
Birthday remembrance—H. A. Nelson	5.00
Mrs. Howard Kahn	2.00
Mrs. Ruby C. Dehler	1.00
N. C. L.	1.00
Anonoymous	1.00
Anonoymous	1.00
Total	$36.00

With previous contributions to the ice fund amounting to $844.55, the total is now $880.55. TRIBUNE readers participating in either charity should send their donations to the Chicago Tribune Charities

Expert Advice on Method of Early Feeding

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

For the mother whose baby has already gone through the necessary period of that natural and vital procedure, breast feeding, yesterday's article was written. It contained the first half of our suggestions on weaning, a change often looked forward to with apprehension and too frequently justifying that feeling.

To continue: The best way to wean, of course, is to wean gradually. The usual practice is to start with one feeding of cow's milk daily.

If you start weaning at the seventh or eighth month [some believe in leaving it till the ninth or tenth month] some doctors advise having the baby drink his milk from a cup if he is used to having his water given to him in this way, omitting the usual intermediate step of bottle feeding.

The most important thing to do in these first crucial days of weaning, if he refuses his bottle [or cup], is not to give in to him. Do not breast feed him. Wait until he is hungry enough to take his milk from the bottle or the cup, and during this time give him more milk mixed with his other foods, cereals, soup, etc.

It is important at this stage that he be not forced to drink his milk, for this naturally sets up resistance to both food and eating that may take months to smooth down. Your doctor's advice will be needed during this time, or if he resists too long.

Often it takes several days for him to accept the new fashion of getting his milk. Naturally, if he has had his water from a bottle [if you are weaning him to the bottle], or his water and other foods from a cup [if you are weaning him to the cup], this transition will be much easier.

"Diet List for the First Two Years" and "Caring for the Baby in Summer" are leaflets of interest to parents and nurses. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for each leaflet. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Reforming Liar Usually Is a Hopeless Task

BY DORIS BLAKE.
[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: The young man I love is very nice looking, understanding, and not given to quarreling. He loves the same sports that I do, the same kind of movies and plays and books. We even like the same food. We make a wonderful looking couple. We laugh together.

"But, to put it badly, he is a terrible liar. For example, I know and have always known that it is difficult for him to handle money. I overlooked that by handling his money myself with his consent. The first day after our agreement he reached into his pocket, blankly looked at me, and told me he had 'lost' his salary.

"That's only one instance. He admits his fault, but he can't seem to do anything about it. How can I correct it? We are planning to be married, but how can I trust my future and possibly my children's future to him unless I can cure him of lying?

"DOROTHY M."

We doubt very much, Dorothy M., if you can make your young man over. Reforming another person generally ends in failure and heartbreak. After all, any real change of character has to come from within. Lying is a distressable habit, very. But if Dorothy M. plans to marry him she should sit down and figure out whether the young man's good points will be compensation for his glaring fault. If she can concentrate on his fine qualities and overlook his lies she will have a chance for happiness.

It will help her to try to understand the reason for his deceit. His irresponsibility about money suggests he doesn't like to face things. So, handling his money for him will not make him more responsible or more honest. Before she can help him she will first have to curb her own tendency to assume responsibilities that should be his.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Todhunter School Will Be Merged

New York, July 28 [Special].—The Todhunter school, of which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is associate principal and a former teacher, will soon be absorbed into the Dalton schools. The school has 100 girl pupils between 6 and 18. The Dalton schools have 452 boy and girl students from 2 year olds in nursery classes to pupils of 18. Miss Helen Parkhurst, head mistress, is noted as the originator of the Dalton plan of group study and self-discipline.

July 29, 1939.

Anything can happen, so keep on your toes. Make changes where necessary.

Those born on the 29th have expressive personalities and so are best in positions where their personalities have scope. This is a year of upsets for them, good or bad, according to the way they handle each new problem. It is a good year for them to make trips, to move, change jobs, or circulate. It may prove erratic and bring many important decisions to be made, but the changes will be for the best if made wisely and quickly.

Efficient and Attractive

WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOUSE FROCK.

House frocks not only must be pretty, they also must be efficient. The style offered today is particularly flattering to mature figures and is as lovely as it is comfortable and practical. The neckline is surplice and is given in a contrasting collar. The fabric that creates the latter may be repeated on the simple short sleeves.

A pocket, if you wish one, may be placed on the skirt, which buttons at the left. There is so little to this dress that you can cut it out and sew it in very little time. The pattern is easy to use and if you're smart you'll employ it for making a large selection of frocks for home wear.

Prints and plain colors share popularity for a model of this type. All of the inexpensive wash materials are available in a wide selection of both, so you can vary your domestic uniforms.

Style No. 2110 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting for collar and cuffs.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following hand, which I noticed in a recent rubber game, may be interesting to some of your readers. I don't know that it points any splendid moral, but it does, I think, show how a player may extricate himself from a dangerous position into which his own 'funny business' has landed him.

"The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

"North and South were using the Blackwood Slam Convention. North's opening bid was based on the hope that he would get to play the hand at three no trump, and it appeared desirable to stop the lead of a heart or a club. [Naturally, he couldn't bid both suits.] After East' pass and South's four heart bid, North bitterly regretted his first bid and searched for some solution whereby he might play the hand in diamonds. North realized that, no matter how often he bid diamonds, South was likely to insist on hearts, so he decided to make South bid the diamond suit! The fact that the partnership was using the Blackwood Convention gave North the idea. If he were to bid four no trump at this stage and South with only one ace [which seemed likely] South would have to bid a conventional five diamonds [showing one ace], and North would let him play the hand there. That is the way things worked out. South, holding one ace, had to answer with five diamonds, and North promptly passed. When West doubled, it required terrific restraint on South's part to stand the double, but he had supreme confidence in North and felt that there must be some sound reason for North's remarkable action in passing to what was so obviously the conventional answer to a Blackwood four no trump. I think that South deserves great credit for realizing that there was something 'cockeyed' about the bidding and for leaving it to North to make the final decision. Obviously, the five diamond redoubled contract could not be beaten. East made only his two aces. —E. S., Rhode Island."

I agree that North's method of getting out of trouble was highly ingenious and that South, for his supreme faith, deserves great commendation. If players insist on making "phony" bids, it is only logical that they should know how to ... themselves when things go wrong. Thus, although I can hardly approve North's original heart bid, it cannot be denied that he solved his subsequent dilemma in highly astute fashion. Using the Blackwood Four No Trump Convention, which requires partner to answer five clubs if he holds no aces, five diamonds, one ace, five hearts, two aces, and five spades, three aces, North was in no danger. If South actually held two aces and answered five hearts, North would have an excellent play for six no trump. If, on the other hand, South had only one ace and was forced to answer five diamonds [actually the case] North would have arrived at precisely the desired spot. It was quite true that if North had bid five diamonds, South, not knowing what was going on, would have gone to five or six hearts. Hence, as I have said, it was extremely ingenious of North to pry a bid out of his partner that he himself could not make successfully.

But, although things worked out nicely for North in this particular case, I must warn readers against these tactics in general. Huge penalties, rather than even small rewards, usually follow in their wake.

WHAT THE EARLY EGYPTIANS HAD TO EAT: Quantities of coarse bread, raw garlic, radishes, turnips, onions, and cucumbers, cooked lentils, beans, artichokes, asparagus, beet root, cabbages. Grapes, figs, dates, pomegranates, melons, olives, and apricots were some of their fruits. Salted and pickled fish, beef, and the flesh of many wild animals and birds were eaten, too. Agriculture and extensive cultivation of foods are supposed to have begun with the Egyptians.

WHAT SOME MODERN PEOPLES EAT: The Eskimo eats all parts of the fish, birds, and animals which he lives on. Almost his only vegetable food is half digested moss from the stomach of the reindeer. The Eskimo's good health, in spite of an almost totally carnivorous diet, is attributed to the fact that he eats glandular organs as well as muscle meats. . . . Desert Arabs have a monotonous diet of sour milk, with bread, dates, and a few other vegetable foods, supplemented occasionally with a little meat.

The Chinese have a wide variety in foods and a satisfactory diet. But even in the best times food is scanty and the poor depend too much upon cereals and beans.

PERENNIAL "GRIPE" AMONG HOME AND RESTAURANT DINERS, especially men, is the frequency with which parsley appears as a garnish. Smoulders a Northwestern university student in the summer campus newspaper: "Food was given us by the gods to eat, not to look at." This is the conclusion of a column and a quarter of complaint that parsley now comes on everything, from the steak to the stew.

Perhaps that's true. Maybe the "garnish with parsley" idea has been overdone. But parsley is coming into more favor with dietitians, for it is an excellent source of vitamins A, B, and C, so perhaps we should regard it, not as a garnish, but as a food accessory.

Summer days are salad days. Serve a salad every day from one of the recipes in Mary Meade's "Everyday Adventures in Salads." Or serve a frozen salad from "Freeze the Salad." Both booklets are on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby. Price, 3 cents each; 5 cents each by mail.

Chicagoan to Offer Model for Jefferson Memorial

Raoul Josset, French born Chicago sculptor, was one of six artists selected to submit models for the Thomas Jefferson memorial in Washington, D. C. Each contestant is to submit a scale model and each will receive $1,000. Josset's work has taken numerous art awards. He came to this country in 1926 and became a citizen in 1933. He is 38 years old.

On the House

We are seeing one myth slowly disappear. That is the myth that the traditional house and the modern house can't live together harmoniously on the same block. There is no reason why these two types cannot stand toe to toe with each other and present an integrated and attractive picture.

It goes without saying that the modern house, in such a case, must not be too frankly bizarre. But by far the greatest number of these modern houses do not stress the bizarre. They are instead, functional and easy to look at and can blend into the neighborhood picture along side of their English or Colonial or French neighbors. LOUISE BARGELT.

BOOKS

Vincent Sheean Casts Critical Eye on Europe

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Not Peace, but a Sword," by Vincent Sheean. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.75.] Published yesterday. August choice of the Book of the Month club.

Vincent Sheean.

Spain, Germany, and Czecho-Slovakia, with the menace of Hitler specifically and of Fascism generally shadowing Europe, are Vincent Sheean's eyewitness subjects. Here are a reporter's impressions run through the sieve of a mind with a historical screen. Here are facts, but not mere facts, for they are intermeshed in the whole scheme of affairs by Mr. Sheean.

"Practically every place is the same place now," he writes in his first chapter, which vividly and good humoredly describes the indifference of London to the events of the world at large. That it is, indeed, not peace but a sword which threatens the world the most sanguine reader will realize when he finishes these pages.

Mr. Sheean saw fighting in Spain. He saw in Czecho-Slovakia a nation mobilized and then demobilized, losing a war without ever having fought it. He saw Germany ready to fight and Hitler marching into Carlsbad as conqueror without ever having fired a shot. He saw refugees in all of Europe, victims of wars declared and undeclared, and physical suffering and spiritual fear, war's camp followers. He saw people glutted with power and others impotent in the face of their fate.

The eyewitness accounts of Spain, Germany, and Czecho-Slovakia are in this book, the warp of which the woof is a clearly stated analysis of the historical causes and effects of what Mr. Sheean's eyes saw. Here is the story of the diplomacy which culminated in the Munich pact, here is the interpretation of Hitler's treatment of the Jews, here is a survey of the Czecho-Slovakian tragedy, and here is, finally, the immediate past, present, and future niched into its historic pattern so simply that any one who reads can understand it as Mr. Sheean sees it.

Another "Grand Hotel"

"Shanghai '37," by Vicki Baum. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.75.] Published yesterday.

In this long, closely packed novel Vicki Baum offers us another "Grand Hotel," but more serious, more interpretive, and with less melodrama.

Shanghai, just before the Japanese invasion, and with a great luxury hotel as the focal point of its tragic end, is Vicki Baum's background. Shanghai, the city, is almost one of the principal characters, with the intricacies of life within its borders, Chinese, Japanese, and foreign, motivations in the action. The author has sliced it through from top to bottom, from the Shanghai of the most powerful man to the Shanghai of an elderly, opium-ridden coolie. And the foreigners, each an exile for cause from his native land, are an integral part of the exotic lamination.

There are nine people in the book as main characters, and the author tells the life story of each until those fateful days of 1937. Then she tells the story of their interlaced fates. The book is divided into two parts: The first a series of sketches of the nine lives, written with an objective calm, and the second, the story of the week which preceded the bombing of the Shanghai hotel, written in a much swifter, more exciting tempo.

The people of the story are a cosmopolitan group. The Chinese are of the old and new régimes—the great Bogum Chang, who was born on a river boat and died Shanghai's richest man; his son, Dr. Yutsing Chang, who unfilially revolted against both his father's wishes and his political views, and Lung Yen, a coolie who had fallen as low from his ancestral state as Bogum Chang had risen high from his.

A once famous German Jewish surgeon, driven out of his native country; a pure Aryan gigolo-musician; a Russian born adventuress; the son of a wealthy Japanese, educated in Europe; an American man born in Hawaii, with a dash of native blood, and a pure midwestern American girl make up the group which death unites. Each is a type. Each is an individual.

Their stories are threads spun slowly. But when the threads are woven together excitement mounts to a climaxing completion of the pattern of each life.

Life Story of Remarkable Priest Who Became 'Apostle of Charity'

"Apostle of Charity," by Theodore Maynard. [Dial Press, $3.] Published Monday. Catholic Book club selection for August.

A priest with a practical skill for organization and a personality that gave him the entrée to the dazzling French court circles of the days of Richelieu is the subject of this biography. Vincent de Paul came from the peasantry, was a pirate slave and finally the confidant of kings. But above all else he was, indeed, the apostle of charity. He founded an "order" that is unique—sisters of charity who are not nuns.

The complex abilities of this great man are ably discussed by Mr. Maynard. Reaching, for the first time in English letters, into the most recently assembled files of information about Saint Vincent, he draws not only upon fact but upon his own incisive style to present a picture that is at once definitive and human. This book has been called the best life of Saint Vincent in English.

Collection of Essays

"1939 Essay Annual," edited by Erich A. Walter. [Appleton-Century, $2.]

Here is an excellent, provocative cross-section of thought in the United States, in so far as it gets into print in essay form. Compiled by Prof. Erich A. Walter of the English department of the University of Michigan, it covers a wide range of activity, from people, times, and places to politics, the outdoors, science, and criticism.

The list of essayists is one of impregnable worth. Many of the essayists are shown in what for them are new fields. Thus, Ida M. Tarbell writes gaily and nostalgically of "The Old Sewing Room," a far cry from muck-raking, and James Thurber, celebrated for nonsensicality, writes a delicate, charming tribute to E. B. W., better known as E. B. White, whose own essay on the pleasures of life à Thoreau opens the collection.

If you missed John H. Bradley Jr.'s "The Gentle Art of Getting On" [in which he shows you, parasitic man, how akin you are to the tapeworm] when it first appeared, or Stoyan Pribishevich's "In an American Factory," or Richard Ely Danielson's "Banbury Cross," here is a fine opportunity to garner the wisdom and the cheer from them all. Outlook in Europe

"Disgrace Abounding," by Douglas Reed. [Jonathan Cape, $3.]

Douglas Reed's "Insanity Fair," a 1938 best seller, made him a prophet. He forecast in detail how Germany would take Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. In common with other English continental correspondents—he was for thirteen years central European correspondent for the London Times—he had been writing for six years of the might of rearming Germany and the need for England and France to meet the challenge.

"Disgrace Abounding" carries Mr. Reed's autobiography, experience, and observations on past the Austrian downfall to early in 1939. He examines and shows the extent of the German influence in each of the Danubian countries, how and why Germany is master of Danubian Europe, and what probably may be expected in the future.

England will be forced to hand back the German colonies, not as she should have years ago in a fair deal for Germany, but at pistol point, Mr. Reed predicts. Hitler's obvious move now, in the author's opinion, is an alliance with Russia. Then will come the turn of England and France to face what Mr. Reed says will be the greatest army of modern times. All this could have been avoided, he believes, if England had rearmed. J. H. T.

Nine by Agatha Christie

"The Regatta Mystery," by Agatha Christie. [Dodd-Mead, $2.]

Here are nine short stories in the best Agatha Christie tradition, which means they should be satisfactory to the most particular reader of detective yarns. Hercule Poirot and Parker Pyne are the sleuths and the contrast of their methods is clearly shown. Probably the best of the stories is "The Dream," in which Poirot comes up with a startling solution. In the title story, Pyne catches a gang of jewel thieves. Another good item in the contents is "In a Glass Darkly." S. M. K.

Food and Human Progress

For 2,300 years "progress was so slight that at the end of that time the conditions surrounding the lives of our great-grandparents were more like the conditions surrounding men who lived in the time of Plato or Scipio Africanus than they would be to conditions which prevail in Europe and America today," says Mr. Prentice. He declares that in the 139 years since 1800 we have achieved what we know as civilization.

"The explanation," he says, "is the story of food and freedom." Then he tells us food's part in that story. We're misled by the "feasts of Lucullus" and great sacrificial feastings, he declares, and digs up the facts about just what people ate [and it was oftener what they didn't eat than what they ate]. Famine was a commonplace, and struck high and low alike, just as pestilence did, he says. Vegetables, fruits, milk, and butter once were rarely eaten. Bread was made of acorns, and barks of trees, and what have you, and it took modern soil cultivation and transportation and other scientific progress to give men modern abundance. And if you don't think what you have IS abundance these pages will enlighten you.

Early O. Henry Writings

In the files of the Houston Post have been buried for forty years the stories, sketches, and poems which O. Henry wrote when he was a reporter in Houston, Tex., and was known as Will Porter. In searching out material for "O. Henry in Texas" Mary Harrell came upon newspaper columns so obviously written by O. Henry that, even when they were not signed or initialed, the writing bore his unmistakable signature.

The publishers of the volume feel that "these stories are in the great O. Henry tradition." This reviewer agrees with that statement except for the use of one word—"great." They are typically O. Henry, but not great O. Henry, as, indeed, why should they be? They were written as a stint, part of a $25 a week newspaper job, and many of them are of about the caliber of a daily fiction story. They show the O. Henry touch, but not the O. Henry magic touch, and some of them are heavy handed buffoonery. The sketches about Christmas and New Year's are newspaper assignments well reported, but nothing to compare with, for instance, Ben Hecht's "Thousand and One Nights."

Reader Offered Tours of Maine and Connecticut

BY AL CHASE.

"Maine Summer," by Edwin Valentine Mitchell. [Coward-McCann, $2.50.]
"Connecticut, Past and Present," by Odell Shepard. [Knopf, $3.50.]

Edwin V. Mitchell.

Edwin Valentine Mitchell, author of "Morocco Bound" and other delightful books on publishing, book shops, and travel, has written a new and entertaining book on New England. "Maine Summer" is a volume every motorist should carry along in his car and read as he drives about that interesting state.

The author covers the Maine coast from Portland to Eastport. He has chapters on antique shops, Maine cats, fishing, pirates, summer visitors, churchyards, old houses, storms, shipbuilders, seacoast inns, and other down east quaintnesses. It is one of the most intriguing books on New England published in recent years. Charming pen and ink sketches by Ruth Lepper and end paper maps of the Maine coast add much to the book's attractiveness.

No state has been so thoroughly written about this season as Connecticut. Still another book on that little commonwealth has just been published—"Connecticut, Past and Present." Odell Shepard, the author, although not a native of the wooded nutmeg state, has lived there for two decades and has visited every one of its 169 towns. He has walked several thousand miles over its highways and byways. He has written what he calls a "description and interpretation" of the state as it is today. The book has many illustrations and two colored end paper maps, one of Connecticut in colonial days showing the location of its Indian tribes, and a modern map of the state by counties.

It is a worthy companion volume to "Let Me Show You New Hampshire," by Ella Shannon Bowles, and "Let Me Show You Vermont," by Charles Edward Crane.

Travels in New England

"Jogging Around New England," by Charles Hanson Towne. [Appleton-Century, $2.50.]

Charles Hanson Towne, accompanied by a friend, spent a little over five weeks and exactly three hundred dollars on gasoline, meals, and lodging in "Jogging Around New England." They avoided hotels and slept in immaculate down east tourist homes. Mr. Towne's account of his leisurely peregrinations through the six New England states makes a delightful combination book of travel and guide book to carry on an eastern tour.

JAPANESE HURL THREAT TO SCRAP NINE POWER PACT

Army Organ Angered by American Action.

TOKIO, July 29 [Saturday] (AP).—The Japanese cabinet today studied Washington's sudden abrogation of the 1911 American-Japanese trade pact and informed sources said it had decided to await developments for clarification of questions all Japan has been asking.

The British-Japanese negotiations in the Tientsin dispute meanwhile were adjourned until Monday after a three hour session in which an authoritative source reported little progress was made.

Washington's move last Wednesday inspired an angry editorial in the newspaper Kokumin, organ of the army and ultra-nationalistic elements, which declared:

"Opinion is rising in favor of abrogation of the nine power treaty without further ado. In that case the United States should be prepared to face a situation in which its rights and interests in China no longer can be tenable."

Jap Stocks Down.

The nine power pact guaranteed China's territorial integrity and the open door to trade in China.

Among the questions being asked about Washington's move were why the action came so abruptly and why at the time of the British-Japanese talks?

Many stocks still were down from a fraction of a yen [27 cents] to 3 yen, particularly spinning mill and steamship securities.

Chinese Hail American Action.

CHUNGKING, China, July 28 (AP).—Foreign Minister Wang Chunghui of China said today the denunciation by the United States of America of its trade treaty with Japan made it clear that American policy was "to be judged by deeds rather than words."

There was general gratification among Chinese officials and a hope the Washington action would stiffen British policy toward Japan.

"America is in a position to exert a decisive influence on peace in this and other parts of the world without resorting to war," Wang said. "The strength and prestige of public opinion in the great trans-Pacific republic, unequivocally manifested by an overt act, is sufficient to turn the scale in favor of justice, law and order among nations."

Commenting on the British-Japanese agreement of last Friday on the Japanese right of way in occupied areas of China, the foreign minister said he hoped other powers would profit from understanding the Chinese fable: "When the hare is killed the fox weeps."

Chinese take the saying to mean that the fox weeps because he also is an animal and may be the next to die.

Wang said he hoped "other western nations having far eastern interests will not merely weep as does the fabled fox, but do their utmost to avert a fate similar to Britain's."

Guerrillas Kidnap Twenty-eight.

PEKING, July 28 (AP).—Two hundrew Chinese guerrillas penetrated last night to the gates of the Chinese or South City section of Peking and abducted twenty-eight Chinese, including policemen of the Japanese sponsored administration and several wealthy Chinese.

The guerrillas had taken advantage of heavy rains, which immobilized the Japanese forces so far as countryside pursuit was concerned. The rains interrupted all railroad trafic in North China except that on the Peking-Mukden line.

The rising Yungting river near Peking was reported to have damaged Marco Polo bridge, where the Chinese-Japanese war started on July 7, 1937.

ISLANDERS ASK FOR DOCTOR TO HELP IN MORE BABIES DRIVE

PARIS, July 28 (AP)—The hardy folk of Ile de Sein who provide solid sailors for the French fleet, have protested the government's lack of coöperation in the campaign for more babies.

Arrow locates island off French coast.

Sein's eleven municipal councilors left their fishing nets and tendered their resignations to protest the fact their rocky island off the Brittany coast is without a doctor to attend prospective mothers and ailing babies.

"Give us medical help for the babies we already have and expect soon," the fishermen pleaded.

The islanders' only physician has been called for army service and has not been replaced.

HULL DISCLOSES PARLEY ON JAPS WITH 2 NATIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today disclosed that the United States has exchanged information on the far eastern situation with France and Great Britain since the abrogation of the 1911 commercial treaty with Japan.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, called at the state department yesterday, and Count de Saint Quentin, the French ambassador, was closeted with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles today.

Hull emphasized there had been no consultation of the two governments by this government before the abrogation notice was handed Japan on Wednesday. The conversations since the act, he said, merely have been of the informative kind customary in situations of this kind.

Secretary Stands on Note.

The secretary would not elaborate on the language of the abrogation note.

He would not comment on reports from Tokio that Japan is contemplating abrogation of the nine power pact guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China as retaliation against America's serving notice of intention to terminate the commercial pact in six months.

At the state department it was said such a step would constitute nothing more than a face saving gesture on the part of Japan because she has already torn up the treaty by her invasion of China.

No Comment on New Pact.

Hull likewise had no comment on further reports from Tokio that Japan will not take the initiative in drafting a new treaty. The possibility of the drawing of a new treaty appeared to be faint as the administration has moved to strengthen the firm stand against Japan.

In congress it was announced by Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], a resolution to ban shipment of war supplies to Japan will be pressed as soon as congress meets in January. At the treasury the application of countervailing duties against Japanese imports and a curb on United States purchases of Japanese gold and silver were being studied.

373 Jews Held as Illegal Immigrants to Palestine

JERUSALEM, July 28 (AP).—Authorities detained 373 Jews today as unauthorized immigrants after the British destroyer Imperial halted the Colorado, a vessel flying the Panama flag, north of Tel Aviv.

JAPAN DEMANDS CHINA'S SILVER HELD BY BRITISH

Also Insists London Ban Chinese Currency.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—Closely following President Roosevelt's abrogation of the American-Japanese commercial treaty, the British-Japanese negotiations in Tokio today struck a snag. The negotiations are being held in an effort to settle British-Japanese differences in connection with the war in China.

Sir Robert Craigie, British ambassador to Japan, cabled to London for new instructions following a clash with the Japanese over the circulation of Chinese government currency in the Tientsin concession and the transfer to Japan of Chinese silver stored there.

Hint British Knew of Plan.

Faced with the prospect of a slump in the yen as a result of the American action, the Japanese apparently are intensifying their drive to secure British financial support against China.

Official circles tonight admitted that the British government was not completely taken by surprise by Mr. Roosevelt's decision to abrogate the trade treaty. Some diplomatic observers implied that the British negotiators are using the American move to tighten the screws on Japan in the Tokio negotiations.

Chinese Currency Legal.

The British government, it was indicated in diplomatic circles, will reject the Japanese demands that Chinese currency be ousted from Tientsin. Japanese claims that the circulation of Chinese dollars obstructs their efforts to introduce new currency is countered here with the argument that the currency of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's régime is recognized by the Chinese government and acknowledged by Britain as legal tender.

Opposition quarters, however, again voiced suspicion that a way may be found for the British to hand over to Japan the silver hoard, estimated at $50,000,000, belonging to the Chinese government and now stored in Tientsin.

Audrey Le Maire, Dancer, Weds Howard McCreery

Miss Audrey Le Maire, petite dancer starring at the Pump room in the Ambassador hotel, and Howard McCreery, orchestra leader there, were smilingly accepting best wishes last night. They eloped to Crown Point, Ind., Tuesday morning. They returned to the Pump room last night believing their marriage was a secret. They soon learned differently. Miss Le Maire is a member of a dance team with her brother, Don. She is 24 years old and from San Diego, Cal. McCreery is 28 and from Toledo, O.

London Air Defense

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—A gigantic ring of steel cables hanging from hundreds of balloons encircled London tonight in a seven mile radius from Tower bridge as intensive training in shielding the city from enemy planes was begun.

The first of the balloon-barrage bags went up this morning to an altitude of 2,000 feet, their eight steel cables designed to entangle attacking planes dangling far below. Each balloon was anchored to a main cable to allow it to be brought down or moved as the exercises progress.

London's ten new balloon squadrons of the auxiliary air force, totaling 6,000 men and 500 balloons, are engaged in the tests. The first balloon barrage will remain up until 7 p. m. Aug. 5. At 7 p. m. Aug. 8 they will be raised again until 7 p. m. Aug. 11. On Sept. 22 they will go aloft until Oct. 1.

REDS SHAKE UP FOREIGN SERVICE; RECALL ENVOYS

Litvinov Men Ousted from Moscow Office.

MOSCOW, July 28 (AP).—Sweeping changes in foreign office personnel since Premier Vyacheslav Molotov took over direct charge of soviet foreign affairs and the fact that numerous soviet ambassadors are absent from their posts today caused foreign observers to conjecture on the possibility of important shifts in the soviet diplomatic service.

Premier Molotov.

Molotov added the foreign commissariat to his duties on May 3 when Dictator Stalin dismissed the soviet union's veteran diplomat, Maxim Litvinov.

In connection with this speculation a bulletin listing recent government orders and decrees was recalled. It mentioned decrees signed by the premier-foreign commissar appointing new soviet trade representatives to Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, and Greece and new vice representatives to Turkey, Italy, Japan, and Iran [Persia].

New Chiefs in Foreign Office.

In the Moscow foreign office three new vice commissars have been appointed since Litvinov's displacement and new chiefs are heading all departments, including those responsible for Balkan, Scandinavian, and Japanese affairs.

Alexei Merekalov, the soviet ambassador to Berlin, is still in Moscow, and none of the following are at their posts: Constantin Oumansky, ambassador to Washington, D. C.; Boris Stein, ambassador to Rome; Mikhail Slavutsky, ambassador to Tokio, and Constantin Smetanin, chargé d'affaires in Tokio.

[Oumansky, who succeeded Alexander Troyanovsky in Washington on May 10, sailed from New York on July 5 indicating that he was going to the soviet union on a vacation. On July 18 he was among the spectators at the annual physical culture parade in Moscow.]

Report Shtern in Mongolia.

At the same time there was lively conjecture among diplomats in Moscow on the possibility that Gen. Grigori Shtern, displaced commander of the first special Red Banner army in the far east, had been assigned to outer Mongolia, where soviet forces are aiding Mongolians to fight the Japanese.

Last night a brief announcement said Gen. Popov had succeeded Shtern, but no hint was given of the latter's fate. During the Spanish civil war Shtern had an important assignment there and later was named chief of staff to the now vanished Marshal Vassily Bluecher, former commander of soviet forces in the far east.

When Bluecher's command was divided into two special Red Banner armies, Shtern was given command of the first and Gen. Kornyev the second.

WIFE OF FRENCH CABINET OFFICER LINKED TO NAZIS

Accused of Offering Aid to German Spy.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 28.—The French political kettle boiled again tonight following accusations made in a court trial linking the wife of a minister in Premier Edouard Daladier's cabinet with an alleged Nazi spy and propaganda plot.

In the trial Lucien Sampaix, a journalist employed by the communist newspaper L'Humanite, was acquitted of a charge of disclosing unauthorized details of the official investigation into the alleged plot. The acquittal frustrated what some left wing newspapers alleged was an attempt by the government to bury the scandal by muzzling the press.

Rumor Read Into Record.

Tonight, however, it appeared that the trial will lead to the opposite result because it enabled Sampaix and Gabriel Neri, a communist deputy who testified on his behalf ,to read into the official record a sensational rumor that has been circulating in the capital for several weeks.

This rumor is that the wife of a cabinet minister wrote to an Austrian countess, an alleged Nazi spy whose name frequently has been mentioned in connection with the alleged Nazi propaganda plot, offering the help of her husband for any official favors the countess might solicit.

Hitherto most newspapers have hesitated to discuss this allegation, since it would expose them to prosecution under the drastic press gag decree which was invoked against Sampaix. Now, however, it is a matter of record and any papers which desire to do so may reproduce the court testimony introducing this allegation.

Leftists Pounce on Story.

Most of the leftist newspapers are preparing to do so with gusto and it would appear that the government, in order to appease public opinion, will have to take notice of the allegation.

One report, not yet confirmed, is that the minister who is being attacked through his wife has decided to force a public showdown on the matter by making a charge of criminal libel against Sampaix.

The editor of an obscure weekly called The Porcupine was jailed today on a charge of spreading anti-Semitic propaganda and a shorthand stenographer employed by the senate military committee was arrested along with several other persons. The senate stenographer was described as a former collaborater of Leon Blum, former Socialist premier. The precise charge against him has not yet been published.

FRENCH PREPARE FOR TWO MORE YEARS OF DICTATORIAL POWER

PARIS, July 28 (AP).—The French cabinet tonight approved a decree prolonging the life of the present parliament for two more years. The decree is to be signed by President Albert Lebrun at a full cabinet meeting tomorrow. Ordinarily a parliamentary election would have been due next year.

Premier Edouard Daladier was reported to have told his colleagues that he would publish the decree only if the international situation became more serious. The decree in effect would prolong the premier's dictatorial powers to rule France for another two years, for he has large majorities in both chambers of parliament. His current decree powers end Nov. 30.

Another decree approved today takes direction of state radio stations from the minister of posts, telegraphs and telephones and places it directly under Daladier's office. It has been reported that the premier planned to create an office, reporting directly to him, to deal with the press and radio.

WELDING JOB IN ALL-STAR GAME AMAZING—POND

Team Emerges from Diversified Group.

BY RAYMOND W. POND.
[Head football coach, Yale university; assistant coach All-Star team 1938.]

New Haven, Conn., July 28.—As I look back on last year's contest between the All-Stars and the Washington Redskins I realize there is more to consider than just a game. It was a fine experience, not only for the players, but also for the coaches. It is a happy memory that would be pleasant to relive and I know that this year's squad and staff of coaches will concur when the game in Soldiers' field, Chicago, on Aug. 30 will have become history.

Ducky Pond.

That our All-Stars defeated the professional champions was, naturally, a source of great satisfaction. The efforts of all had been capped with success.

Play Unified Football.

My outstanding reaction, however, was the tractability of the young men who played the game, a squad of sixty-six football players from widely scattered sections of the country and exponents of various systems, playing unified football in such a manner as to triumph by the respectable margin of 28 to 16 over their professional rivals. Sammy Baugh, the dynamic passer, was the kingpin of the Redskins, but the All-Stars beat them at their own game.

Then, too, something must be said of the coaching staf, which also was made up of men from widely scattered schools—Harry Kipke, formerly of Michigan; Elmer Layden of Notre Dame; Bo McMillin, head coach, from Indiana; A. J. Robertson of Bradley Tech; your correspondent from Yale; and the unofficial attachés—Swede Anderson of Indiana and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern.

Praises McMillin's Judgment.

Double practice sessions were the order for about two weeks. These were devoted in the main toward a sharpening of condition, a thing not too difficult, because after all these athletes were just out of college and had not had much time to soften up, as athletes do a couple of years after having taken part in as competitive a sport as college football.

Of course, defensive plays had to be given to the squad and a considerable time was spent in attempting to time them. McMillin used good judgment in realizing that it perhaps would be difficult to attempt to overpower a strong professional team via the ground route and so devoted considerable time toward the development of an aerial attack with which to harass the Redskins.

Lots to Be Done.

Plays had to be learned and timed, kicking had to be polished, players had to be conditioned. A major problem, of course, was that of attempting in such a limited time to pick the proper personnel so as to put on the field at game time the three or four teams best suited to wear down the older professional opponents.

As practice continued, morale became better. Our hosts made players and coaches very comfortable. Various types of entertainment were planned so that there were pleasant contrasts to the work on the practice field.

The night of the game turned out to be ideal from the weather standpoint. The entire exhibition was admirably handled.

The game during the first half was quite even, with Baugh excelling for the Redskins, and with Cecil Isbell, of Purdue, the main threat for the Collegians. Isbell was by far the standout for the All-Stars—his running and kicking being good, but his passing especially being sensational. The Redskins used a five man line for the most part and did not rush the passer to any extent, enabling pass after pass to be completed. This might have been due to the lack of Washington reserve strength. The All-Stars on the other hand, rushed the passer hard all evening and seldom gave Baugh or other passers a chance to spot a receiver. John Kovatch, Northwestern end, was one of the outstanding defensive players. He also figured in our own attack.

Youth Power and Condition Told.

All in all, I would say that superior numbers, youth, and condition had a telling effect in the second half and the collegians proceeded to roll up a victory.

National in scope, with the honor of starting the game dependent on the poll conducted by newspapers and radio stations, the All-Star game may be said to have gained maturity. The game attracts thousands and last year's scoring by both teams will cement interest, if, indeed, that was necessary.

Red Sox Fan Wins $1,000; Offers to Buy a Pitcher

Boston, Mass., July 28 (AP).—James E. Milloway, loyal Red Sox rooter, collected $1,000 today he won in a Veteran of Foreign Wars contest in connection with the recent old-timer's game.

"What are you going to do with it?" he was asked.

CUBS WHIP GIANTS IN 9TH ON HOMER BY RUSSELL, 5-4

Chicago Rallies to Tie the Score in Eighth.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

A rookie, Glen Russell by name, yesterday wedged the once proud Giants tighter into the second division of the National league. The freshman member of the Cub troupe stepped forth with one out in the ninth inning, clubbed his fourth homer of the season over the left field wall, and lifted his associates to victory, 5 to 4, in the opener of the series. The triumph moved the Cubs into second place over the St. Louis Cardinals, who were beaten by Brooklyn.

Russell's round tripper, achieved against Bill Lohrman, was just part of the heroics the Cubs were called on to perform to keep the Giants from capturing their third victory in their last 15 struggles. Going into their portion of the eighth the Cubs were confronted by a possible 4 to 2 defeat, part of this deficit being due to another error in the career of Dick Bartell. But last year's champions, thanks to effective batting by Stan Hack, Billy Herman, and Augie Galan, emerged from the inning in a deadlock. And despite this assault Lohrman was permitted to continue in service.

Passeau Is Wobbly.

Claude Passeau, who is supposed to be Manager Hartnett's favorite Giant tamer, started. His fellow workers fixed him up with a two run edge, but he dropped it when Mel Ott smacked his No. 18 homer with a pal on base in the sixth. He fell behind in the seventh inning because of the Bartell blunder, and still further behind in the eighth when Frank Demaree, the Cub graduate, singled with two on the path. In view of this distress Passeau was stabled for a pinch hitter, making room for Jack Russell to finish and acquire a triumph for himself on the strength of the other Russell's homer.

Mr. Hack, whose single brought on the needed eighth inning activity, also figured in the earlier progress against Lohrman. Hack contributed a double in the third, this being half of two runs which registered a moment later on a single by Herman. By these two smashes in four appearances Hack almost boosted himself into the .300 class of which Galan is the only member.

Cubs Open Up in Third.

The Cubs revealed their no-hit tendencies in the first two innings, but made amends for this with the blast that netted them two runs in the third. Bartell singled to center with one out. He was forced on what was intended to be a sacrifice bunt by Passeau. Hack bounced a double between Bonura and the base, Passeau halting at third. After experiencing a close call on a tall foul which was just beyond Ott's reach Herman lined a single over short to move Passeau and Hack across the plate.

The Giants had three hits before the Cubs had even one, but they were scattered. Jurges walked and Danning singled off Passeau with one out in the first, but the next two men

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

WHEN the chapter captioned "Baseball—1939" is written into sports history, its author will find a wealth of material at his disposal. . . . Even now, with the major league pennant races barely reaching the stretch, enough unusual incidents have occurred to fill five ordinary seasons. . . . For instance, there will have to be a few paragraphs set aside for Jimmy Dykes, who has taken the White Sox, relegated to seventh place by a majority of the reporters when Monty Stratton wrote finis to his meteoric career, and made them a definite first division contender. . . . Under the heading, "Misdemeanors," our historian will set down the most expensive bit of expectoration on record. . . . It was that exchange between Billy Jurges of the Giants and Umpire George Magerkurth, which cost the two a total of $300 and twenty days in suspensions. . . . In the section titled "Mysteries" will be found the release of Ray Schalk as manager of the Indianapolis club with the team in third place and apparently prepared to make a pennant bid. . . . In this chapter, too, must be recorded the great Dizzy Dean injury or the "Fable of the Leaping Table Top." . . . Under "Bad Breaks" will come a list of the complications which have confronted Gabby Hartnett in his first full season as a big league manager.

For the paragraph allotted to rookies, our scribe need look no further than Atley Donald, whose pitching feats have made the Yankees a cinch for the championship. . . . To make the records complete, a full page under "Comebacks" should be given to Bucky Walters, once a mediocre third baseman, whose seventeen mound victories have given the Reds a wide edge in the National league pennant scramble. . . . Under "Tragedies" will come the passing of one of the greatest players and one of the gamest guys baseball has known—Lou Gehrig. . . . When the author gets around to the chapter on "Injuries" he will record broken legs for Lou Chiozza of the Giants, Eddie Miller of the Bees, Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs, Spurgeon Chandler of the Yankees, Red Kress of the Tigers, and Van Lingle Mungo of the Dodgers; a broken cheekbone for Jim Turner of the Bees; a broken ankle and broken thumb for Earl Whitehill of the Cubs; a broken wrist for Pepper Martin of the Cardinals; a broken shoulder for Ival Goodman of the Reds, and fractured skulls for Vic Frasier of the White Sox and Lee Handley of the Pirates.

YANKEES KID SOX UNTIL 9TH, THEN WHIP THEM, 2 TO 1

Kuhel's Homer in First Prevents Shutout.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—Joe Kuhel's eleventh homer of the year in the first inning of today's White Sox-Yankee opener kept Lefty Ed Smith and associate Chicagoans ahead, 1 to 0, until Joe Gordon stroked his sixteenth homer in the seventh. The 1-all tie prevailed until the ninth, when the Yankees loaded the bases with none out and then, after one was out, scored for a 2 to 1 decision, their eleventh victory of the year over Jimmy Dykes' third place club.

The Sox did little against Oral Hildebrand after Kuhel's early swat. After making two singles in the second inning, they subsided completely, except for a single by Rip Radcliff in the seventh. Smith, who drew Hildebrand's only pass, was the only Chicagoan to reach base after the Yankees tied the score. Only three batters faced Hildebrand in each of the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and ninth innings.

Gee Walker pulled a leg muscle in trying to beat out a grounder on the last Sox out of the game. He became the second outfield casualty in two days, following Mike Kreevich to the bench. Gee is expected to be out for several days.

Joe Wasn't Fooling.

Kuhel's homer which got the Sox off in front had none of the taint that marks some right field homers in Yankee stadium. It was far, far to the center field side of the 296 foot marker and carried almost 400 feet before it came down in the area way where visiting pitchers warm up.

The Sox wasted singles by Walker and Tresh in the second and then Selkirk made the first New York hit in the same inning. Crosetti also singled with one out in the third but neither caused any trouble to young Mr. Smith. Eric McNair was safe on Rolfe's fumble to start the fifth but, he, too, was left stranded when Hildebrand applied the pressure.

Yankee Threats Fail.

A pass to Selkirk to open the fifth and a single by Di Maggio in the sixth were the next Yankee moves in the direction of the plate but again the Sox defense was equal to the occasion. Rip Radcliff tried his best to start something with a single at the start of the seventh but Walker, Appling and McNair went out in order.

The Yankee eighth produced an unusual play. After Henrich had popped to Appling, Di Maggio drove a double to the 457 foot sign in left center. Walker relayed the ball to Appling, who threw to third. McNair was about to take the throw when Smith jumped in front of him,

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Arlington Park will close its most successful season of recent years this afternoon with the running of its rich Futurity, which has drawn the outstanding two year olds in training. Twelve names were dropped into the entry box, and if all go to the post the value of the stake will be $49,830.

Among the brilliant juveniles which will go after the winner's share of $35,735 will be Arnold Hanger's Roman Flag, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Tough Hombre, the Woolford Farm's Quenemo, John Keene's War Beauty and Russell Firestone's Marogay.

Hirsch Saddles Co-Favorites.

Backed by the prestige of his smashing victories in the east, Roman Flag probably will be the favorite. He will be coupled in the betting with Mrs. Parker Corning's Straight Lead, both being saddled by Max Hirsch. Roman Flag gave his best performance to date in winning the Mayflower stakes, most important juvenile event of the Suffolk Downs season. A sharp workout since his arrival at Arlington demonstrated that he still is in his best form.

Trainer Roy Waldron has Tough Hombre in particularly good condition to go after the third Futurity in four years for Mrs. Mars. Her Case Ace won in 1936 and Tiger in 1937.

Seek Substitute for Meade.

Trainer Alex Gordon, who is in charge of E. R. Bradley's Bimelech and Mrs. C. F. Shelden's Boy Angler, bases his plans on track conditions. If the running strip is muddy, he may scratch one or both.

If both should run, a jockey will have to be engaged to replace Don Meade, who failed to file an "official" application for an Illinois license after he had been definitly booked to ride Boy Angler. Meade, who was set down in 1936 for betting activities, has been restored to good standing in four states, but he had never officially approached the Illinois commission in quest for a new license.

After riding Heather Broom in the Classic Saturday Basil James remained for a day or two because William Hurley, chief trainer of the Bradley establishment, had considered putting him on Boy Angler in the Futurity. When Meade was engaged for the job James returned to the east.

Return Trainer's Application.

Gordon arrived with Bimelech and Boy Angler on Thursday, made out an application for Meade, put up the fee, and submitted it to the stewards. He was informed that Meade would have to make his own application.

Meade's failure to do so has been interpreted in various ways. Some horsemen believe that friends of the jockey contacted the commission and were informed that he would be turned down.

Others are of the opinion that the commission gave no definite answer but left the impression that Meade would have to appear before it in person for a scolding and finger-shaking session such as he went through before getting permission to ride in New York. Those who hold this opinion believe that Meade didn't think the privilege of riding here was worth the effort of listening.

Johnny Longden, leading rider at the Arlington meeting, will have the mount on either Quenemo or Inscolad, the Woolford farm color bearers. The latter is known to be an exceptionally good mudder, but if the track is not too heavy Quenemo may be the stable's choice as its strongest performer.

War Beauty, the daughter of Man o' War, which ran second to Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Now What in the Lassie stakes, will test her speed against the colts today. She is the only filly among the entries.

The sustaining feature on the program will be the $5,000 Arlington handicap, for which seven were named. Mrs. John Hertz's Count d'Or, which showed brilliant speed and staying power in winning the Stars and Stripes handicap, is expected to be the favorite.

117 AWAIT CALL TO FINALS OF TRIBUNE SWIM

46 Cities and Clubs Seek Titles Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Forty-six clubs and cities are represented in the list of 117 boys and girls who will compete in the tenth annual Chicagoland 100 yard free style swimming races which will be held tomorrow afternoon at Navy pier. Thirty-one of these cities and clubs are in the group competing for the five boys' championships.

Four states—Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin—have placed contestants in the finals. The largest team entry is that of the Lake Shore Athletic club, which is defending the boys' team title. Lake Shore qualified eleven for the ten championship races, and seven are boys. Even so, Lake Shore expects to make a bid for the girls' team championship which last year was won by the Medinah club.

Medinah Is Well Represented.

Seven Medinah club swimmers will compete tomorrow and six will swim in the girls' races. Three of these girls are entered in the class E race for those 19 years old and over. They are Karen Anderson, Harriette Eichner, and Betty Wyle, who last year won the Class D title. She is expected to repeat tomorrow in the class E race.

Beilfuss natatorium, one of the three municipal pools, qualified nine for the finals, including six in the boys' classes. This is a record for Chicago's parks, playgrounds, and city pools. Jackson natatorium, also operated by the city, has qualified two boys. Lake Shore and Medinah, securing contestants generally after they have proved their ability in the lower age classifications, have strength in the higher classes. Central, Belmont-Lincoln, and Hyde Park Y. M. C. A.'s in Chicago, and the Joliet and Naperville associations also are represented.

The largest team from out of Chicago will come from the Bloomington, Ill., Country club, which has qualified six swimmers. Peoria, Ill., Country club, represented by Phoebe Strehlow and Joe Durkin; Danville, Oak Park, and La Grange are other teams. The Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison street, with six qualifiers, is another contender.

Races Start at 2.

The South Side Boys' club, Wabash Y. M. C. A., and Union League Boys' club are other prominent teams. Wisconsin will be represented by three swimmers from Madison, one from Janesville, and one from St. John's camp, Delafield.

Eighty boys will compete for the class E championship, the final event tomorrow afternoon. These boys represent six clubs and one swimmer, Arthur Eberling, is unattached. Two are from Memorial park, Calumet City, Ill.; Eugene Kilinski and Peter Stasiak. The latter won the class D championship last year. Lynn Surles, in this class, is swimming for Northwestern university.

All contestants must report tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in the auditorium at the eastern end of Navy pier. The first semi-final will start at 2 o'clock.

NET STARS WANT LIGHTER BALL OR THEY WON'T PLAY

Seabright, N. J., July 28 [Special]. —Rumblings of discontent that recalled the famous tennis strike here in 1932 came to the surface today as topline tennis players demanded that the type of ball now in use be changed.

Contending that the heavy nap on the present ball renders it unfit for championship play, every top ranking player, with the exception of Frankie Parker, signed a petition demanding that the ball be changed to one of lighter nap in time for the eastern turf court tourney at Westchester Country club, Rye, N. Y., or the signers would refuse to compete.

Today's semi-final matches in the men's singles of the Seabright invitation tournament were postponed when heavy rains fell after play had started. The matches will be resumed tomorrow morning at the point where they were interrupted today. The mixed doubles were continued after the courts had dried out.

Doehring and Savage Win on Cicero Program

John [Bull] Doehring pinned Fred Ledebuhr in 13 minutes 45 seconds and Steve Savage threw Cowboy Baxter in 11:35 last night in co-feature wrestling matches in the Ringside Arena, Cicero. Each match was scheduled for one hour. Phil Gruber tossed Jack Zeravich in 16:10 in a supporting bout.

Palmer House Loses in Semi-Pro Baseball Meet

Peoria, Ill., July 28 (AP).—Woodruff of Peoria dealt the Palmer House nine of Chicago its first loss in the Illinois state semi-pro baseball meet tonight. The score was 6 to 5.

Lincolnshire to Hold Annual Tourney Today

Lincolnshire's dawn to dusk tournament will be held today on the three courses of the south side club. Members and guests of both sexes will shoot for more than 100 prizes.

Tribune Picks Second Straight Daily Double

The Tribune selections carried the daily double at Arlington park for the second consecutive day yesterday, the combination of French Bread and Hurrigal paying $36.80. On the previous day the selections were a 23 to 1 shot, Isolene, and a 28 to 1 shot, Equifox, which made up a $639.80 double.

EVELYN MOORE FINISHES FIRST IN COUNTY GOLF

Defeats Mrs. Simmons in Final, 6 and 4.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Mrs. Evelyn Moore, pretty blonde wife of Howard Moore, member of the University of Chicago legal staff, yesterday won the twenty-fifth annual women's Cook county golf championship by defeating Mrs. Mildred Simmons of the home club, 6 and 4, in the thirty-six hole final match at Jackson park.

Mildred Simmons.

Evelyn Moore.

Mrs. Moore reached the semi-finals of the 1936 tourney, was eliminated in the first round of the 1937 show by Mrs. Simmons, and last year went to the final. This year she completed a rare performance in match play competition—that of winning the medal and the championship.

Takes Early Lead.

The new champion, who represents Navajo Fields, went into a two up advantage through the first nine holes and retained that lead through the eighteen hole intermission. She had increased it to five up leaving the twenty-seventh. Although Mrs. Moore won three of the next five holes, Mrs. Simmons, who won the 1937 crown, took two herself to carry the battle to the thirty-second green.

The morning cards:

Par—Out	444	443	434—34
Par—In	444	355	434—36—70
Mrs. Moore—out	554	563	534—40
Mrs. Simmons—out	555	464	535—42
Mrs. Moore leads, 2 up.
Mrs. Moore—in	574	475	544—45 85
Mrs. Simmons—in	565	465	545—45 87
Mrs. Moore leads, 2 up.

The cards for the afternoon round:

Mrs. Moorse, out	54x	454	535— x
Mrs. Simmons, out	553	554	636—42
Mrs. Moore leads, 5 up.
Mrs. Moore, in	534	46
Mrs. Simmons, in	4x5	27
Mrs. Moore wins, 6 and 4.

Championship Consolation.

First Flight.
Elain Sorensen, Big Oaks, defeated Mrs. Ruth Fisher, Jackson, 6 and 4.

First Flight Consolation.

Second Flight.

Second Flight Consolation.

Stanley Grauman of Northmoor shot 35-40—75 to win low gross in the Chicago District Golf association's handicap tournament at the Illinois Country club yesterday. Low net went to Mel Noel of River Forest with 77-7—70. H. Rietveld of Lincolnshire was second with 78-7—71. Ed Schroeder of Lincolnshire, 81-6—75, and J. P. Pheney of Lincolnshire, 87-12—75 tied for third. William P. Cagney of Bob o' Link won low net in Class B with 93-14—79. Art Sanguist of La Grange was the winner in Class C with 94-19—75.

LEG INJURY ENDS WOODERSON'S '39 OLYMPICS HOPES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 28.—A torn leg muscle, suffered in an exhibition mile run at Newcastle Wednesday has retired Sydney Wooderson to the sidelines until time for the start of training for the 1940 Olympics, it became known today.

The injury is a bitter blow to Wooderson as he had hoped to prove that he is a racer as well as an exhibition runner in the International meet at White City Aug. 7. He was to have run that day against Blaine Rideout, one of the four Americans who finished ahead of him in the recent Princeton mile, which was won by Chuck Fenske.

Wooderson, who holds the world record of 4:06.4 for the mile said, "It was my chance to make up for my miserable showing in America."

The extent of the injury also was a blow to his followers most of whom believe he was fouled in the Princeton mile and who expected him to come back. He explained, however, that a specialist had warned him to give up racing for the remainder of this season if he hoped to be fit next spring.

Wooderson suffered an ankle injury that kept him from reaching peak form for the 1936 Olympics and he hopes to be at his best for the 1,500 meter event at Helsingfors next year.

TWO SCORE 67s TO TIE FOR LEAD IN ST. PAUL OPEN

St. Paul, Minn., July 28 [Special].—Abe Espinosa and Ernie [Dutch] Harrison, both of Chicago, shared the first round lead in the $7,500 St. Paul open golf tournament today with 67s, five under par.

Espinosa, who has played in all ten St. Paul tournaments, was out in 33, three under par, and back in 34, two under. Only at the tenth did he slip over par.

Harrison, who resigned this week as assistant professional at Oak Park Country club, equalled Espinosa's string of six birdies and was over par only at the sixth hole.

Twenty-six players bettered par 72 and six were within two shots of the leaders. Three were only one stroke away, tied for third place. They were Byron Nelson of Reading Pa., national open and western open champion; Dick Metz of Lake Forest, Ill.; and Len Mattson of St. Paul.

John Montague, one-time mystery man of golf, was five strokes behind with par 72, tied for 27th place.

Turner Holds Pirates; Bees Triumph, 7-1

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 28 (AP).—Jim Turner's slow ball and the bats of Max West and Tony Cuccinello proved too much for the Pittsburgh Pirates today and the Boston Bees triumphed, 7 to 1. West and Cuccinello scored three runs and batted in two others, West hitting his eleventh homer of the season in the fifth with Hassett on base. Turner scattered nine hits through six innings and never was in danger. Score:

Colored All-Star Poll Closes at Noon Today

A nation-wide poll being conducted by twenty-three Negro newspapers in collaboration with the Negro National and American leagues to determine the personnel of the East and West squads for the seventh annual all-star colored baseball game at Comiskey park a week from tomorrow closes at noon today. Indications point to a total record vote of approximately 300,000.

350 Girl Athletes to Seek Park Titles Today

Three hundred and fifty girl athletes representing every park community in the city will compete in the finals of the Chicago park district outdoor track meet to be held in Douglas park, 14th street and Albany avenue, starting at 1 p. m. today. Competition will be held in the midget, junior, intermediate, and senior divisions.

Scalzo Gives Wallace Ten Pounds and Good Licking

New York, July 28 (AP).—Petey Scalzo, New York featherweight, spotted Frankie Wallace of Cleveland, O., ten pounds and defeated him in an eight round bout at Fort Hamilton arena tonight. Scalzo peppered Wallace with long range lefts while the Clevelander landed only a few blows. Scalzo weighed 126, Wallace 136.

Walker Tries Too Hard..

Rosenthal was out, Dahlgren to Hildebrand, at the start of the ninth on a close play and Rolfe got Radcliff by a split second. Walker stumbled over first in a desperate effort to beat out a smash to Rolfe. At first it appeared he had seriously injured one of his legs, but he was able to go to the bathhouse unattended. Steinbacher went to right field and Radcliff switched to left.

Selkirk opened the ninth with his second hit, a single to right, and stopped at third on Dahlgren's double to left. Rosar batted for Hildebrand and was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Crosetti bounced to Appling and Selkirk was out at the plate, Appling to Tresh. With the Sox infield playing in close, Rolfe scooted a single past Hayes, Dahlgren scoring the winning run.

IT'S RIGNEY TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—John Rigney, who took a four inning ride in the Boston final yesterday, has been selected as the ideal pitcher to start for the White Sox tomorrow in the second game of the Chicago-New York series. Monte Pearson has been chosen by the Yankees.

Mike Kreevich, who was suspected of having broken his left hip yesterday when he crashed into a concrete wall in pursuit of Ted Williams' triple, was out of the lineup today, not because of the hip, but on account of a stiff neck. When the accident occurred it appeared that Mike's noggin had suffered but as he was carried off the field he said his head hadn't been hurt. He discovered the wrenched neck after he had gone to bed last night.

No one minded evidence of mud in the Yankee stadium today. The rain which washed out yesterday's game here was the first in twenty-seven days and was not looked upon as one-tenth enough by agriculturists hereabouts.

LUCKMAN WILL BRING A BRIDE TO ALL-STAR GAME

New York, July 27 [Special.]—Sid Luckman, Columbia football star of the last three years, and Miss Estelle Morgolin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Morgolin of Brooklyn, will be married tomorrow evening in Brooklyn. This was confirmed tonight by Miss Morgolin and also by a relative of Luckman, who has just returned from Chicago, where he signed a two year contract to play professional football with the Chicago Bears.

The couple met while both were students at Erasmus Hall High school in Brooklyn. It was at Erasmus that Sid first made his mark as a football player. Dave Luckman, Sid's younger brother, will be the best man, and the bride will be attended by Miss Blanche Luckman, the football star's sister.

Luckman was chosen last week by the fans of the nation to be a member of the All-Star squad which will meet the New York Giants in Soldiers' field, Chicago, Aug. 20, in a game sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and associated newspapers.

Cubs Defeat Giants, 5-4, on Homer in 9th

accomplished nothing. A single with which Demaree opened the second inning failed to fetch developments. Moore singled with one gone in the third and was doubled on Jurges' tap to Herman.

Ott Meets One.

Terry's tattered terrors carried their one hit at a time act into the fourth when, with two out, Bonura cast a vote for the American league by whacking a two bagger into the right field corner. No help came from Demaree, however. In the fifth Passeau finally turned out a perfect inning, nobody getting to base but in the next session encountered the disturbance that reduced him to a 2 to 2 tie. Jurges singled to right with one out and after two were gone Ott arched his homer against the screen on the right field passageway.

The Cubs had a chance to recapture the lead in their sixth but Galan applied too much leg power. He led off with a liner into right center and, trying to make it a triple, was cut down on Jurges' perfect relay of Demaree's throw.

Giants Add a Run.

Demaree led off the seventh with a bounder to Bartell. Little Dickie's intentions were good but he stumbled over a worm cast or something and the ball skipped on its way. Hafey bunted into the air and Passeau dropped it intentionally, expecting to get two men. But he threw it to the wrong base so only Demaree was retired. Singles by Whitehead and Lohrman filled the bags. Herman threw out Moore after a great one handed stop, Hafey scoring. Jurges then tapped to Passeau.

There was one out in the eighth when Ott came up. Passeau plunked him with a pitched ball. Bonura loitered around the plate until rewarded with a pass. Then Demaree singled to center, Ott carrying home the Giants' fourth run.

The Cubs rose up with their knotting achievement in the home eighth after Reynolds had expired as pinch man for Passeau. Hack set the scoring machinery in motion by singling to right. Herman kept it going with a single to left. Galan fed it fuel with a single to right, Hack scoring and Herman going to third when Ott fumbled. Leiber's powerful fly to Moore sent in Herman with the tying run. Jack Russell took care of the New Yorkers in the ninth and then the other Russell did his stuff.

The Cubs' pitching supply is so limited that Grandpa Charley Root, who only last Tuesday pitched five unprofitable innings, will have to come back today in the second of the series with the sixth place Giants. Freshman Manuel Salvo will start for the New Yorkers.

Eddie Brannick, traveling secretary of the Giants, has secret hopes for his Giants, but is openly broadcasting that the St. Louis Cardinals are going to win the National league pennant.

If Outfielder Bill Nicholson really shows up Aug. 1, as promised by the Chattanooga club, from which he was purchased weeks ago, he probably will be put to work immediately in right field.

DRAFTS PLAY TONIGHT.

The Chicago Down Draft girls will play the St. Louis Grandmas in a softball game tonight in Normal park.

FOREIGN TRAFIC TO AMERICA BY AIR SETS RECORD

More Planes, Passengers Arrive for Year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 28.—Airplane trafic to the United States from foreign countries set a new record during the last fiscal year, ended June 30, the bureau of customs announced today.

During the year 7,739 planes arrived in the United States, or its outlying possessions, from foreign countries, an increase of 16.6 per cent over 6,639 for the preceding year. The preceding high record was 7,350 arrivals in 1930.

More Passengers Enter Country.

A total of 54,799 airplane passengers entered the United States from foreign countries last year, exceeding the 45,847 for the 1938 fiscal year by 19.5 per cent, This was the eighth consecutive year in which increases have taken place in the number of airplane passengers arriving on international lines.

More than half of last year's arrivals were recorded at the Florida customs district, most of these, or 28,513, at the port of Miami.

Other Cities Show Increases.

Large gains over the preceding year, both in the number of planes and passengers, were also reported at Seattle, Wash., Pembino, N. D., Burlington, Vt., and Newark, N. J. Chicago reported the arrival of one foreign plane, carrying two passengers.

There was an average of more than seven passengers carried in the planes arriving last year. In 1930 less than three passengers per plane were brought from foreign ports.

COTTON

Selling of an estimated 30,000 bales of October and December cotton in New York attributed to Wall Street speculative interests more than offset the effect of mill buying yesterday, and prices declined after a moderate showing of early strength. Closing trades were at losses of .04 to .09 cent lower.

Spot cotton closed .08 to .10 cent lower with New York, 9.58 cents per lb.; New Orleans, 9.55 cents; Houston, 9.05 cents, and Galveston at 9.03 cents. Prices follow:

JOSLYN REPORTS LARGE UPTURN IN NET PROFITS

Equal $2.21 a Share in Six Months.

Joslyn Manufacturing and Supply company reported much larger earnings yesterday for the first six months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1938. Net income rose to $376,852, equal to $2.21 a share. In the six months ended June 30, 1938, net income totaled $285,209, or $1.61 a share. The company's earnings for the first three months of this year were $132,080, or 73 cents a share.

Sales of the Joslyn company, which manufactures telephone and power line equipment, climbed to $6,040,495 in the first half of 1939. This was a gain of 36 per cent over sales of $4,438,402 in the first six months last year. The company has plants in Chicago, Franklin Park, Ill., and elsewhere.

Procter Earnings High.

Procter & Gamble company, soap and cleanser manufacturer, announced adjusted earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 were among the highest in its history. Net income was $25,399,792, equal to $3.84 per common share, compared with net income of $17,439,194, or $2.96 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

Earnings in the year recently ended were topped only by net income of $26,803,339 in the 1936-'37 year, the company announced. Foreign subsidiaries' earnings, included in the report, were placed at $3,117,000 in the latest year.

Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company and subsidiaries showed net income of $54,923, equal to 19 cents per class A share. This compared with net loss of $122,735 in the quarter ended June 30, 1938. Net income for the six months ended June 30 totaled $379,639, equal to 63 cents a class B share. In the corresponding period last year the company announced net loss of $476,518.

Childs Company Has Profit.

Childs company, operator of a nation-wide chain of restaurants, had net income of $18,439, equal to 49 cents a preferred share, in the three months ended June 30. It had a net loss of $226,967 in the similar 1938 quarter. For the first quarter of this year net loss was $261,861. Net loss for the six months ended June 30 declined to $243,422, from net loss of $325,177 in the first half of 1938.

Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing company's operations in the three months and six months ended June 30 resulted in much higher earnings. Net income for the second quarter increased to $1,031,082, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 26 cents a share on the combined class B and common shares. This compared with net income of $203,670, or 4 cents a combined class B and common share, in the three months ended June 30, 1938.

Figures for Six Months.

Net income of Yellow Truck in the first six months rose to $1,419,861. Earnings per combined share of class B and common stock were 30 cents. Net income was $321,245 in the similar period of 1938.

Checker Cab Manufacturing company and subsidiaries reported net loss of $82,209 for the June quarter, against net loss of $66,092 in the corresponding period of 1938. In the March quarter net loss was $80,982. For the six months net loss amounted to $163,191, against net loss of $141,411 in the first half of 1938.

Hazel Atlas Glass company, second largest producer of glass containers in the country, had net income of $847,789, equal to $1.95 a share, in the quarter ended June 30. Net income was $691,444, or $1.59 a share, a year ago.

Belding Heminway Gains.

Belding Heminway company, silk and cotton thread manufacturer, issued a statement showing its net income before federal taxes climbed to $245,972, in the first six months of this year. Net income was $144,484 in the first half of 1938. Indicated net income in the quarter ended June 30 was $112,972, against net income of $68,778 in the June quarter last year, and net income of $133,000 for the first quarter of the current year.

Barnsdall Oil company and subsidiaries had net income in the six months ended last month totaling $1,058,039 against $1,690,039 in the corresponding period of 1938. Earnings per share were 47 and 75 cents, respectively. In the quarter ended June 30 net income fell to $492,622, equal to 22 cents a share, from income of $766,242, or 34 cents a share, in the three months ended June 30, 1938. Net income in the first 1939 quarter totaled $565,417, or 25 cents a share.

INVESTIGATE TAX RECORDS OF TWO FILM LEADERS

Washington, D. C., July 28 [Special]. — The justice department said today its agents were investigating in request of the treasury department the refinancing of the Fox Film corporation in 1935 to determine if there had been income tax evasions by two of its heads, Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck.

Probably two weeks will be required to complete the investigation, the department officials said. Both Schenck and Zanuck have cooperated with the agents by furnishing all records and papers asked for, it was said. The department would not disclose to specific items under scrutiny.

New Japanese, German Trade Accord Signed

BERLIN, July 28 [Special.]—A German-Japanese trade agreement was signed here today as a demonstration of unity between the two nations. The pact, which closely followed America's termination of its agreement with the Japanese, was regarded of such importance by German leaders that they interrupted their visit in south Germany for the final negotiations. Details of the agreement were not disclosed. It will become effective Oct. 1.

As the agreement neared the final stages for signing, the German institute for business research said Germany's foreign trade was facing a "serious task" because of increasing foreign competition and boycott measures. This statement was made in the institute's quarterly analysis.

Production Is Increased.

However, the report said an opinion published a year ago to the effect that Germany had reached her production limit had not held good. Germany's economic activity, on the contrary, has increased substantially, according to the institute's report. Production, income, trafic, and consumption were reported steadily increasing.

The institute cited the German-Rumanian trade treaty in support of its statement, adding that a favorable agreement had also been concluded with South Africa. Manchoukuo has agreed to take about $46,800,000 of merchandise from greater Germany in the next year, the institute said.

Germany's agreement with Japan today may bring complications with Russia if the trade is carried out on a larger scale with the Japanese than with the soviets. Russia then may withdraw from negotiations for an agreement which Germany is now seeking. Representatives of industrial concerns here are leaving for Moscow on Aug. 2 to speed up the negotiations with the Russians.

View on American Action.

According to the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, the Germans see evidence in America's latest step that President Roosevelt "wants to take over England's position as the supporter of Chiang Kai-Shek [Chinese leader] to block the activities of the Japanese troops."

The Boersenzeitung said that "the American chief of state is indulging in an expensive luxury when destroying the trade with Japan for which the American people will have to pay. On the one hand, the big buyer of raw materials is being excluded. On the other, the Americans go canvassing from house to house to sell amounts of raw materials that are barely worth mentioning."

Some Nazi industrialists express the hope that Germany will be able to win the Japanese market away from America. Official spokesmen, however, believe that America and Japan soon will resume negotiation for a new trade agreement.

Japs Get Chinese Materials.

Washington, D. C., July 28 (AP).—The commerce department said today that Japan was getting large supplies of foreign materials she usually buys, particularly wool and coal, from the conquered parts of China. Other supplies going in increasingly large quantities from the Chinese mainland to Japan are wheat, beans, peas, hides, lumber, wheat bran, and oil cake.

Japanese purchases of Chinese cotton, however, have fallen off almost 50 per cent, "presumably due to scarcity of cotton in China," the department said.

Structural Steel Shipped in June Sets 2 Year Mark

New York, July 28 (AP).—June shipments of fabricated structural steel were the largest for any month in the last two years, the American Institute of Steel Construction reported today. Total shipments were 128,395 tons, compared with a monthly average of 111,000 tons for the year to date. New orders booked during June were larger than any month in the first quarter but smaller than in April and May. The total was 109,267 tons.

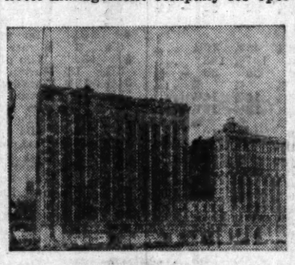
Congress Hotel to Be Sold at Public Auction

Sale of the Congress hotel at public auction was ordered yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has held jurisdiction over the affairs of the noted Chicago hostelry for several years. The auction will be held to satisfy a defaulted mortgage and interest aggregating $1,400,000 held by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

On a date not yet determined, Special Master Wallace Streeter will offer the property to the highest bidder. The sale will be conducted in the hotel's Casino room.

Lease Is Expected.

The RFC, government lending agency, is expected to acquire title to the hotel and then lease it to a hotel management company for operation, Frederick D. Gallagher, manager of RFC property operations in the middle west, announced two months ago that the agency has no intention of going into the hotel business directly. He indicated the RFC will not hold the Congress any longer than necessary.



Congress, noted hotel, to go under hammer.

Judge Wilkerson's order is the result of foreclosure proceedings instituted several months ago by the RFC following default in the payment of principal and interest instalments on a $900,000 loan advanced nearly two years ago.

Failed to Run Profitably.

The loan was made in connection with a reorganization under section 77B of the bankruptcy act, but the company was unable to operate successfully under the reorganization.

Gallagher had emphasized that the hotel would continue in operation regardless of the outcome of the litigation.

CLASS 1 ROADS' NET OPERATING INCOMES CLIMB

The interstate commerce commission reported yesterday that class 1 railroads has net railway operating income of $39,095,476 in June, compared with $25,159,522 in June last year. For the first six months net operating income climbed to $165,262,516 from $71,185,313 a year earlier.

M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, estimated the road's gross revenues in the period from July 1 to July 23 this year were 13 per cent higher than gross revenues for the same period last year.

VALUE OF CANADIAN DOLLAR REACHES PAR WITH AMERICAN UNIT

The Canadian dollar reached parity with the American dollar in foreign exchange dealings yesterday at New York. This was the highest price for the Canadian unit since April, 1938.

Its climb to parity with the United States' dollar resulted from a steady rise which started two months ago. At that time it was offered around 99.625 cents, or a ⅜ cent discount.

Bankers said a general expansion in Canadian exports, which usually begins when Great Lakes navigation opens, was probably responsible for the Canadian unit's advance.

Three millions of gold were engaged in England for shipment to the United States.

DISMISS CHARGES AGAINST THREE IN FHA LOAN INQUIRY

Complaints against three men arrested June 27 in a raid on the L. B. Harris Real Estate company, 111 West Monroe street, were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on the motion of Martin Ward, assistant United States district attorney. The three were accused of causing false statements to be filed in connection with Federal Housing authority loans to customers of the concern.

They are Louis B. Harris, 3920 Lake Shore drive, managing partner of the company; Joseph Goldman, 2351 Rosemont avenue, an architect and consultant, and Maurice Lippman, head of a lumber company at 3058 Chicago avenue.

Ward made no explanation to the commissioner for the dismissal nor would he comment on the case after the hearing.

Attorney Isidore Goodman, counsel for Harris, said following the hearing:

"The district attorney and FHA authorities had examined more than 600 real estate transactions of the company and found no evidence for criminal charges against the company or these three men. They and the company are now given a clean bill of health."

RAVER EXPLAINS STAND ON HIGHER UTILITY CHARGES

Dr. Paul J. Raver, newly appointed chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, explained yesterday that when he said that some utility companies in the state may require increased rates he was not thinking of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

He said the gas company's litigation for higher gas rates is now pending before the Illinois Supreme court and is out of the hands of the commission. The commission has repeatedly opposed the company's efforts to raise its rates to produce about $3,000,000 additional in gross annual revenues.

Dr. Raver said there are some utility companies in the state that may need increased rates in order to operate at a reasonable profit. He said, however, that the commission has no requests for such increases immediately before it.

STORES' SALES RUN 8 PER CENT ABOVE YEAR AGO

Department store sales throughout the country increased 8 per cent in the week ended July 23 over the level of last year, and for the four weeks ended on that date were 4 per cent higher, the federal reserve board reported yesterday.

Increases were shown in all except one of the twelve federal reserve districts. In the four weeks ten of the districts showed gains and two remained at last year's marks.

Chicago store sales rose 1.8 per cent in the week and 2.1 per cent in the four weeks. Gains for the week ranging from 0.8 per cent in Milwaukee and 21.6 per cent in Detroit were recorded in other cities in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district, giving the area an average gain of 6 per cent. For the four weeks the district's rise was 7 per cent.

3 CLOSED BANKS TO REPAY 5 PCT. TO DEPOSITORS

About 18,500 depositors with funds in three closed state banks will share in repayments aggregating $177,389 which were authorized yesterday by Edward J. Barrett, state auditor. Each of the three is distributing a 5 per cent payment.

The West Town State bank is distributing $138,939, bringing to 67½ per cent the amount realized by depositors thus far. The Marshall Square State bank is disbursing $24,092, and will have paid 35 per cent of depositors' claims. The First State Bank of Barrington is paying $14,357, giving depositors a 75 per cent return.

UTILITIES POWER REORGANIZING PLAN APPROVED

First Major Program Passed by SEC.

Washington, D. C., July 28 [Special].—The Securities and Exchange commission today approved the plan for reorganization of Utilities Power and Light corporation proposed by Atlas corporation in amended form. It is the first major holding company reorganization to be passed upon by the SEC.

With the exception of a provision for subscription rights which the commission firmly rejected, all major parts of the amended plan were approved. The Atlas corporation appeared to doubt whether the SEC would accept the subscriptions rights provision and so specifically stated, leaving its retention to the desire of the commission.

The commission also retained jurisdiction to pass on the definitive provisions of the new securities for the reorganized company and of the documents under which they will be issued.

Structure Termed Fantastic.

Utilities Power is a holding company which had a capitalization as of Dec. 31, 1929, of $136,970,692. The commission today found it had assets in the form of securities with a value of only $39,700,000 as at the end of 1937. It was described as a great, sprawling enterprise with an "unduly complicated" and "fantastic" capital structure, completely in disharmony with the integration provisions of the holding utility company act. It was formerly headed by Harley L. Clarke of Chicago.

The system has operating utility companies in various parts of the country, and such nonutility properties as a box and crate factory in Bemidji, Minn., and a 10 cent motion picture theater in New York City. Some observers believed it impossible that such a hodge-podge system could ever be integrated geographically and functionally as required by the holding company act.

Believes Obstacles Overcome.

The device employed by Atlas corporation to overcome this obstacle—a provision in the plan calling for the gradual conversion of U. P. & L. from a holding company to an investment company—seemed to meet, or avoid, the requirements of the commission in this respect.

"We find that the tendency required by section 10 [c] [2], viz., 'toward the economical and efficient development of an integrated public utility system' exists," the commission said, "because the provisions of the plan, calling for an eventual conversion of the new company into an investment company and for the filing of a plan under section 11 [E] will tend to eliminate the system's now existing repugnancy to the integration provisions of the holding company act, it may result in properties not now integrated becoming integrated as a result of the acquisition of others of properties or companies now held or controled by the estate of the debtor."

Would Form New Company.

The plan of Atlas corporation provides for formation of a new company to acquire the assets of the old Utilities Power and Light. The new company will issue its securities to the creditors and preferred stockholders of the old company. Holders of class "A," "B," and common stock will receive nothing.

Utilities Power and Light is in reorganization in the federal District court for Northern Illinois, eastern division. Since Aug. 14, 1937, the company's assets have been in control of a trustee appointed by the court.

The commission did not spare language in its analysis of the capital structure and past management practices of Utilities Power.

Declares Practices Unsound.

"The income figures for the more prosperous years give an exaggerated picture of the earning power of the debtor by reason of unsound financial practices employed by the management during those years," the commission stated.

Although during the pendency of the reorganization proceedings the outstanding debt has been materially reduced, it still is excessive. Approximately $1,750,000 would be required annually for interest on the debentures which, on July 31, 1939, will be outstanding in the principal amount of approximately $31,951,000, and for amortization of debt discount and expense."

REORGANIZATION PROPOSAL FILED BY AUBURN AUTO

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 28 (AP).—The Auburn Automobile company filed with the United States district clerk here today a plan of reorganization under section 77B of the federal bankruptcy act.

The plan hinges on the procurement of additional working capital through the sale of five per cent first mortgage convertible bonds. Present fixed charges on three year 4¾ per cent convertible debentures now in default would be eliminated. The value of the firm's fixed assets would be written down in proportion to their productivity. All subsidiaries of the company would be liquidated, excepting the Lycoming Manufacturing company of Pennsylvania.

The firm has been operating under court order several months. The plan will be submitted to Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick.

New Coach Trains Speed East in Challenge to Motor Trafic

Pennsy Trail Blazer Makes Experiment in New Travel.

BY PHILIP HAMSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Crestline, O., July 28 [Aboard the Pennsylvania railroad's Trail Blazer.]—Some 300 passengers aboard this streamlined passenger train are taking part in an experiment in railroad travel—the mass movement of the public at high speed and low cost.

This is the first time that the eastern railroads have tried such a service, although it has been done in the west. With it the Pennsylvania and other eastern lines with similar trains hope to win back the public that has taken to the highway—either bus or private automobile—in traveling between Chicago and other middle western cities and the east.

Round Trip Costs $28.28.

A round trip to New York from Chicago on this modern train costs $28.28. Up to July 1 such a ticket for coach travel would have cost $44.70. Dinner is seventy-five cents, and other meal prices are low.

The 300 passengers now on board and the 100 who will get on at Pittsburgh will spend the night in reclining chairs. But that should be easy for persons who have spent many sleepless hours in highway travel.

On this first trip of the Trail Blazer youth predominates. Most of the many travelers appear to be well under thirty. Young husbands are taking young wives to the fair at New York. A number of secretaries and stenographers from Chicago's offices are among the travelers.

But there is a cross section of America on board. A handsome elderly blind man is led up and down the aisles by his companion. A priest and a preacher occupy nearby seats in the same car. There is a mother with two small children.

Sitting just in back of this reporter are Mr. and Mrs. Don Craig, married today in Fort Wayne and en route for a honeymoon in Havana. An elderly gentleman and his elderly wife doze nearby. A few seats away two young women and a young man play cards, using a suitcase for a table.

Most of the folks on the train appear to be rather prosperous. There are few lunch baskets in view. If there are any banana eaters or peanut shell throwers on board, they are keeping themselves well hidden. Even the children appear to be better mannered than most.

Reports Train Rides Well.

The Trail Blazer was sent on its way after a short talk by Rufus Dawes, who was president of a Century of Progress at Chicago. Miss Ivy Forzano of San Francisco is taking greetings from Dawes to New York Fair officials. And Dawes' little granddaughter christened the train. Screaming locomotive whistles greeted the train at all stops along the line.

REPORT SPAIN TO BUY COTTON FROM AMERICA

Washington, D. C., July 28 (AP).—Senator Byrnes [D., S. C.] said today he understood negotiations were under way to sell an undetermined amount of government held cotton to Spain in a cash deal. Reports from Madrid indicated the Spanish government had tentatively agreed to take 250,000 of the 11,000,000 bales now held by the Commodity Credit corporation under government loans.

If the sale is made to Spain, the $7.50 per bale export subsidy offered yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is expected to figure in the deal.

Byrnes emphasized, however, that if an agreement were reached with Spain it would involve cotton for immediate use of that country and not cotton to be stored for five years for military purposes, as would be required under terms of tentative agreements with France and Switzerland.

B. & O. FILES PLAN TO CUT CHARGES UNDER NEW LAW

Baltimore, Md., July 28 (AP).—A plan to reduce annual fixed charges on the Baltimore and Ohio railway funded debt from $31,421,742 to $19,644,679 annually was filed in federal court today under terms of the Chandler act signed several hours previously by President Roosevelt.

The plan, which would remain effective for eight years, called for $11,376,534 contingent interest, payable only if earned. The plan also provides for extension of maturities on approximately $185,000,000 in obligations.

Included in the extension provisions was a 50 million dollars issue of 4½ per cent secured notes, which mature Tuesday. It was proposed to extend their due date for five years.

The B. & O., anticipating signing of the Chandler measure, already had obtained approval of the plan by the Interstate Commerce commission and 89 per cent of all creditors. If the court approves the proposal, along with formal approval by 75 per cent of creditors, including 60 per cent of each class of creditor, the plan will become effective.

A. T. & T. to Build New $3,000,000 Laboratory

New York, July 28 (AP).—The American Telephone and Telegraph organization will spend $3,000,000 for a new laboratory at Murray Hill, N. J., it was announced today.

Central's Pacemaker Tests Value of Fast Time, Comfort.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toledo, O., July 28.—[Aboard the New York Central's Pacemaker.] About 250 persons are aboard the Pacemaker, the New York Central railroad's new all coach train between Chicago and New York, on its first run to the east tonight. The train is in one section, carrying eleven cars.

Making the run between the two cities in seventeen hours, only one hour less than the time of the Twentieth Century Limited, the Pacemaker is a challenge of the New York Central to highway trafic. Railroad officials are watching the public's response carefully.

Family Group Travelers.

Most of the persons on the first run appear to be in the family group category. There are few of the "business man" type usually prominent on the Chicago-New York trip.

As the train sped east, many of its passengers spent their time inspecting its equipment. Besides the six coaches, there are two dining cars, a club car, an observation lounge car, and a baggage car.

Each coach holds fifty-eight passengers. Seats are of the individual reclining type. Like all other cars, the coaches are completely air conditioned. Lights are dimmed at night to aid sleeping.

One feature of the train, proving itself popular on this run, is the designation of the first coach for women and children only.

Comforts Are Provided.

The two dining cars are placed together in the center of the train. Bargain priced meals are served. Dinner is 75 cents, luncheon, 65 cents, and breakfast 50 cents.

The club and observation lounge cars are similar to those on pullman car trains. The club car has a buffet. A radio and magazines are provided in the observation lounge car.

General Thomas S. Hammond, president of the Whiting corporation, Chicago, a company which manufactures railway specialties, gave the signal which sent the Pacemaker out of La Salle street station at 3 p. m., Chicago time. E. V. St. Perry was the engineer.

Start Runs to Chicago.

AUTO OUTPUT IN WEEK MAKES SEASONAL DIP

Detroit, Mich., July 28 [Special].—Automobile output followed on a normal seasonal trend this week with most plants engaged in change-overs for the production of 1940 models, Ward's Automotive Reports said today. Total car and truck assemblies were 40,595, a decline of 6,825 from last week's figure of 47,420. Output a year ago aggregated 31,890.

The only passenger cars still in production on current models were Chevrolet, Ford, Studebaker, and Mercury, according to Ward's.

May Barter Property to Comply with Law.

New York, July 28 (AP).—The Associated Gas and Electric company, controling one of the most extensive utility systems in the United States, revealed today it was willing to sell or barter its southern properties to achieve a unified structure.

It informed the Securities and Exchange commission, the company said in its annual report, that it was ready to dispose of the southern group "as and when satisfactory prices or exchanges can be obtained." The 1935 holding act requires simplification of power systems along corporate and geographical lines.

Properties in Several States.

The southern group, as outlined in the company's tentative integration plan filed with the SEC last November to conform with the utility holding company act, is comprised of properties in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, and Tennessee. The asset value of these properties is estimated at $135,000,000 to $140,000,000.

Among communities served are Columbia, S. C.; Wilmington, N. C.; St. Petersburg and Orlando, Fla.; Waycross, Ga., and Bowling Green and Frankfort, Ky. Most of the Tennessee properties, it was pointed out, recently were sold to public agencies for handling TVA power.

Actual deals for sale of the southern properties, it was said, may require several years. So far as could be ascertained no important transfers are near.

May Sell Western Plants.

Disposal of the southern units would leave Associated Gas and Electric concentrated in a middle Atlantic system covering the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, and West Virginia. Twenty-four other operating properties, mostly west of the Mississippi river, were mentioned in the tentative integrated plan as likely to be sold or traded when opportunity arose.

The southern units adjoin the systems of the Stone & Webster, Commonwealth and Southern, and Electric Bond and Share interests. As these also presumably would be working toward geographical unification, it was inferred any deals likely would be worked out with these big systems mostly.

The company said its sales of electricity in "recent months have shown encouraging increases" after a 3.2 per cent decline in output by its subsidiaries last year. At the end of last year, it reported, customers of the system numbered 1,762,029, an increase of 48,249 for the year and 336,000 above the 1929 total.

New York Bank Clearings Show Increase for Week

New York, July 28 [Special.]—Bank clearings totaled $3,047,700,804 in the week ended today, compared with $2,767,865,467 last week, the New York Clearing house announced. Total demand deposits increased $139,317,000, and time deposits increased $11,065,000. Surplus and undivided profits remained unchanged at $916,981,200.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 28.—Stocks weakened in late trading today when fresh selling cut short a mid-afternoon attempt to shake the list out of a narrow indecisive price rut. As a result, irregularly lower prices ruled at the close. Trading was restricted to 810,650 shares.

The market seemed to ignore a batch of favorable earnings statements issued overnight, although the reports submitted by Bethlehem Steel and General Motors did much to impart a steadying influence.

Many recently active low priced specialties continued to attract attention. Notable were Loft, up ¾ in the largest volume; Studebaker, Celanese corporation, Burlington Mills, and National Dairy. Each of these gained fractionally. United Merchants and Manufacturers added another gain of 1⅛ points.

An easier tendency prevailed among representative industrial stocks. United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, United States Rubber, Goodyear, and Sears, Roebuck dropped fractionally. Among the exceptions were General Motors and Montgomery Ward, both up fractionally.

Oils and coppers closed mixed in a narrow range.

Douglas was conspicuously weak in the aircraft group, losing a point. North American Aviation edged higher on fairly active buying. Glenn Martin and Sperry held firm. Boeing and Consolidated Aircraft slipped fractionally.

Minor fractional losses ruled in the carrier section, with interest relatively small. An easier trend also prevailed among power and light shares.

New York Bonds.

New York, July 28 [Special].—Japanese government and industrial obligations weakened in the bond market today. On selling presumably induced by the United States action toward terminating formal trade arrangements, Japanese government 6½ per cent bonds dropped 2⅜ points to 73.

Nipponese 5½s declined 1⅞ to 53⅝, Taiwan Electric Power 5½s of '71 receded 1⅛ to 50½, and Oriental Development 6s of '53 lost ⅝ to 51.

In the face of weakness in the Japanese obligations, selected rail, utility, and industrial loans moved upward with final prices ranging from fractions to a point or more higher. The gains were not universal, however, and even though advances were in the majority, a number of obligations sold lower.

Many high-grade domestic corporation issues, already selling above par, added fractions to their market values.

Trading in United States government issues was slim. Treasury obligations closed 5-32ds of a point higher to 3-32nds of a point lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Commonwealth Edison, the most active issue on the list, sold up to 31¼ in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, setting another peak for the year. The stock closed at 31⅛ for a net advance of ⅛ point.

Bastian-Blessing, Noblitt Sparks, and six other issues also established record price peaks for the year. Advances were confined to fractions in all of the active issues.

Trading totaled 26,000 shares and involved ninety-three issues. Of these, forty-four advanced, twenty-six declined, and twenty-three closed unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

The bid price of Continental Illinois stock in yesterday's trading was ¼ lower at 79¼. First National was bid 2 lower, and City National 1 lower. Other issues were unchanged.

HIGHER EXPORTS, LOWER IMPORTS AID PORK TRADE

Packers in Best Position Since November, 1934.

An increase of 26 per cent in exports of pork from the United States and a decrease of 14 per cent in imports during June, as compared with May, resulted in the most favorable trade situation for American pork packers in foreign channels since November, 1934. This was disclosed yesterday in a report on foreign trade by the department of commerce.

Packers sold 10,610,439 pounds more pork abroad than was imported during the month. During May exports were 6,857,382 pounds ahead of imports, whereas a year ago June exports were only 3,633,098 pounds above imports.

Exports Largest in Five Years.

Exports of pork during June aggregated 14,721,242 pounds, the largest for any month since August, 1934. This compared with 11,686,852 pounds in May, and with 8,456,303 pounds in June, 1938. Two years ago June exports were down to 5,067,758 pounds, the smallest on record for that month. There has been an almost steady recovery of lost foreign trade since 1937, a review of the department of commerce files show.

During the first six months of 1939 this country sold 62,021,369 pounds of pork abroad. This compared with 46,751,743 pounds exported during the first half of 1938, and with 30,241,905 pounds two years ago. Exports for

A year ago exports exceeded imports by only 18,410,969 pounds, and two years ago imports were 8,032,305 pounds larger than exports for the six months.

Pork imports during June at 4,110,703 pounds were smallest since January, and smallest for June in four years. They compared with 4,829,470 pounds in May, 4,823,205 pounds a year ago, and 7,599,313 pounds in 1937. When imports were the heaviest on record.

Imports of pork for the year are running slightly behind a year ago and well below the volume in 1937. During the first six months the United States received 27,004,370 pounds of pork from other countries, compared with 28,340,774 pounds the first six months of 1938, and 38,274,510 pounds two years ago.

Lard Exports Analyzed.

Lard exports during June showed seasonal decline from May, but they were largest for June since 1934. The total at 22,681,693 pounds, compared with 25,303,159 pounds in May, with 18,178,644 pounds a year ago, and 9,-765,810 pounds two years ago. The six months' lard exports at 140,677,271 pounds, also the largest since 1934, compared with 105,811,247 pounds a year ago, and with 52,468,087 pounds two years ago.

Beef and veal exports increased from 1,035,610 pounds during May to 1,414,023 pounds in June, and imports decreased from 11,638,655 pounds in May to 8,438,180 pounds in June.

New Packer Officer

FRANK K. FOSS.

FOSS BECOMES VICE PRESIDENT OF WILSON & CO.

Appointment of Frank K. Foss as vice president of Wilson & Co., packing company with headquarters in Chicago, was announced yesterday by Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board. Foss will fill the vacancy created by the recent death of W. J. Cawley.

Foss began working for the packing company during his school vacation in 1916, after his graduation from Cornell university the following year he took a full time job in the cattle yards.

During most of the time between 1921 and 1936 he worked for the company in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Since August, 1936, he has been assigned to the beef department at Chicago headquarters.

INSURANCE MEN TERM C. R. STREET 'CZAR' IN FIELD

Testify at Hearing Over Missouri Scandal.

The dominating personality of the late Charles R. Street, Chicago attorney, commanded the unquestioning obedience of the fire insurance business, witnesses told a special federal commissioner here yesterday. Street was allegedly the "payoff man" for fire insurance companies in the Missouri insurance rate reduction scandal.

The hearing before Special Commissioner Paul V. Barnett was held in the directors' rooms of the Western Underwriters' association in the Insurance exchange. It was started Wednesday and is part of an investigation ordered by the federal court at Kansas City to determine whether 137 stock fire insurance companies knowingly contributed money to Street for fraudulent purposes.

New York Hearing Next.

The investigation will be continued in New York City on July 31. The federal court recently ordered the insurance companies to surrender $8,000,000 distributed in the Missouri rate settlement. A custodian named by the court has impounded more than $6,200,000 of the funds which will be returned to policy holders.

George H. Bell, western manager of the National Fire Insurance company, testified that he turned over checks totaling more than $18,000 to Street for fees and expenses in the rate litigation.

"Mr. Street was a man of very strong opinions," Bell said. "He occupied a very unusual position in our business. I've never seen anything like it in fifty years. He was looked upon as one of the most honorable and one of the most capable men in the fire insurance business. He was sort of a Hitler. He dominated the business and anyone who opposed him came out second best."

Member of Street Committee.

Bell was a member of a committee which handled the rate litigation for the 137 companies. Street was chairman.

The insurance rate reduction scandal was climaxed by the imprisonment of Tom Pendergast, Democratic political boss of Kansas City, and Robert Emmet O'Malley, former Missouri insurance superintendent, for income tax law violations.

Pendergast and O'Malley were accused of failure to pay taxes on almost $400,000 allegedly received from Street for arranging the rate compromise in favor of the insurance companies.

GRAIN MARKETS UNEVEN; SHIFT WITH WEATHER

Grain markets were somewhat unsettled yesterday. Buying of September wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade attributed to mills and cash interests gave that delivery a strong undertone. The deferred deliveries were easier as the result of lower temperatures in the spring wheat belt. Closing trades were ⅛ cent higher on the September contract and ⅛ to ¾ cent lower on the December and May deliveries.

Corn closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher, with the September contract showing the most strength. Oats were ⅝ to ¾ cent lower on large country offerings. Rye declined ¾ to 1⅜ cent. Soy beans were ½ to 1 cent lower, more because of lack of aggressive support than selling pressure.

An active shipping demand for cash wheat and corn helped to impart a strong undertone to the September deliveries of the two grains.

Unfavorable crop reports on spring wheat from the American and Canadian northwest had considerable influence on all markets in the early trading. The American durum wheat crop is said to have been severely damaged.

Unit of Bakery Company Will Have Chicago Plant

Oven King Cookies, Inc., affiliated with Oven King Bakeries of Minneapolis and Buffalo, makers of home style cookies for more than thirty years, have leased the one story building at 3440 South Ashland avenue, adjacent to the Central Manufacturing district, for a term of years, through J. J. Harrington & Co. The Chicago company expects to be in full production by Aug. 1.

CHICAGO PLANTS INCREASE JOBS, WAGES IN JUNE

Chicago employers provided more jobs and paid more in wages last month than in May, Martin P. Durkin, director of the Illinois department of labor, announced yesterday. He said reports from 4,145 establishments indicated increases of nineteen tenths of 1 per cent in employment and 1.1 per cent in pay rolls.

Among various industrial groups, increases in both employment and pay rolls were shown in the clothing industry, in leather goods trades, stone, clay, and glass industries, metal and machinery trades, and the food and tobacco groups.

Slightly fewer textile workers were at work, but they received more in wages. More were employed in the public utility and wood products industries, but their wage totals declined.

Among the groups showing declines in both number of workers and wage totals, the largest recession was in the rubber industry, with declines of about 11 per cent. Transportation, paper goods, and chemical groups also showed declines.
